Big news from the Supreme Court of the United States and the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Two "far-reaching experiments" of the Roosevelt New Deal are declared unconstitutional.

"The Supreme Court, in a sweeping decision, killed the Guffey coal act; the District of Columbia Court of Appeals held the resettlement administration under Professor Tugwell violates the fundamental law of the land," according to a Universal Service dispatch from Washington.

The decisions set forth that "these major experiments in socialization involve unlawful delegation of powers vested in Congress, and violation by the federal government of the rights of the states," the Washington dispatch avers.

The resettlement decision affected only that part of the relief activities under Professor Tugwell's administration, leaving undecided the remainder of the 4800 million dollars voted to the President last year.

Much of the resettlement money has been spent and much more allocated, cancellation of which will raise problems.

The decision of the Court of Appeals virtually holds that the national government has nothing to do with the housing problem of the people. That is the business of the people and of the states.

If this decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals is upheld, this, with the Supreme Court killing the Guffey coal act, would make a complete upset of the entire New Deal program and make drastic action necessary to New Deal activities.

At Angel's Camp, Cal., twenty-five thousand persons watched the annual Calaveras County frog-jumping contest and saw "Can't Fake It" cover a distance of 12 feet 3 inches in three hops. Another frog, raised on the ranch of the late Will Rogers, was second, with 12 feet 2 inches.

Twenty-five thousand human beings watched some frogs hop. Not half as many would have gathered to hear Einstein lecture on relativity. This may mean that many human beings are nearer to the frog than they are to Einstein. A famous scientist said that there is a greater difference between a highly educated white man and an African bushman than between that bushman and a blade of grass.

The big dirigible, making its third trip across the Atlantic, will land at Lakehurst, N. J., tomorrow. A few will gather to see it, after a while nobody will notice its coming; we get used to anything.

But we ought NOT to get used to the fact that while Hitler's Swastika sails back and forth across the Atlantic on time and in safety, Uncle Sam's Stars and Stripes sit on the ground and "wonder how they do it."

It is suggested that every American be compelled to go to school until 22 years of age, to cut down the competition for jobs.

It might be simpler to keep everybody in school until 65 and then give everybody a pension of $200 a month. What could be simpler than that?

The average sensible American starts making a living long before he is 22, and would do well to continue on that basis. The American Federation of Labor says we still have more than 12,000,000 idle.

The French have a saying: "The more it changes, the more it is the same thing."

Jack Sullivan, twenty-three, killed a friend and officer in a "gun fight," and died in the gas chamber at Florence, Arizona. A photograph shows him sitting in the execution chamber, dressed in shorts, a stethoscope fastened over his heart with tape to let doctors outside the deadly chamber listen and know when he died. That photograph shows him holding a cigar in his teeth, grinning.

When asked, just before he was put into the lethal chamber, whether he wanted anything, he answered with a smile:

"Yes, you might give me a gas mask."

The young man's photograph shows delight in his ability to "die game." He was dead twelve seconds after that photograph was taken. Crime really does not pay.

Less than three weeks from tomorrow the deed will be done in Cleveland. The Republican candidate will be named.

It is observed that Mr. Landon is smiling in all his photographs. No wonder. He is so far ahead in the field now that it is really no race.

FIORENZA ON TRIAL IN BATHTUB SLAYING

Victim, Suspect In Her Death

MRS. NANCY TITTERTON

JOHN FIORENZA

Accused in Slaying

SITS IN CHAIR VERA USED

By JAMES I. KILGALLEN

New York, May 19 (INS)—Five jurors had been selected today at the trial of John Fiorenza, 24-year-old upholsterer, charged with strangling Mrs. Nancy Evens Titterton, young fiction writer, when court was adjourned for luncheon.

Dapper, dark-eyed, black-haired Fiorenza sat quietly at defense counsel table during the examination of talesmen, calm, almost unconcerned.

His attorney, Henry Klauber, said he did not know whether Fiorenza would take the stand in his defense. In fact, the lawyer declared, there is a possibility no defense witnesses will be called.

MOTHER WEEPS

Mrs. Theresa Cupsal, mother of the accused slayer, sat on a bench in an anteroom. She wept as she talked to newspapermen while photographers snapped pictures. She said she had visited her son in the Tombs yesterday.

Louis Titterton, a radio company executive and husband of the slain woman, will testify for the state.

Fiorenza came into court from his cell in the Tombs nattily attired in a blue suit, blue shirt and blue tie. He is a slim, dark man of medium height, swarthy complexion and wavy black hair.

He took the same seat recently occupied by Vera Stretz, when she was tried and acquitted of the murder of Dr. Fritz Gerbhard in the same courtroom.

CONSULTS COUNSEL

Fiorenza's chocolate-colored eyes roamed furtively around the courtroom as the proceedings got under way. He saw 150 talesmen who had been summoned to court and from whom the jury will be chosen. Now and then Fiorenza whispered to his attorney, Henry Klauber.

On the bench sat Judge Charles C. Nott, elderly, baldish and bespectacled with a fringe of grey hair around his ears.

Boy, 4, Swallows Pin, Faces Knife

After swallowing a pin today Russell Parris, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Parris of Magee street, Cambridge, was rushed to Cambridge City hospital where an operation may be performed.

An X-ray revealed the pin in the boy's stomach. Doctors said another X-ray would be made later to trace the movement of the pin.

THREE U. S. WARSHIPS DAMAGED IN PACIFIC

$150,000 FIRE IN SCHOOL; TEN FLEE

Dighton, May 19—Fire of mysterious origin destroyed the main building of the Bristol County Agricultural School in the Segreganset section today.

Ten students in an adjoining dormitory were forced to flee for their lives. Damage was estimated at $150,000.

The fire is believed to have started in the basement of the main edifice. It got such headway that the three-story structure was an inferno before firemen arrived.

Only the fact that most of the school's 250 students are away on summer projects prevented possible loss of life. Ordinarily the burned building quarters 150 persons.

Handicapped by an insufficient water supply, firemen from Dighton, Taunton and Somerset were able only to keep the flames from spreading to nearby dormitories and barns.

Help was summoned from Fall River.

The blaze was discovered by a passing motorist who telephoned the alarm to the Dighton police.

The main building was unoccupied, most of the students being employed for the summer on experimental and training projects.

Cremation Halted in Mystery

District Attorney Warren I. Bishop of Middlesex County today ordered Newton police to halt cremation of the body of Alexander Murray, 54, of Waban, after funeral services in Brookline.

Medical Examiner T. Morton Gallagher was ordered to perform an autopsy.

Murray, whose home was at 126 Beethoven avenue, Waban, died Sunday after two days' treatment at Newton hospital.

He was being treated for cirrhosis of the liver, according to the hospital.

Bishop said relatives of the dead man had requested his action.

Funeral services were in the Waterman Funeral Parlors, Harvard street, Brookline, and the cremation had been scheduled at Forest Hills crematorium.

A Masonic funeral service was arranged for by King Solomon Lodge.

Boy, Milk Truck Vanish in Oxford

Oxford, May 19—State and local police today launched a three-state search for Robert T. Powers, Jr., 17-year-old high school student who disappeared last night with a milk truck he operated as a part-time job.

The boys father, A selectman in this town, fearing that his son may have met with foul play, called in the state police of the Grafton barracks who immediately broadcast a description of the youth and the truck to three states.

Way Open to Clear Debt, Says Herroit

Paris, May 19 (AP)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot declared today that "the way is open" to the settlement of the war debt "misunderstanding" between the United States and France through the new trade treaty.

Herriot indicated in an article in "Information" that thesettlement of the war debt controversy was desired to gain the aid of the United States in the troubled situation with Germany.

LANDON RAPS 'QUITTERS' OF NATION

Attica, Kan., May 19 (US)—Speaking outdoors under the skies of his native Kansas, Governor Alf M. Landon told the Attica high school graduating class of 28 boys and girls last night that the doctrines preached by the prophets of despair are "sheer nonsense." He declared:

"America is still our promised land if we have the qualities of heart and head to make it so."

Mason on the high school athletic field, a typical rural crowd of 2000 gathered from neighboring Kansas and Oklahoma towns heard the governor's commencement address.

STIRRING OVATION

The governor was greeted by a stirring ovation as he led the procession of graduates to the platform. Following him were the school board and the 28 seniors in their gray caps and gowns.

One youth walked with the eyes of all upon him. He was Ward Crowell, 17-year-old son of George ("Pat") Crowell, the man Governor Landon promised four years ago to deliver the commencement address when young Ward was graduated. At the conclusion of his address the governor autographed his manuscript for Ward and presented it to him.

The Kansas governor delivered a non-political address broadcast to the nation over an NBC hookup. It took for its theme "There is no Substitute for Courage."

NO PLACE FOR QUITTERS'

Landon asserted:

"We have no place in America today for quitters."

"Quitters did not make Kansas. They did not make America."

Townsend's 3rd Party Aim Told

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Assertions the Townsend old age pension movement was started solely to obtain "cold cash," and to make "a hat-full of money" were denied by Dr. F. E. Townsend today before a House investigating committee.

A crowded committee room, with people standing in the aisles, listened intently as James R. Sullivan, committee counsel, examined the elderly, retired California physician, who in four years has become a national figure through his plan to pay $200 a month pensions to all over 60.

At the outset, Representative Tolan (D) California, a Townsend-ite committee member, protested the line of questioning, but he was overruled by Chairman Bell (D) Missouri. The committee sustained Bell by a 4 to 2 vote.

DENIES OLD SISTER TALK

"Did you not say 'this old sister has done her part' when you re reived a five dollar bill from a woman member?" Sullivan asked the witness.

"Absolutely no," Dr. Townsend replied.

Townsend was asked whether an expectation to build the Townsend Weekly to a national magazine the size of the Saturday Evening Post with similar financial returns was not one of the main reasons for starting the movement.

"We do hope we can build it up to that size," he said.

WORLD FOR TAIL

Sullivan read into the record a letter from Dr. Townsend to Robert E. Clemente, former national secretary, January 16, 1935, which said:

"You and I have the world by the tail on a downhill pull now this thing if we work it right."

Applause greeted Dr. Townsend a

Washington, May 19 (INS)—Leaving a terse note, reading "I'm tired of living," 17-year-old Edward A. Gordon, of Brookline, Mass., today plunged from a fifth-story window of a capital hotel.

The youth was critically injured. Doctors at the hospital where he was rushed said he had little chance of recovery.

TWO LAID UP BY CRIPPLED TURBINES

Washington, May 19 (INS)—Three of America's big warships have been forced out of fleet maneuvers in the southern Pacific owing to mishaps, the Navy department disclosed today.

The heavy cruiser Minneapolis has been temporarily detached as the result of a minor collision with a merchant vessel, the 8000-ton freighter Marore of the Ore Steamship Lines.

The collision occured outside Bahia Honbor as the Minneapolis was turning to her berth in the harbor.

The upper deck of the cruiser was slightly damaged and the bow was bent slightly about five feet above the water line.

However, the damage to both ships was not sufficient to require docking of either.

The battleships Mississipi and New Mexico have been detached from the maneuvers owing to turbine trouble which both developed. Navy officials here said there was no evidence of sabotage in either case, but the vessels were returning to their base for repairs.

U. S. Probes Turbine Damage to the Quincy

In December government officials launched a two-way probe into alleged sabotage aboard the U. S. S. Quincy, which caused $100,000 damage while the ship was under construction at the Fore River shipyard.

Department of Justice and naval intelligence agents found that a bolt had been dropped into the expensive reduction gear machinery and attributed the act to three possibilities. Sabotage by a disgruntled labor union member, Communists, or a member of a millpond prank group. Later, on one of the trial runs, one of the ship's turbines developed trouble necessitating the ship's return to Fore River for repairs.

LANDON URGES RETURN TO 'FUNDAMENTAL TRUTHS'

KANSAN LASHES 'PROPHETS OF DESPAIR, QUITTERS,' IN ATTICA ADDRESS

Attica, Kan., May 18 (US)—Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas delivered the following address at the commencement exercises of the Attica High School here last night:

Mr. Principal, members of the graduating class:

As you know, I came here tonight, because the son of a lifelong friend of mine is graduating from high school. His father asked me if I would come down to Attica and speak to you. I am proud that he asked me and I am proud to be here because I know what an important day this is to you and your parents.

But your mothers, I suspect, are thinking about something different from what you are tonight. Each of them is thinking of that day when you as a little boy or girl first started off to school, and on the journey away from her, because once you started to school you were not entirely her little boy or girl any longer. From then on, she knew that she must share you with your teachers. And now the time has come when she must begin to share you with the world.

Perhaps, newspapers and histories would not call this an important day. But I do, because, the important days in our lives are not the important days in history, but the days when important things are happening to you and me as individuals

Important Days

I appreciate, of course, that the day the Magna Charta was signed, the day the Battle of Yorktown was fought, and the day that anaesthetics were discovered, are considered important days in the progress of the race.

But I am sure that your fathers and mothers will tell you that the important days in their own lives were the first day they went to school, the day they graduated from high school and college, the day they got their first jobs or were married and the day on which you were born.

We are apt to take these things very casually because they are happening all around us every day, but we must not underestimate them, because the most important things in this world are those which affect the daily life and happiness of each individual person.

Many of you young men and women do not realize, perhaps, just how much this day means to your fathers and mothers and your teachers; nor do you realize just how much your parents and teachers have toiled and sacrificed to enable you to graduate tonight.

Repayment Tip

But I know that you do appreciate it to some extent, and that you want to repay them if you only knew just what to do. So I am going to tell you something about parents, something that none of us realize until we have children of our own.

I am not going to give you a piece of advice, but to put it in ordinary slang, "I am going to tip you off to something." Do you know that the average mother and father are a little bit shy and diffident about their children? Now, I know you mothers and fathers sitting out there won't admit it, but the one thing that you really want from your children, you're too shy to ask for, and so I am going to tell them tonight what it is.

Boys and girls, the one thing your mothers and fathers want is not just honor and respect. They want you to like them, not just as parents, but as persons. They want you to want to do things with them.

One of the biggest thrills you can give your mother is to call her up and ask her to do something with you, and even if your father's hair is getting a little thin, and even if he doesn't know the latest dance steps, one of the things that will please him most is for his daughter to want to be with him, not just because he's her father, but because she likes him.

Life Essentials

Now, members of the Attica graduating class, I am going to talk to you about some essentials, essentials which many of us are inclined to take too casually, as we too often take commencement exercises. Some of them come from the Bible, some of them have been handed down for generations. I mean such things as: "There is no substitute for courage," "He is a man of principle," "His word is as good as his bond," "Man cannot live by bread alone."

During the early years of my life, I thought these sayings were just something that parents handed to their children when they wanted them to stop doing something.

But gradually it dawned on me that probably the reason they had lived for hundreds of years is that they are fundamentally right and true and apply to every generation, and still more important, they represent the things that our people must reverence and cling to if we are to win through.

There is one of these sayings that I hardly need to mention to you people of Kansas, because you know and understand as well as any people who have ever lived that "there is no substitute for courage." I refer to you young men and women who are graduating tonight will never forget that even the pioneers who settled this great West never showed greater courage and fortitude than the mothers and fathers of this generation during the last few years.

Facing Facts

But, I warn you there is still another kind of courage that this generation will have to show. I mean courage in facing the fact that many different adjustments will have to be made in the future.

We must realize that the old pioneers days with their hardships and their opportunities for sudden overnight riches have gone, and we must have courage to have done and find the right way of making these adjustments. When the present economic depression is over we will never again be quite the same America. We will have a new and finer America.

To me one of the inspiring things of recent years has been the courage of the common people. All of us have seen the life work of men swept away, and we have seen them go doggedly back to the tasks of building their lives over. And the wonderment to me is not that we have had so much completed, but that we have had so little.

I believe that one of the outstanding needs at this country is for our leaders, both public and private, to take unto themselves some of the courage of the common people.

There are too many prophets today preaching the doctrine of despair. One such gentleman, even went so far as to say, "there are millions of Americans now alive who will never again be self-supporting." Such a doctrine might have a grain of truth in it if we were living in an old country whose resources had been exhausted. But, in a young and rich country such as ours, your own horse-sense will tell you that such a doctrine is sheer nonsense.

We have no place in America today for quitters. Quitters did not make Kansas. They did not make America. You all know the story of the one great instance in the Old Testament when the quitters won out. It is the story of the children of Israel the first time they approached the promised land.

You will remember how Moses sent a party of scouts to spy it out, they came back with the report that it was a good land, flowing with milk and honey. One of them, Caleb, said, "Let's go up at once and possess it, for we are well able to overcome it." But the quitters said, "The enemy is too great to be overcome, and there are giants among them."

The Israelites took the word of the quitters. They turned aside and for forty years they wandered in the wilderness and became a lost generation. We want no wanderings in the wilderness. We want no lost generation in America. We have the courage, the will, the enterprise, and the wisdom, to overcome our difficulties, giants though they may be.

Picks on Giants

And before I leave this story, let me remind you of one more thing about Caleb. When the Israelites came again to the promised land, and the land was being apportioned out, what did Caleb ask for?

He asked for the mountain country where the giants were.

That is the victorious spirit in every age and people, whether young or old. That is the spirit in which our forefathers saw America as another promised land, and that is the spirit that will make it so and keep it so.

Now the first victory for you to win, the first victory for all of us to win, is to get back our belief in our own future, and in the future of America.

This is the sane and true view. For after every depression the American people have created higher levels of opportunity and progress. Think of the undreamed new things that have come since the last depression. We have by no means reached the end of that process. America is still our promised land if we have the qualities of heart and head to make it so.

Hope of People

Such is the hope that is giving millions of city people, now out of work or on makeshift jobs, and millions of men and women on our farms the courage and strength to hold on through the lean and bitter years.

Courage is one of those things by which men and women live. If you have read your histories you will have learned that human progress is largely a record of overcoming difficulties. The history of your own state is resplendent with that fact. Coronado came this way. Doniphan's expedition passed less than 100 miles from here, and the first lap of the Oregon trail lay through Kansas.

But the uses of courage are not limited to the spectacular things. We all need it in our ordinary living to keep our mental and spiritual fibers strong.

You of the graduating class of Attica are fortunate, for you have grown up in the small town, or on a farm, where duties and responsibilities are a part of your normal round of life. That is the blessing of the small towns and the farms. They provide tasks which develop in their young people a sense of responsibility.

You will need an even greater sense of responsibility than your forebears. Your lives will be lived in closer association with others.

One of these responsibilities, perhaps the greatest you will have to face, is that of citizenship. And the youth movement in politics today is like a breath of fresh air in a stuffy, smelly room. We must reform our ranks and go forward. We need your vision. We need your questioning, eag r minds. Do not think that you can leave the duties of citizenship to others.

Do not forget that under a popular government you have a choice whether you will be among the governing or the governed. In an autocratic form of government the people have no choices. They are governed.

But the American idea is that all should participate in the business of government, and as Governor of this state I can tell you that every official task is made easier when the people themselves take an intelligent interest and assume their full responsibilities. You can make no greater contribution than by resolving to meet these duties of citizenship and then carrying out that resolve.

If you are to meet this responsibility as it should be met you must bring certain qualifications to the job of citizenship. You must have a public viewpoint as well as a personal viewpoint. Many persons in this country too long forgot the warning "that civic virtue can never flourish in a generation that thinks only of itself."

That warning stands as true for your generation as it did for the generation of recent years which failed to heed it and got us in so much trouble. You will have many difficult problems in your community, in your state, and the nation, which can only be solved rightly if they are solved by a view point that considers first the greatest good for the greatest number. It will be your task to see that blessings of our civilization are more widely distributed.

For that high purpose you will need honesty and character. Above here is character more important than in a popular form of government, where the people themselves can determine the kind of government they will have. So, whenever an easy-going attitude is taken toward the importance of character, it should be a danger signal to you. If you will stop and think, you might have found out, today, many danger signals now. Your parents used to hear, more often than you hear today, such remarks as these: "He is a man of principle," or "his word is as good as his bond."

For generations these virtues have meant something that other people could depend on. And what is more important, these qualities gave stability to community life and to the nation.

Quotes Root

Now members of the graduating class, I told you earlier in my talk that I was sure these "principles" had only endured because they were fundamentally right and true and because they applied to every generation.

As Elihu Root, has said:

"There are truisms, but it at any time they should be forgotten (and they seem to be sometimes) we should remember that they are also essentials; we should extol them and insist upon them and preach them, for they are part of the gospel of human freedom."

The reason I wanted to talk them over with you tonight was because now as in every depression or time of calamity there is a tendency to overthrow the fundamental truths of life, that have been learned from long experience.

First Test

You, young men and women, are leaving your school tonight and one of the tests of your education will be your ability to separate the wheat from the chaff. As you go through life one of your duties as educated citizens will be to keep your minds open to the possible needs for a change in government and meet our rapidly changing life.

You will also have to see that no basic changes are made until the people of your community really understand what it is they are trying to change.

You will meet the urgings of some who would solve your difficulties by changing everything, of course, whose veneration for the past causes them to be shocked at the thought of changing anything. Change is only dangerous when people do not really understand what it is they are trying to change.

There is no detailed diagram or road map that I can leave to guide you on your journey through life, but I can give you this counsel upon which you can rely—"Keep your heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life."

Governor Landon's Principles

Self-Reliance

MR. KALTENBORN: Governor, what do you think is the greatest need of the American people as they face tomorrow?

GOVERNOR LANDON: I believe the greatest need of the American people today is a revival of confidence, confidence in themselves and in their ability to work out their own problems.

We find in almost every depression there are a certain percentage of people who lose confidence in themselves.

They begin to doubt whether they are really capable of getting out of their difficulties, and it is usually at this point that someone comes along with the idea of finding a superman and turning it all over to him.—From Mr. Kaltenborn's radio interview with Governor Landon, on May 8.

THE answer of Governor Landon to Mr. Kaltenborn's question here sums up the whole case of AMERICAN INDIVIDUALISM versus the doctrine of European dictators—a doctrine which has been transplanted to these shores and has found root in Rooseveltian New Dealism.

The Governor has, like a cool surgeon, cut squarely to the root of the disease that is eating at the vitals of American life—LACK OF CONFIDENCE.

This lack of confidence is caused by an overdose of quack "remedies" of "supermen"—"Brain-Trusters" and autocratic know-it-alls—who believe that by suppressing all healthy and rugged individualism among American citizens and substituting the imported totalitarian theories of schoolboy "supermen" like Tugwell, Wallace, Ickes, Hopkins and Frankfurter the country can be WHIPPED into prosperity.

A decline in morale and possible national bankruptcy have been the answer to these moonstruck visionaries.

ALL GROUP PROSPERITY IN AMERICA IS ABSOLUTELY DEPENDENT ON INDIVIDUAL INITIATIVE.

As Governor Landon points out, the present need is "A REVIVAL OF CONFIDENCE IN THEMSELVES AND IN THEIR ABILITY TO WORK OUT THEIR OWN PROBLEMS."

It is this fundamental American trait—CONFIDENCE IN SELF—that Governor Landon proposes to restore by lifting the burden of taxes and the threat of financial confiscation from the shoulders of business and the workingman.

There was never any excuse for undermining this confidence. It was a sinister political move for indefinite power during a national emergency.

GOVERNOR LANDON seeks to restore the confidence of the citizen in himself—THE AMERICAN WAY.

For that reason he is—and WILL BE—the one answer to the Raw Deal's NATIONAL DEFEATISM.

today preaching the doctrines of despair.

"One such gentleman even went so far as to say: 'There are millions of Americans now alive who never again will be self-supporting.'"

To this statement the governor replied:

"Such a doctrine might have a grain of truth in it if we were living in an old country whose resources had been exhausted. But, in a young and rich country such as ours, your own horse-sense will tell you that such a doctrine is sheer nonsense."

The Governor commended to American youth the courage of its parents during the years of the depression, saying:

"To me, one of the inspiring things of recent years has been the courage of the common people.

"All of us have seen the life work of men swept away, and we have seen them go doggedly back to the task of building their lives over.

"And the wonder to me is not that we have had so much completed, but that we have had so little."

Turning to the graduating class, the Governor said:

"Now the first victory for you to win, the first victory for all of us to win, is to get back our belief in our own future and in the future of America.

HAILS YOUTH MOVEMENT

"After every depression the American people have created higher levels of opportunity and progress. Think of the undreamed new things that have come since the last depression. We have by no means reached the end of that process.

"America is still our promised land if we have the qualities of heart and head to make it so."

The governor described the youth movement in politics today as "like a breath of fresh air in a stuffy, smelly room."

He warned that in every depression "there is a tendency to overthrow the fundamental truths of life that have been learned from long experience.

Declaring that one of the tests of education is "your ability to separate the wheat from the chaff, Governor Landon said:

"You will meet the urgings of some who would solve your difficulties by changing everything, of others whose veneration for the past causes them to be shocked at the thought of changing anything.

"Change is only dangerous when people do not really understand what it is they are trying to change."

GREETED AT WICHITA

On his way here from Topeka, Governor Landon was greeted by a crowd of about 1200 when his plane landed at the Wichita airport to initiate publicity for the Kansas Diamond Jubilee Exposition to be held here next October. He sent airmail letters to the governors of the 47 other states, inviting them to attend the exposition.

As the governor alighted from a giant TWA air liner he was escorted by a Wichita reception committee to a prairie schooner drawn by a yoke of oxen. To depict the advance in transportation, the governor, letters in hand, rode across the field in the schooner to the side of the plane which will deliver the invitations.

In a brief speech Governor Landon reminded the nation that the prosperity of the industrial east is interwoven with the prosperity of farm states such as Kansas. The ceremonies were broadcast.

Storm Shakes Zep, Scares Passengers

Aboard the Zeppelin Hindenburg En Route to America, May 19 (AP)—Swinging south of a storm area over the Atlantic, the big Zeppelin Hindenburg picked up speed today with a possibility of reaching New York late tonight on its second flight from Germany.

Except for one sudden squall yesterday, which tilted the airship's nose, broke dishes and frightened some passengers, the voyage proceeded with smooth monotony.

Capt. Ernst Lehmann, in command of the craft, told the passengers at dinner the unusual weather conditions being encountered on the flight involved no danger.

The Hindenburg passed south of the depressed area last night while still 1380 nautical miles from New York, raised 164 miles against head winds to 58 knots.

Naval communications reported in New York the Hindenburg's position at midnight, E. S. T., was 40.10 degrees north latitude, 50.10 west longitude, about 1080 miles out of New York.

TODAY'S Boon-Doggle

The Works Progress Administration has authorized the expenditure of $12,136 of Federal funds to "erect a school building in the city of Vilas, Col, by completing the original plans."

That phrase "city of Vilas," of course, is rank flattery, the total population of this village being 175 persons; but the project, nevertheless, serves to illustrate the value of community planning.

Because someone in Vilas had the forethought to draft an "original plan"—which cost very little—the Works Progress Administration had the generosity to contribute the money, and the citizens of Vilas thus learned at first hand the virtues of a planned economy.

Twilight Sleep

Reveals Birth Sorrow

'COWARDS' FLAYED

Out of her own bitter experience, an East Boston mother today voiced condemnation of the use of "twilight sleep" in childbirth—agreeing with the doctor who introduced it in America.

At the American Medical Association convention in Kansas City, Mo., last week, Dr. Rudolph Holmes of Chicago, who brought "twilight sleep" here from Germany, apologized for introducing it and said:

"I didn't know what I was doing. I have found out since. We must protest vigorously against making the human mother an animated mask, without any mentality."

"Pay for Escape"

Dr. Gertrude Neilsen of Oklahoma City, Okla., mother of three children, led a dramatic attack against the use of "twilight sleep," or scopolamine, declaring of the mother in general:

"If she is carried through delivery in an unconscious state, she is deprived of the experience of giving birth to her child, and in some cases will pay for this escape from reality by nervous disorders.

"Certainly none will wish to be relieved of pain at the risk of harm to her baby."

Mrs. Adele Rossi of 85 Leyden street, East Boston, mother of a five-year-old boy, Andrew, and a two-year-old girl, Adele, knows the harmful effects of "twilight sleep," from grim experience, she said today.

Little Andrew was born under "twilight sleep," she said, but so badly damaged was her health that Mrs. Rossi refused to have the drug for the birth of her girl.

"Women are cowards who are not willing to do God's bidding naturally," said Mrs. Rossi.

"Before my son was born I was a very healthy person, thoroughly normal. There was no reason for me to take something to induce childbirth, yet it was given to me.

"Cowards!"

"When I awakened, I remembered nothing of what had happened and I was so sick I didn't care to see my baby.

"You can be sure that when I gave birth to my daughter, I did it as God wanted me to—naturally, with no artificial aids.

"If God intended that childbirth should not be attended by some pain He would have willed it so. Women are cowards.

"I speak not alone from my own experience, but from that of my friends, who have also tried twilight sleep.

"My mother had 13 children. My grandmother had a large family. They knew nothing of the new fandangles in childbirth, yet their children have all been healthy and strong.

"My two children are fine. The boy did not suffer because of the artificial inducement, but I did. And I am not over it yet," she concluded.

ADELE — MRS. ROSSI — ANDREW

Mrs. Adele Rossi and her two children, Andrew and Adele. The boy was born under "twilight sleep," the girl without. Both are well and happy.

CLERK FINDS LOST MOTHER

After what he had accomplished today, the mere matter of finding a needle in a haystack ought to be something that William Ross, Missing Persons Bureau chief, could do in his sleep.

For Ross has ended a search for a "lost" mother and two "lost" sisters that Morris Schnare, Melbourne, Australia, plantation owner, has pressed since shortly after the World War.

Schnare wrote to Boston police a short time ago that he served in the Royal Canadian air forces during the war and had gone to Australia afterwards. He wanted to find his mother and two sisters, he said.

But the girls had married and the mother remarried, and the only thing that Schnare knew was that they had last lived—and only "sometime," at that—somewhere near Boston.

She Remembers

It took a lot of patience and a lot of questionnaires and a lot of just plain work, but Ross finally got in touch with a Mrs. Charles Brooks of Medford, who remembered the Schnares had gone to California.

Today, however, Ross wrote to the Australian that if he would send a letter to 8936 St. Michael's avenue, Southgate, Cal., and address it to Mrs. E. M. Mason, his mother would get it.

Or Schnare could write to Mrs. Blanche Thompson, or Mrs. Florence Wagner, the sisters, Ross added.

Release Lad From Bathroom

Youthful Arthur J. Broder, son of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Broder of Roxbury, went to attend a birthday party of his cousin, Beverly Bunnin. This was in Seaver street. He decided that a little cool water would cool him off. Arthur could not open the bathroom door. He gave an alarm. The fire department was called. No ladder—no axes—no spikes were used. A fireman did some tricks with a bunch of keys. Arthur was well washed and not scared when the firemen released him.

FOLEY Joins Vice DRIVE

POLICE TO AID N. Y. CAMPAIGN

District Attorney William J. Foley stepped into the vice ring probe today and the Boston Evening American learned that he and Boston police will cooperate in a nation-wide vice cleanup to be directed from New York.

The district attorney, after talking over the telephone with New York officials, went into secret conference with Police Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney and acting Police Superintendent Edward W. Fallon at police headquarters.

None of the conferees would disclose what went on at the meeting, but when the district attorney left it was understood that he would go to New York tonight and sit in with the New York district attorney and prosecutors from Albany, N. Y., Philadelphia and other cities.

Get Gunmen

The Boston ring is believed to have a close hook-up with leaders of the New York ring who are now on trial in that city.

It has long been a report that when the New York ring needed gunmen not too well known in Manhattan, they called on Boston thugs to go to New York and intimidate independent vice "bookers."

statement that his followers "feel like I feel about the old parties," and that a third party would be formed "as soon as the opportunity presents itself."

Chairman Bell warned that the room would be emptied if there were any further demonstrations.

Representative Hoffman (R.-Mich.) contended Dr. Townsend "was sailing under false colors in condemning the old parties and at the same time laying plans for a third party."

Dr. Townsend denied this, saying the old parties "are the only avenue of expression open to us at this time."

AFTER MILLIONS

The witness also denied there was any deceit in urging Townsendites to support candidates of both parties, while condemning those parties and their policies.

"I do," Dr. Townsend replied firmly when asked if he believed his plan would provide leisure for the aged.

He rose to his feet to explain the phrase, in one of his letters, "There might be millions in it."

"We plan to get those millions," Dr. Townsend said. "It takes millions to promote a plan of this kind."

Townsend said "the unfriendly attitude" of the committee led him to believe the committee might try to impound the organization's funds. This belief, he said, explained his recent appeal for a "defense fund."

"It has appeared to me from the beginning that this committee has been more interested in besmirching the character of people than in learning the truth or merit of the Townsend movement," he said.

"MODERN G. WASHINGTON"

Dr. Townsend said questioning of Clements, former national secretary, had been directed to give the impression that "I am a dishonest man."

He said the people "have a pretty good opinion of me," but he added he was not always "the soft spoken, mild mannered old chap he is often described to be."

He conceded he would like to be classed with Washington and Lincoln, with whom he is ranked in Townsend literature.

"I like that company," Dr. Townsend said.

He said he had received about $68,000 from the organization but had spent much of it for expenses and in promoting the movement.

Sullivan read into the record another letter written by Dr. Townsend, from Butte, Mont., Sept. 4, 1935, to Clements, suggesting a third party.

More than 100 people, many of them elderly, were in the caucus room. Among spectators were Townsendites who arrived Sunday from California in the "Townsend Caravan," bearing petitions urging Congress to enact the Townsend Plan.

QUINCY SHIFTS 11 POLICEMEN

Chief of Police John J. Avery of Quincy, who took office two weeks ago, today announced his first shakeup in the department, which affects 11 patrolmen and officers.

Lieutenant William Ferrazzi, who was promoted when Chief Avery took office, has been transferred to the detective division as its head. Patrolman Mullins, a motorcycle officer, moves up as head of the accident division, vacated by Ferrazzi. Patrolman John Daniels will take over the motorcycle job vacated by Mullin.

Eight patrolmen have been shifted from their previous beats to new ones.

Chief Avery announced that other shakeups will follow in his efforts to bring the department to a high standard of efficiency.

Others transferred in the shakeup that affects 10 per cent of the force are:

Michael Connolly, Jerome Connelly, George Ogle, Laurence Broderick, Everett Reid, Joseph Ferguson, George Wyman, to a radio prowl car, and Alexander McDonald, appointed to the force Friday, who will fill in on nights off.

RADIO COUPLE ON HONEYMOON

Two well-known Boston radio performers, Adrian O'Brien and Mrs. Alice O'Leary, known professionally as Alice Day, were honeymooning in Cincinnati today, according to a message received from that city.

The wedding ceremony was performed by Municipal Judge William E. Handley.

O'Brien is known as a double for Morton Downey, tenor, and started singing here over WNAC. In 1931 he was signed by NBC for sustaining programs at a salary said to have been $12,000 a year. He was formerly a gas station attendant in Dorchester.

Mrs. O'Leary in 1934 was declared regional winner in a nation-wide contest conducted by stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Early this year she went to the huge Cincinnati station, WLW, to sing on sustaining programs, and was shortly followed by O'Brien, who has also been engaged by that station, the largest in the world.

Mrs. O'Leary won a divorce here from Arthur J. O'Leary of Malden in 1933.

Can't Find His $1000; Girl Held

Worcester, May 19—John B. Nelson, 33, reported to police today that he couldn't find his father's $1000.

He said he had it when he went out driving last night and didn't have it when he arrived home, and the only thing he could think of that might have happened to it was that he gave a girl a ride in his car.

Police arrested Odell Wilson, 30, a dancer, and charged her with the larceny of the $1,000, but she said she didn't know anything about it. Nelson said she was the girl who had been riding with him.

Nelson was carrying the money around for safe-keeping. He and his father planned to buy a farm in Lancaster with it, he said.

CURLEY ORDERS COLLEGE PROBE

Charges of improper application of trust funds of Massachusetts State College at Amherst will be heard tomorrow afternoon in Governor Curley's office. College trustees have been summoned.

As the result of the last state audit of the college books, charges were made that money out of two $5000 trust funds, designated for educational purposes, was used in an unauthorized manner.

Items concerned include of $5.20 for lunches and dinners for the college president's chauffeur, one of $38.50 for payment of the president's dues at Boston City Club, one of $20.75 for lunches and out-of-state travel for the president's acting chauffeur, and one of $21.30 to a concern for hanging curtains in the president's home.

Thugs Beat Couple, Steal Ring, Cash

Two thugs invaded Queensberry street, Back Bay, today and, after beating a man and woman, escaped with $50 and a diamond ring valued at $350.

Victims were Joseph McMenem of Queensberry street and Miss Marion Sears of Thornton street, Roxbury.

They were near the apartment building in which McMenem lives when they were set upon by two men, who leaped at them from a stairway.

McMenem was knocked down and brutally kicked and punched. Miss Sears was also knocked down and a handbag containing $50 was wrested from her.

After pummeling McMenem, the thugs started to flee. One of them returned and forced McMenem to hand over a diamond ring.

LANDON HAILS G.O.P. HARMONY DINNER HERE

A personal message from Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas and the appearance at the head table of George Barnes, one of the defeated unpledged candidates for delegate to the G. O. P. National Convention, were the highlights of an enthusiastic testimonial dinner tendered to Representative Charles W. Hedges of Quincy by his Republican colleagues in the legislature at the Hotel Touraine.

Present also at the head table were Superior Court Clerk George C. P. Olsson of Brockton, who teamed up with Hedges in the 12th district, and as Langdon supporters, were elected convention delegates over Barnes and National Committeeman John Richardson.

After stating that the dinner was "a proper tribute not only to the individuals who made possible the recent victory of which we are so justly proud, but to the cause of militant good government," the Landon message continued:

"The Republican Party is but a vehicle of expression of governmental belief and policy, after all, is but a means to the important end that the dominating ideas of our American system of government be safeguarded and perpetuated.

"The Republican party must offer progressive idealism as well as the retention of our time-proven traditions and worth to justify its continued existence.

"We must have a restoration of confidence in our government and the task of reviving this confidence is one of many obligations of our party.

"The splendid vote of confidence given the Landon delegates by the state of Massachusetts is a challenge to us all.

"I am stirred by the knowledge that leaders like yourselves see in my record real promise for the future, and am grateful for the confidence your action is affecting this victory indicates."

George Barnes was lauded by speakers for his sportsmanship and was heartily applauded when he declared that he was there to do honor to "Charlie Hedges, a good fellow, and long-time friend of mine." He said:

"You all favor the candidacy of Governor Landon and I am cordially in sympathy," he said. "If he is the man to defeat President Roosevelt and his umbrella man Farley, I am with him."

Congressman Joseph Martin of North Attleboro, stated as next national committeeman, and former Governor Alvan T. Fuller, sent regrets.

Arthur J. Hedges, father of the representative, was a guest. Other speakers included former Lieutenant Governor Gaspar G. Bacon, Governor's Councillor Winfield A. Schuster, President Edwin F. Parker of the Landon Press Club, President Edwin F. Parker of the Landon Press Club of Massachusetts, Representative Christian Herter, and Representative Philip Sherman of Somerville. Representative Philip Barnett of New Bedford was toastmaster.

From Crooner to "Courageous Man"

Rudy Vallee, playing at the Metropolitan Theater, who is paying Fay Webb Vallee $100 per week under a separation agreement, sent a wreath of talisman roses to the home of James Albert Gallagher, 30, of Prospect street, Cambridge, alleged to have committed suicide rather than pay alimony. The wreath bore the inscription: "Courageous Man." Marie Fortier, a neighbor, is shown with the wreath.

SECURITY ACT VOTE

Landon Aids Move in Kansas

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas is going to give the people of that state the opportunity of changing their constitution to participate in the federal Social Security Act, if they desire it.

In a letter to former Lieutenant Governor Gaspar G. Bacon of Massachusetts, the leading candidate for the Republican nomination for President states he agrees with the objectives of the social security legislation, but not with its created machinery.

But as governor, he declares, he would not "presume to block a consideration by the state legislature of our willingness as a state to participate."

So, he reveals, he will call a special session of the Kansas legislature.

"Thank you for your letter of the 9th commenting on my radio interview.

"I don't know of many New Deal measures that I favored. I have co-operated with all of them in an attempt to make them work, as far as my responsibility to the people of Kansas is concerned, whether I agreed with them or not and whether an emergency or not.

"Yes, I am going to call a special session of the legislature to submit a constitutional amendment to the people of Kansas so that they may take part in this program if the legislature desires to do so and they desire to ratify the amendment.

"I hope we Republicans may be able to work out something better. But in the meantime I don't conceive it to be my responsibility as Governor to presume to block a consideration by the State legislature of our willingness as a State to participate.

"I did the same thing with the bank guaranty act. I was the only Governor to oppose this legislation when it was pending in Congress, which I did in a number of speeches. I opposed it after it went through, and Kansas has a higher percentage of State banks which have not joined the F. I. D. C. than any other state.

"I was attacked for this by the Democrats in my campaign for re-election, and just a few weeks ago Senator McGill, at the Democratic rally at Wichita, renewed the attack according to the clipping which I enclose. But I recommended to the special session of the Legislature that a law be passed permitting our State banks to join the F. I. D. C. if they wished to do so.

"So with the social security legislation. I agree with its objectives, but disagree with the machinery created. Most of our Republican congressmen and senators in the State endorsed the Agricultural Adjustment Administration; I didn't, and am enclosing a clipping of my expressions along this line. I said it was the only farm program we had before us and was entitled to a fair trial."

Groups Seek New Marine Hospital

Members of th governing board of the Boston Maritime Association and the Massachusetts Fisheries Association tody avisited the Chelsea sMrine hospital.

The purpose of the visit and tour of the grounds and buildings by the joint group was to make recommendations to Congress for a new hospital in this area.

Frank S. Davis of the Maritime Association and Dr. John S. Trask, medical director of the hospital, escorted the visitors throughout the premises.

Ferry Crippled; 300 Delayed

With her motive power crippled when a bolt on the paddle wheel rocker arm sheared off, the Narrow Gauge ferry Brewster drifted helplessly in Boston harbor for almost half an hour today.

The boat, carrying about 300 passengers, broke down shortly after leaving the East Boston slip.

Tugs went to the assistance of the disabled craft, but members of the crew effected temporary repairs.

Italian Census Totals 42,438,104

Rome, May 19 (AP)—Italy's population, as of the quinquennial census of April 21, was announced today at 42,438,104—plus soldiers and workers in Africa. A total of which was withheld for "military reasons."

The census showed an increase of about 2,000,000 in the last five years.

Pickthall, Author, Dies

St. Ives, Cornwall, Eng., May 19 (AP)—Marmaduke William Pickthall, 61, a successful novelist for more than 30 years, died today. Among his novels are "Pot-au-Feu," "With the Turk in War Time," "The House of War," "As Others See Us" and "The Meaning of the Glorious Koran."

HOOVER DENIES ANTI-LANDON ACTIVITIES

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Washington, May 19 (US)—Herbert Hoover has formally withdrawn as a possible candidate for President and thereby has left the battle at Cleveland to be waged largely between Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, and the forces of Colonel Frank Knox and former Senator George H. Moses.

Moses, commanding the delegates pledged to the Chicago publisher, was suspected in Washington of being the foremost strategist in a campaign to weld Hoover, Knox and Senator Borah into a joint drive for Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, or Senator Steiwer, of Oregon.

In his statement of absolute withdrawal, made at Chicago, Mr. Hoover indicated that he would be unwilling to enter into any coalition for or against any candidate. He declared:

"And get this straight. I am not opposing any of the candidates. My concern is with principles."

By his statement of withdrawal, Mr. Hoover was recognized as having perceptibly clarified the Republican presidential situation. Several of Mr. Hoover's staunchest friends and public supporters had been eager to join the campaign for Governor Landon which has since swelled to overwhelming proportions in public sentiment.

The friends of Mr. Hoover, said to be convinced that the Republican hope of victory lies in the nomination of the Kansas governor, include Patrick J. Hurley, of Oklahoma, and Charles Francis Adams, who were his secretary of war and secretary of the navy. J. Reuben Clark, the famous authority on international law and antagonist of American entrance into the League court, had already declared for Landon.

LANDON IN N. J.

While the news of Mr. Hoover's withdrawal raced through Washington with clarifying effect, two other developments interested the national political leaders.

1—Reports came that Landon will win a sweeping victory in New Jersey and that 32 more delegates will there be added to the ever-mounting roll for the Kansan.

2—President Edwin Parker of the Landon-for-President Club at Boston reported that at least 172 of the 30 New England Republican delegates have now expressed their decided preference for Governor Landon.

9000 PROPERTY HOLDERS OWE CITY TAXES

Many prominent persons and scores of well known corporations and institutions are listed among the 9000 property owners whose 1934 taxes have not been paid in full, it was revealed today by City Collector John F. Doherty.

Delay in most instances, where large properties are involved, is due to requests of owners and trustees for tax abatements, Doherty said.

Among those listed are the Fellows of Harvard College, Boston & Albany Railroad, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., Columbian National Life Insurance, Emerson College of Oratory, Massachusetts Hospital Life Insurance Company and Perkins Institute for the Blind.

TRUSTEES LISTED

Charles F. Adams, Allan Forbes, Howard Stockton, John Adams and Edward W. Atkinson are listed as trustees of the Riverbank Improvement Trust, owners of the property at 669-675 Washington street, upon which $1749 remains unpaid on a total assessment of $7049.

Trustees of the Boston Real Estate Trust, which owes $1082 on a tax bill of $3082 on property at 112-114 Summer street, are George L. De Blois, Charles F. Adams, Philip Dexter, Robert H. Gardiner and E. Bohler Welch.

Arthur G. Mitton, Roger Amory, and Samuel Pillsbury are listed as trustees of the Chauncy Bedford Associates, owners of properties at 77-79 Chauncy street, upon which a tax bill of $2405 is due; of Bedford street land upon which a levy of $3172 is due; of property at 67 Chauncy street and 37-41 Bedford street, upon which $7856 is due and of property at 69-75 Chauncy street upon which $4194 is due.

Of a total 1934 assessment of $5936 officials of the Museum of Fine Arts still owe the city $371, according to Collector Doherty's records.

B. & A. OWES $46,000

The Federal National Bank, now defunct, owes $278 in taxes on the property at 192-194 Milk street.

The Fifty Associates owe taxes on 21 pieces of property in the downtown section in amounts ranging from $100 to $1800.

The Fellows of Harvard College are listed as owing taxes on land and buildings in nine sections of downtown Boston, the levies ranging from $148 to $3264.

Congressman George Holden Tinkham is listed among the trustees for Natalie H. Lovejoy, who owe $63 taxes on the land and building at 18 Chambers street, rear, West End.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Inc., is listed as owing $27,825 on their property at Massachusetts and Huntington avenues.

DEATH INQUEST DELAYED WEEK

After only four of 24 sworn witnesses had been heard behind closed doors in Malden court today, the inquest into the death of Mrs. Lillian M. Fowler, 52-year-old Malden widow, was continued until next Tuesday.

Mrs. Fowler was fatally wounded in her Pleasant street apartment early May 3, apparently as she was handing his service revolver to Patrolman Francis J. Downing of Malden, who was leaving after a call.

Patrolman Downing was off duty and had dropped into the apartment, he said, after finishing his tour of duty and while on the way home.

Most of the 24 witnesses sworn at the inquest were Malden and Metropolitan police officers, but included in the number was a sister of the dead woman, Mrs. Ruby [illegible] and a sister-in-law, Mrs. [illegible] Conrad, both of New [illegible]

[illegible] re among those requested the courtroom by Special Robert W. Hill of Salem, id he would hear each wit- private.

A [illegible]stant District Attorney Edward A. Viola represented the government. Also present was an attorney, George Stanley Hayney, to whom Mrs. Fowler declared on her deathbed the shooting was accidental.

N. E. Rail Strike Ballots Counted

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen began today counting ballots of employes of three New England railroads to determine whether a strike should be called.

Employes polled included firemen and hostlers of the Boston & Maine, Maine Central and New Haven. Union officials said the poll resulted from refusal of the roads to employ more than one man on a Diesel-powered engine.

HARBOR TIP WINS $25 NEWS AWARD

NEWS TIP EDITOR

The dramatic plunge of a car into Boston harbor. Two men drowned. A third heroically rescued.

A Medford chauffeur immediately telephoned the news to the Boston Evening American and thus is recipient of this week's $25 prize in the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser News Tip Contest.

The third prize of $5 was split two ways this week.

RESCUE PICTURE WINS

Three dollars goes to a Lynn photographer for an exclusive picture of a dramatic rescue of an aged man in a fire.

The remaining two dollars is forwarded to a Boston operator for relaying the news of an elevator crash in a down-town building.

Receiving $1 prizes are a Wilmington girl for reporting the shooting of a boy; a Fitchburg citizen who phoned in the news of a $40,000 lumber yard fire; a Belmont man who relayed the [illegible]ry of a blast in Belmont; a Cambridge man for reporting an accident in Lexington, and a Boston business man who contacted the news-tip editor relative to the rescue of a plane at sea.

OTHERS GET DOLLARS

Others to receive $1 awards include a Roxbury laborer who gave a tip on the assault of a Reading woman; a Milton man who reported the crash; a Roxbury telephone operator for giving information relative to the removal of prisoners from Charlestown to Norfolk state prison; an elevator operator who reported a Cambridge raid.

HUNTED PLANE LINKED TO N.E. OPERATOR

The widely-sought mystery plane suspected of border smuggling was identified by local customs officers today as a New England ship being piloted by a Vermont man.

All New England airports were warned to be on watch for the plane, which took off from Holmes airport in the Bronx on Sunday, after the pilot slugged a New York "flying policeman."

The plane had been at the Wellesley-Natick airport for a week before its appearance in New York, customs agents established.

LEFT SUNDAY

It took off from there at 1 a. m. last Sunday. As it did not appear at the Holmes field until nine hours later, the federal men suspect an intermediate landing was made at some sequestered airfield being used as a base for smuggling operations.

Customs men believe the plane is being used to smuggle American alcohol into Canada.

The ship is a single-motored three-seater. It was originally privately owned by an Albany man, but purchased more than a year ago by Charles "Chuck" O'Connor of the Barnes Air Service, Westfield. O'Connor sold it last December to a New England man in whose name it was last registered.

LEFT AT FIELD

A week ago Sunday at 4 p. m., the plane appeared at the Wellesley-Natick airport and the pilot requested that it be serviced.

He made his contacts with Fletcher Ingalls, of Cottage street, Wellesley, the owner of the field, and "Buster" Boot, of Weston road, Wellesley, the mechanic attendant. Then he disappeared.

The plane remained at the field a week. At midnight of last Saturday the pilot telephoned Ingalls and requested that it be checked and warmed up and at 1 o'clock he took off.

Boot and Ingalls said the man kept his face well covered with helmet and goggles and that they would be unable positively to identify him.

Legion Body To Talk Help To Disabled

MRS. CHARLES W. ANTHONY

The annual Area "A" conference of the American Legion Rehabilitation Committee and auxiliary will take place Friday and Saturday at the Hotel Bond, Hartford.

Leading legionaires from all New England States and officials of all veterans hospitals throughout New England will attend.

Speakers will include Mrs. Charles W. Anthony, of Eden Park, R. I., who is directing the work of the American Legion Auxiliary among the New England disabled veterans.

Attorney Daniel J. Doherty, of Woburn, former national vice commander of the Legion and at present national chairman of the Rehabilitation Committee will also talk.

The two-day session will start at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

Morgan Dock Visit Causes Scramble

New York, May 19 (INS)—J. P. Morgan, accompanied by his son, Junius Spencer Morgan, and a retinue of secretaries and bodyguards, turned the docking of the Aquitania today into a police and official scramble equalled only by the arrival of the President.

The space at the foot of the gangplank, normally reserved for customs and other officials, was roped off for the Morgan party and the official group had to go aboard over a gangplank lowered from the third class passage.

Mr. Morgan was on hand to greet a party of a dozen or more executives of the Imperial Chemical Industries of England, coming to the United States for a combined business and pleasure trip.

Italian Political Prisoners Freed

Rome, May 19 (INS)—Italy's prison islands, tiny dots in the Tyrrhenian Sea, today gave up 488 political prisoners who had been banished without open trial.

The sudden amnesty was interpreted as a government gesture to win support from former anti-Fascists, and reports are current that exiled opponents of the regime will shortly be readmitted to Italy.

EDWARDS SURE HE CAN'T SAVE 20,000 JOBS

As he left for Washington today by airplane, Works Progress Administrator Paul Edwards said there was no hope of averting the scheduled cut of 20,000 men and women from the federal relief rolls between now and June 30.

Edwards is to apply for $6,000,000 to carry Massachusetts projects until that date, but he said this was merely a formality.

"We will get that money, all right, but it doesn't mean any change in the plan to reduce the number of workers on the rolls," he said. "We have 115,000 on the rolls now, but will cut to 100,000 by June 1 and to 95,000 by the end of June.

"This $6,000,000 is for wages alone. It is slightly more than is absolutely necessary, but we want to make sure we have enough.

"That is not the real purpose of this trip. I am to meet with the national administrator and other state administrators to discuss the possibility of changing the employment rules, if the Works Progress Administration is to continue after June 30.

"The rule has been that only persons on the welfare rolls between May 1 and Nov. 1 could be employed on Federal projects. This was rescinded by me only in the flood areas. There has been quite a lot of opposition to this rule and it is one of the main things to be taken up at the conference in Washington."

CURLEY TO ASK JUDGES' LAW

Defeated in his first move to force the retirement of judges reaching the age of 70, Governor Curley intends to seek an amendment to the State constitution in the event that he is unable to persuade the Legislature to adopt some plan of either voluntary or compulsory retirement for jurists.

Apparently stalemated in his first attempt for an equitable retirement plan by the ruling of the State Supreme Court that the Ballaire was invalid, it was intimated today that the Governor was disposed to accept the plan cited by Supreme Court Justice Henry T. Lummus as a basis for a workable law.

In conference with the Judiciary Committee, the Governor scathingly denounced the failure of the Legislature to produce the necessary legislation.

He discussed the Lummus plan and while not committing himself, indicated that he would not be opposed to it.

It was indicated that the Judiciary Committee, nine of whom are Democrats and seven Democrats would report against any proposed legislation along these lines at this session and that the Legislature would accept the report.

Should the Governor attempt to secure an amendment, it would be necessary to call a constitutional convention which would require two years.

Mother Will Leave Quads in Incubator

Passaic, N. J., May 19 (INS)—Mrs. Emil Kasper, mother of New Jersey's quadruplets, will go home to her husband tomorrow and leave her babies in incubators at St. Mary's Hospital.

Mexico to Build Schools on Border

Mexico City, May 19 (AP)—Mexico intends to build enough schools along the border, the Education Department announced today, so that Mexican children need not go to the United States to study.

On orders from President Lazaro Cardenas, engineers and architects have the capital for Laredo and Matamoros to start the building program.

Another Jew Slain, Curfew Tightened

Jerusalem, May 19 (AP)—A Jew was found shot to death today in the old city of Jerusalem—the Fifth person to die since the renewal last Saturday of Arab anti-Jewish disorders.

The government tightened its restrictions in an effort to put an end to the Holy City violence, ordering the curfew to start at 7 p. m., instead of 8 p. m., clearing the streets each night.

Wrong Spot

Palo Alto, Cal., May 19 (AP)—Dr. M. E. Rumwell went into his garage one night and found a stork perched on his automobile.

Next day an eight-pound son was born to his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Arnold Rumwell.

JABBERYWOCKY-1936

'TWAS ickes, and the wallaces
Were ballyhooing to the mobs,
Boondoggled were the policies
And farleyed were the jobs.

"Beware the New Deal Jabberwock
The tax that mounts, the schemes that lose
The economic poppycock,
And all the I. O. U.s!"

The voter took his vote in hand
And long and patiently he sought
For some degree of sanity
In what the Brain-Trust thought;

But while this problem filled his head
The Jabberwock, of New Deal Fame,
Came morgenthauing through the red
And tugwelled as it came;

Frankfurtively in moley glee
It fiercely hopkinsed all about,
But with his vote the voter smote
And knocked the dern thing out!

"And didst thou sock the Jabberwock,
That mumbo-jumbo jamborie?
Well, that's a break and no mistake,
Let's chortle—you and me!"

'Twas ickes, and the wallaces
Were ballyhooing to the mobs,
Boondoggled were the policies
And farleyed were the jobs!

Buy Votes? My, No! Just Options 'Em

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

That's a serious charge to make unless you have proof. Then it's more serious.

G-MEN GUNS BEAT TEMPO FOR BANDITS' EXIT MARCH

DILLINGER GANG DRAGGED OUT ONE BY ONE

(This is the third in a series of exclusive articles disclosing the means by which G-men exterminated the nation's public enemies.)

By WIN BROOKS

One by one, members of the Dillinger and the Karpis-Barker gangs, hounded into their separate earths like so many foxes, were dragged forth to be captured or killed, as they themselves chose.

There is not now and never has been any shoot-to-kill order in the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice.

"Strike swiftly and surely," was the J. Edgar Hoover rule covering all raids.

No mobster was killed unless he first made a move to kill in an effort to avoid arrest. That is true, from Dillinger down, of the anti-social group Hoover designated "yellow rats."

One by one for a while, they chose to be killed, not realizing until too late that they were up against marksmanship surer than they encountered in resistance to municipal police.

From March 30, 1934, up to November 27, 1934—less than eight months—guns of the G-Men beat a quick tempo for the exit march of public enemies.

Gene Green, Dillinger trigger man, was the first to fall. In St. Paul, he pulled a pistol on the federal officers, who demanded his surrender, and another burial was held.

Terrific Battle

Then came the Little Bohemia, Wis., raid with Dillinger, John Hamilton, Baby Face Nelson and Homer Van Meter making their escape.

Nelson, knowing the mob was doomed, quit it. Dillinger, Hamilton and Van Meter went into hiding in Illinois, the special agents close on their heels.

On April 23, although not a line about it appeared in the newspapers, the G-men encountered Dillinger, Hamilton and Van Meter in South St. Paul, Ill., and a terrific gun fight ensued.

Agents Samuel E. Cowley and Herman E. Hollis were certain that at least one of the trio had been mortally wounded, but as the gangster car escaped they could not be sure.

Later, though police reported him in various sections of the country, no trace was found of Hamilton, and the G-men were convinced he had been slain in the South St. Paul gun fight.

Clyde Barrow and his cigar-smoking moll, Bonnie Parker, died with their boots on in Gibsland, La., in mid-May, after the special agents had tipped Louisiana peace officers as to their whereabouts, and in mid-July the big coup came off at Chicago with Wooden Gun John Dillinger neatly laid out for the undertaker.

Polly Hamilton, also with Dillinger that night of July 22 when they walked out of the North Side Biograph Theater, saw Melvin Purvis light his cigar as the signal, saw three men move from the curbstone, suspected the plant.

Dillinger Dies

She whispered into Dillinger's ear and he whipped a .38 automatic out of his coat pocket. Hollis, Cowley and Captain O'Neil of the East Chicago, Ind., police fired at about the same time, Hollis a split second ahead of the others. And that was the end of John Dillinger.

In the St. Paul apartment of the late Gene Green, Dillinger and Van Meter had often been entertained and Van Meter had once shot his way out of a federal trap there, nearly killing Agent R. C. Coulter.

The Van Meter trail, after the South St. Paul gunfight, headed for St. Paul. There the G-men and police were in close cooperation, and on August 23 Van Meter walked into a baited trap.

He refused to surrender, yanked a gun and fired two shots—and was cut down by 50 machine gun slugs. From what was left of him the G-men determined he had resorted to fingerprint mutilation and a face-lifting job in a futile effort to avoid detection.

Van Meter was the Dillinger gang contact and finger-man, and a very expert machine-gunner himself, so he probably appreciated the expert job done on himself. He began his criminal career with train robbery and never stopped at murder.

The tip that led to Van Meter was also productive of the evidence G-men needed to prove the death of Hamilton.

A few days after Van Meter had fallen, a group of special agents led by E. J. Connelley—destined to succeed Cowley a few weeks later, dug Hamilton's body out of a shallow grave at Oswego, Ill.

8 Months' Record

"Three finger John" had three federal bullets in his body. After that running gun fight at South St. Paul Dillinger and Van Meter had buried him and attempted to destroy the remains with lye.

Richetti was captured, Floyd slain in October, Nelson killed in November. The eight months record read: Killed, Green, Hamilton, Barrow, Parker, Dillinger, Van Meter, Floyd and Nelson; captured, and sentenced to death, Richetti.

So Dillinger and the last of his mob were run to earth.

The arrest of "Doc" Barker, the killing of his mother and brother, left of the Karpis-Barker mob leaders only Volney Davis, Harry Campbell and Karpis still at large.

Davis had once been taken, but had escaped.

Out of habit, he yanked a gun and gave battle, taking shelter. In the first exchange of shots, he recalled the fate of the others who had attempted to fight it out with the federal agents. He tossed up his gun and surrendered, pleading for his life. They gave him his life and a cell in which to spend it.

The violent deaths of their confederates were preying on the minds of the other hunted public enemies by this time. All had crawled into their holes, the big gang raids and big-time kidnapings had come to an end.

Th G-men knew this, knew also that for week after week during early 1936 they had been close to the capture of the bespectacled Karpis, master mind in crime.

Karpis' name stood at the head of the imaginary public enemy list. He was, in the public mind, Public Enemy No. 1, although the federal bureau never rated these enemies.

Gangland knew Karpis as "Old Creepy." It was a good name for him. He had eyes that gave his enemies the creeps and he moved like a phantom on tiptoe.

Karpis had been moving from city to city in quick jumps as the G-men applied the heat to the chase. His safest means of transportation was in a car driven by himself. He couldn't use the railroads, the steamer lines or the public planes because they were too closely watched and he could not control their movements in the event he was spotted.

Hoover theorized that Karpis from time to time would be forced to buy an automobile for transportation purposes and that he would need a fast car for get-aways. The chances were small that he would run the risk of police apprehension in small crime by stealing a machine, especially as he was known to have plenty of money, the loot of kidnapings and bank robberies.

Auto Man Aids

Circulars bearing pictures and descriptions of Karpis were thoroughly distributed among auto dealers in all parts of the country and especially in the deep south where the agents had been close to him several times.

In New Orleans late last month, Karpis visited an auto dealer and discussed with Clarence Pucheau, a salesman, the features of an expensive car. Pucheau had seen the Karpis circulars. He studied carefully the homely face of his customer, "Edward O'Hara," and made a mental note of scars that had been left by an amateurish job of face lifting.

The next day the G-men were again on the Karpis trail and the house where "Edward O'Hara" was staying was placed under an intense secret surveillance.

"O'Hara" was studied closely without suspecting for a moment he was being watched. His companion was identified as Fred Hunter, an alleged mail robber known to have been on the fringe of the Karpis-Barker mob. The G-men were convinced.

At Washington, Hoover was notified of hourly developments and when the identification appeared positive he plucked the Karpis fingerprints and records out of the bureau files and flew to Shushan airport, New Orleans, in a department plane.

Within an hour, the plans for capture were effected over a diagram of "O'Hara's" apartment house and its immediate surroundings. A picked army of G-men, heavily armed, sped to the scene.

The "watch" reported "O'Hara" within the house; the house was surrounded by agents in parked cars and at other points of vantage that would not arouse suspicion.

Fears G-Men

After a brief wait, "O'Hara," Hunter and the latter's girl walked out of the house and started for "O'Hara's" parked machine. The bureau director and his men surrounded them.

"All right, Karpis, put up your hands," was Hoover's order.

"Old Creepy" who had tip-toed without a scratch through gun duels in bank and mail robberies, took a quick glance around, made a wise, snap decision, and raised his hands. Hunter and the girl friend followed suit.

Positive identification was established through the bureau fingerprint records, although Karpis made no effort to deny he was the fugitive Public Enemy No. 1.

He freely admitted having lived for months in mortal fear that at any turn of the road he would encounter G-men who would kill him.

Respect, based upon fear, had been won by the Federal agents from the most desperate of the underworld.

Gypsy Night Benefit at Pops Aids Hospital Fund

By BETTY ALDEN

CASUAL PASSERSBY were greatly surprised last evening to see a band of brightly clad gypsy bucks and their dark skinned maidens encamped on the steps of Symphony Hall . . .

Close scrutiny revealed that they were not the real McCoy, however, for they were selling flowers and chances, instead of the usual baskets and handwork, and had forgotten their conventional trade mark, the tambourine . . .

FRANCES WILLIAMS

They were using little tin sand pails to catch the tinkling coins which they received for their wares . . . and had a grand time juggling the buckets up and down and trying to make the money inside sound as much as possible . . . for, like all of us, they enjoyed that wealthy feeling which comes with the possession of a large amount of change . . .

Their exultation was only temporary, however, for they soon had to go inside the hall to join the main gypsy encampment and turn their coins into the fund for the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital . . . the beneficiary of the Gypsy Night Pops . . .

Once inside they felt very much at home for the big auditorium was decorated as a gypsy palace might look, if gypsies ever have palaces, and Arthur Fiedler conducted his orchestra in a full program of wild, plaintive Romany music . . .

Among the most realistic of these picturesque figures were Lottie Denny, Mary Frost and Frances Gardiner, whose dark hair and eyes made them better suited to the role of gypsy maidens . . . though Mrs. Edward Francis, Ellen Pierce Cheever, Caroline Hunnewell, Mrs. Ted Chase and Polly Lovering, all very blonde, were very pretty in their scarlet bandannas and vivid Romany skirts and blouses.

Devie Hamlen, who is dark enough to carry the part very realistically, donned his outfit and set out to sell everybody in the hall a chance on the Queen Mary round trip, and so convinced each of his customers that he alone held the lucky number, that when the results of the drawing were announced, Devie ducked and was nowhere to be found . . .

Stacey Holmes and Bob Livermore had a resistance-proof sales line all worked out and Horace Soule and David Cheever, Jr., seemed to be doing a rushing business . . .

Socialites Don Their Prettiest Finery

AMONG THE SOCIALITES who donned their prettiest evening finery and took a table or two to lend their support to this worthy venture, were Mrs. A. L. West Movius, who attended in a party with her brother-in-law and sister, the William Tudor Gardiners, and Mr. and Mrs. John Tuckerman . . . Mr. Gardiner's concession to Gypsy night was in his mulberry colored velveteen jacket, while his wife was as gay as any Romany lass in a vivid flowered silk gown and long flowing cape . . .

Sue Ayer expressed the Gypsy in her by wearing a black and scarlet print with a long emerald green taffeta cape and a corsage of scarlet hydrangeas not in the usual place, but pinned on her cape where the hood joins it at the back of her neck

ROBERT LIVERMORE, JR. CAROLINE T. HUNNEWELL

CAROLINE T. HUNNEWELL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hunnewell of Chestnut street, and Robert Livermore, Jr., of Topsfield were among those wearing gypsy costumes at the Pops benefit last night.

. . . She was with Gwen Livermore, who looked as tiny and feminine as ever in a silver cloth gown with a midnight blue chiffon cape . . .

Wendy Morison's black India print attracted lots of attention and her mother, Mrs. Sam Morison, was very summery in a flowered chiffon with a quilted white coat . . .

The Robert Hallowells, Sr. and Jr., were all present, getting a kick out of watching all their young Milton friends in their Bohemian garb . . . Mrs. Horace Soule, Jr., and Caroline Hunnewell went about their flower selling job on tip toe as they couldn't get accustomed to flat-soled beach shoes on Symphony's marble floors . . .

Mrs. Thomas M. Claflin wore a soft filmy outfit of fine black and white figured chiffon with long panels from the shoulders of geranium pink . . .

Gown of Candy Striped Taffeta

THE NEW LETTUCE GREEN fashioned Mrs. J. A. Lowell Blake's finely pleated gown, and Mrs. George Parkman Denny, chairman of the committee, chose candy striped taffeta of black and white, made with puff sleeves and a corsage of black sheer flowers on the bodice . . .

One of the most individual evening outfits we noticed was worn by Judith Andress . . . made of turquoise and white taffeta in wide diagonal stripes, with a high length caped jacket of plain turquoise . . .

Still others in the audience were Barbara Bremer, Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Whiteside, Dr. and Mrs. Warren Sisson, Mrs. Dunbar Lockwod, with her young daughters, Alice Burrage with Cornelis Pentecost, Dr. and Mrs. Eliot C. Cutler, Mrs. Robert Homans, Olive Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Foster, Jr., Ramelle Cochrane, Mrs. William Amory, Edith Parker, Anne Torbert and Mrs. James Hunnewell . . .

* * *

And speaking of Pops, tomorrow evening will find many more socialites wending their way to Symphony Hall for Radcliffe Night . . . when prominent alumnae and undergraduates will have a chance to contribute toward the regional scholarship fund of the Boston Radcliffe Club . . .

Among the well known subscribers for this benefit are Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes, Mrs. Richard Ames of Wayland, Mrs. George Lincoln Dow of Cambridge, Miss Lucy Lowell, Mrs. Somers H. Sturgis, Mrs. Albert M. Kales, Mrs. John F. Crocker, Mrs. Percy Atherton and Mrs. Richard W. Thorpe . . .

IT'S LUNCHEON TIME AT THE ACE OF CLUBS' ANNUAL "DAY-AWAY" PARTY

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

ELIZABETH MULLEN MARY DACEY

THE SALEM COUNTRY CLUB provided an ideal setting for the Ace of Clubs to end a successful social season in a blaze of color. It was the members' annual "day-away" and they turned out in large numbers to enjoy it. This group was snapped as they enjoyed luncheon on the verandah of the club. They are Elizabeth Mullen of Winchester, Mary Dacey of Newton, Mrs. Russell Riley of Boston, Mrs. Henry Fitzpatrick of Belmont and Mrs. Warren Rowe of Cambridge.

MRS. RUSSELL RILEY MRS. HENRY FITZPATRICK MRS. WARREN ROWE

Ace of Clubs Picnic Colorful Event

THE weather man rolled an "eleven" for the Ace of Clubs yesterday and the swanky picnic from morning till evening proved a "natural."

The pine-covered knolls of the Salem Country Club proved an ideal setting . . . the luncheon was delicious and the bridge prizes were worthwhile souvenirs of the day's activities.

Mrs. Charles Donovan

The only fly in the ointment was the heat which prevented some golf-minded club members from enjoying a round or two but Retta Dee of Lynn saw to it that her guests had an enjoyable time at her jolly cocktail party before luncheon.

Retta left her tees and brogues at home and made a striking appearance in grey crepe with a large brimmed hat of dubonnet baku. In her party were Mrs. Russell Riley, whose burgundy red crepe was topped with a white crepe jacket . . . Dorothy Poor of Swampscott, who joins bridal ranks next month, was smart in Persian print and Nancy Dewire, whose blue wool suit was topped with dahlia sheer.

Mrs. Edmund J. Butler was the day's efficient hostess . . . her navy and white satin costume was smart . . . gardenias and hat of quilted taffeta completing the ensemble. Her guest was Mrs. Francis Good, in a cool ensemble of knife-pleated black sheer.

Very happy over the day's success were Mrs. Frederic Sheehan, who has been the leader in all of the club's celebrations during its silver anniversary. Her pale blue shantung frock was topped with an alpaca jacket . . . a coral ascot binding a contrasting color note.

Mrs. Sheehan presided at the long table of officers and executive board members. Grouped about the fine-banked board were Mrs. Charles Hamilton, whose navy crepe was sprinkled with yellow flowers . . . Alice Fitzpatrick . . . white organdie trimming her print frock and Mrs. William B. Burke, whose navy sheer sported a gay taffeta acket.

Among Guests

Mrs. Joseph A. Barry, Jr., of West Roxbury and her mother, Mrs. M. F. Foley of Brookline brought a pair of guests . . . Lucille O'Malley, who wore a cluster of apple blossoms with her navy lace, and Mrs. James Hennessey of Wellesley, distinctive in her sports ensemble of aqua and May wine . . .

Some members arrived so late for luncheon . . . they resorted to eating on the porch. Mrs. Henry Fitzpatrick was a late comer and her brown-and-white polka-dot frock was topped with a contrasting jacket . . . Elizabeth Mullen brought Mrs. Warren Rowe, whose flowered print was very effective with her dark coloring and her large black hat . . . Catherine Crimmings, whose wine red shirtwaist frock contrasted with her lingering Florida tan and Mary Dacey, who wore royal blue accessories with her dark rose frock.

Mrs. Francis T. Jantzen of Brookline spent the afternoon shuffling cards with her guests, Mrs. H. L. Smith and Mrs. F. J. Burns. Mrs. Warren Clapp, Mrs. Burke's guest, brought along her knitting . . . no mischief for idle hands in this case.

The day's bridge scores and prizes were a source of trouble to Mrs. Thomas O'Shea of Peabody, bridge chairman, whose attractive light gray costume suit was edged with fox . . . Marion McCarthy and Mrs. William McCarthy handled the luncheon reservations . . . Marion's angerine crepe was most effective with her dark hair . . . and Mrs. McCarthy's ensemble of black sheer was individual with its pleated cape and large brimmed hat of rough straw.

Luncheon Trio

Another luncheon trio were Mrs. Frazier O'Leary, Jr., whose navy jacket frock had revers of starched pique . . . Elinor Crosby in a puffed sleeved number of blue print and Katherine Cronin, a figured brown crepe effective with her titian hair.

Younger members of the club celebrating the year's close were Frances Ellis, whose grey tweed was effectively combined with navy accessories . . . Virginia Manning in a flowered crepe and Mrs. John N. Cunningham, whose salmon crepe shirtwaist frock had a hand-drawn plaid.

Doing their bit for the party's success were Mrs. Vincent Greene, Eleanor Monahan Shay and Catherine Monahan. Mrs. Greene wore a violet flowered sheer . . . Eleanor was well-dressed in luggage tan print, and Catherine wore a grey blouse beneath her navy suit collared in fox.

Mrs. George McLaughlin . . . her navy net frock was very good-looking . . . played hostess to a group of friends who enjoyed themselves tremendously . . .

Bridge Party At Academy

A bridge party for the benefit of Jeanne D'Arc Academy in Milton will be held in the gymnasium of the academy, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. George Sullivan of Milton is chairman and assisting her is Mrs. Matthew McDonald.

Bridge chairman of the day is Mrs. Francis J. O'Hara. Her aides are Mrs. C. L. Rugo, Mrs. T. B. Sullivan, May Donerty and . . . J. C. McCauldutf.

An attractive table, laden with cake and goodies of all sorts, is being planned by Mrs. J. Frank Scannell, Mrs. S. S. Duff, Mrs. F. J. Phelan and Mrs. D. J. Doherty.

Mrs. Edward Wallace chairmans the prize committee which includes Mrs. Arthur Corbett, Mrs. L. Bayles Reilly, Mrs. F. J. O'Brien and Mrs. J. Henry Curran.

Marycliffe Fashion Show

Marycliffe does its bit of spring entertaining at a fashion show and bridge, tomorrow evening at the Brunswick Casino.

Busy with arrangements for a display of summer fashions are Eleanor Farrell of Belmont, chairman of the benefit, Agnes Bixby, Eleanor Hill, Eileen Kennedy and Charlotte Rutter.

Emmanuel '31 Class in Reunion

Chalk up another on the score of class reunions. The last group to be heard from is the Emmanuel College class of 1931 arranging a reunion at Ten Acres, in Wayland, tomorrow evening.

Dorothea Forrest of Somerville is head of the get-together committee. On her committee are Ann Dargin of Dorchester, Carolyn Noonan of Cambridge, Ann Grady of Brookline, Gertrude Murdock of Everett and Alice Conroy of Brookline.

Two of the class' recently-engaged members, Helen Martineau of Brookline and Dorothy Groden of Cambridge, are members of the committee, which also includes Mary Mackin of Winthrop, Collette Murphy of Dorchester, Sally Sheedy of Dedham and Catherine Smith of Jamaica Plain.

Books in Review -:- By Miles Alden

CAESAR'S MANTLE—By Ferdinand Mainzer. Viking.

Rich in detail, fairly throbbing with life, this book is history related by a master story-teller.

With the skill of a highly competent artist, Dr. Mainzer peoples the vast Roman stage with living beings, puts flesh and blood beneath the flowing togas, makes even the obscure legionaries spring into life, and tells, as gracefully as if it were fiction, what happened between that fateful Ides of March and the day when Octavius became Augustus, the first emperor.

Historical lore of the end of the Roman Republic is enriched by a book like this, written for the general reader and yet as painstaking in its facts and detail as the most carefully annotated history.

The author wrote only after a long soaking-up of the facts of that epoch, but evidently he took as much care over making his story readable as he did to make it true.

Places of importance are localized in the present as well as in the past, thus immeasurably increasing the impression of things happening in a real world.

Dr. Mainzer does no aim to "debunk" history. Whether he interprets Octavius correctly is a disputable question, but it may be said that the youth he portrays is more like the man Augustus than the self-seeking Octavius of the standard histories.

Caesar's mantle fell on this grand-nephew, whom he adopted as his son. Historians admit Octavius' own mother and his closest advisers urged him to take the easier road and renounce his heritage. Octavius would have none of that. Pitting his frail self against the Warrior Antony and other aspirants to supreme power, he could but resort to intrigue to win what Caesar bequeathed him. One day he became Imperator, and there Dr. Mainzer's story ends. It is with a feeling of regret that the average reader will put down a book that has breathed life into those stalwart figures whose names are immortal.

The author is a retired Berlin physician who read deeply in the classics and the historical sources, and made many visits to the scenes of his story. The translation is by Eden and Cedar Paul who have made available so many other important books.

Luncheon Guest

Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald of Michigan will be the guest of honor at a luncheon to be given at the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts tomorrow afternoon.

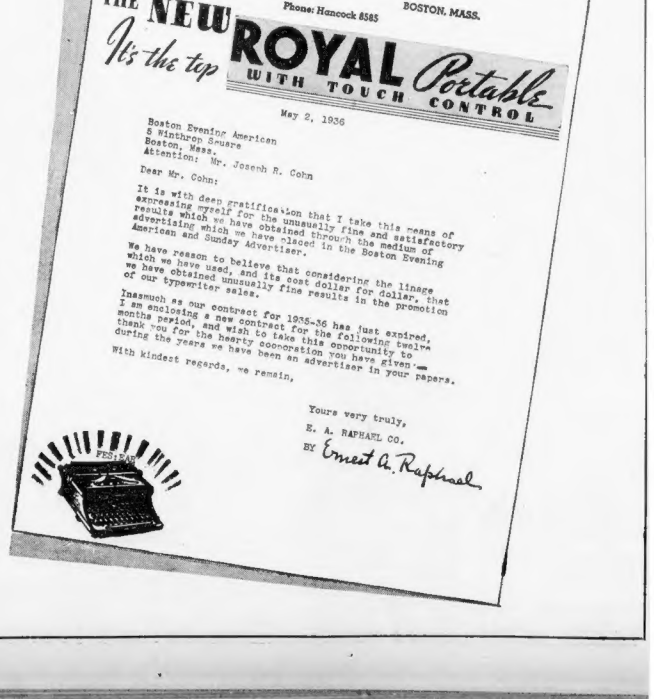
Following the luncheon the governor will peak on "The Success of a Republican Governor in Administering State Affairs."

Mrs. J. Hasbrouck LeFevre is in charge of the affair and among those who have been invited to be guests at the head table are, Ex-Governor Frank G. Allen, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Miss Sybil H. Holmes, Mr. Robert W. Bushnell, Mrs. Henry D. Tudor, Representative Christian A. Herter.

Society Notes

MRS. FRANKSFORD SUMNER and Mrs. Horace P. Moulton (Gretta Sumner) recently cooperated in giving a surprise pantry shower for Miss Ellen Eastman of Newton Centre. The affair was held at Mrs. Sumner's home in Weston and many friends were present. Mrs. Moulton will be one of Miss Eastman's bridesmaids in her forthcoming wedding to Frederick Arnold of West Roxbury.

"Unusually fine and satisfactory results"



CHURCHES AID REDS BATTLE CONSTITUTION, SAYS PASTOR

This is the second of a series of articles by the Rev. Rex A. Mitchell, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Paso Robles, California, giving, in terse, emphatic language, the facts about the menace of Communism in America and the Communist-inspired attacks on the Constitution.

By THE REV. REX ARTHUR MITCHELL

To Americans, the Constitution is the highest possible expression of freedom ever enjoyed by man. Under it, each citizen is a king, every conscience is free, and every religious belief is protected. Our individual rights are guaranteed and the greatest possible personal initiative and progress encouraged.

Our Constitution was born in troublesome times. It has stood through storms. Today it must stand secure through the confidence, trust and sacrifice of the citizens of this free nation.

To barter the Constitution for unproven theories, ancient despotism or Communistic Utopian dreams is treason of the worst stripe. We must trust that there are enough patriots with faith in God, justice and freedom to continue these blessings to our posterity.

Patriotism and support of the Constitution are needed in these days when the ugly head of Communism and Collectivism is being seen in so many circles of our society.

End Mad Rush

It is not a change from our constitutional government which is needed in 1936. The trouble is we have had too much change already. We need to return from our mad rush toward collectivism and centralization of power with its demoralizing tax burden to the simplicity of individual rights as guaranteed by this sacred document.

Yes, I said sacred! Did not Dr. Franklin request that the framers of the Constitution remember:

"In the beginning of the contest with Britain, when we were sensible of danger, we had daily prayers in this room for Divine protection. Our prayers, sir, were heard; and they were graciously answered.

"To that kind Providence we owe this happy opportunity of consulting in peace on the means of establishing our future national felicity. And have we now forgotten this powerful Friend or do we imagine we no longer need His assistance? I have lived, sir, a long time; and the longer I live the more convincing proofs I see of this truth, that God governs in the affairs of men."

The materialistic, Bible-denying radicals in pulpits join hands with the radical Christ-hating agitators of earth in a demand for a change in our government.

The radical tells us he wants Communism and therefore works for a change. The social advocates in pulpits demand a change, leaving it to the Communist to tell us what it shall be.

Americans, you should fear these deceivers in high places worse than Radicals. The Constitution destroyed means dictatorship of the proletariat, which would destroy all religious freedom and reduce American free born citizens to serfdom, exactly as the outcome has been in Russia.

Chains Only Gains

They say "you have nothing to lose but your chains." But the fact is, you have nothing to gain but Communism's chains. They say, "there is no unemployment in Russia"; but the fact is, no man in Russia has a job, but every man is on the chain gang and a serf to the most heartless capitalistic state and slave-driving machine ever organized by the anti-God forces of earth.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." America be watchful lest in the confusion of our day you cry for bread and through deception are given a stone; lest you cry for economic freedom and receive serfdom.

The Constitution has proven its worth and deserves the protection of every Christian, every American, every patriot.

Not long ago, the Reds of Chicago entered suit for permit to stage a demonstration. The sponsors of the demonstration, besides Communist groups, included Professor Robert Morss Lovett and the Rev. Harold Kingsley.

Communism is anti-American, anti-God, anti-Constitutional! What right has hell to stage a demonstration in Heaven? What right have atheists to stage a demonstration at a prayer meeting? What right has the Third International to stage a demonstration on free soil? What right has Moscow to demonstrate in Washington?

What right has the Communistic manifesto to parade on Constitutional soil? What right has Karl Marx to parade before Jesus Christ? What right have class hatred, strikes, riots and revolution to parade before brotherly love, equality, peace and industry? What right has the Red flag to fly over the land George Washington fought to make free?

The man who has any part with the Red parade is a menace to our Constitution. He is more dangerous to American freedom than the most deadly disease is to our health.

Facing Crisis

Americans, go modern—quarantine him!

The professor or preacher who joins into this hellish business is a snake in the grass, a traitor to his country, a destroyer of the Constitution and an enemy of the American home.

Churches which teach a change in our Constitution and profit system for the co-operative plan are helping to accomplish the aims of the Communist Party by advancing the class struggle which can only end in revolution. Such churches are tools in the hands of the greatest fiends on earth. Many do not realize what they are doing. Others are honestly trying to alleviate suffering but they are blind to the true cause of our problem.

We are facing a crisis in our American history when great religious bodies join in with radicals to scrap our Constitution.

Our hope lies in an awakened citizenry that will arise and cast out our foes from within and without.

Thank God, many churches and church people are seeing the subversive plot of the Communist leaders in church and school circles. The majority of our preachers and laymen are against these insidious teachings.

Patriotic, God-fearing Christians should arise as one man and drive the Communist mongers from American pulpits and centers of learning.

IRON FIST ENDS MEXICO STRIKE

Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press

Mexico City, May 19—A strike of 48,000 employes of the Mexican National Railways collapsed today under counteraction from President Cardenas' administration.

Leaders of the strikers, who walked out yesterday, demanding higher wages, ordered the workers back to their posts at noon today after the government declared the strike unjustified and "non-existent."

A personal appeal by the President, who cited "unmistakable proofs of my intention to fight for the betterment of the working classes," was believed to have gone a long way toward ending swiftly the short-lived strike.

The government's central conciliation and arbitration board warned the workers if they failed to return within 24 hours, they would lose all rights under collective labor contracts and the railway management would be free to hire new workers.

A further illustration of the government's firm handling of the problem was given in a war department order to commanders of all military zones to see that the anti-strike decision was enforced.

Hit, Run Crash nets Lynn Man 2 Months

Found guilty of leaving the scene of a cacident after he truck injured two girls, Bernard D. McIsaac, 25, of Chatham street, Lynn, was sentenced in Lynn court today to serve two months in the House of Correction. He was fined $20 for dangerous driving.

McIsaac was alleged to have driven a truck which on April 11 struck Evelyn Hart, 15, of Park avenue, Lynn, and Mary Higgins, 15, of Cloverly street, Lynn. The former is still in a serious condition.

$15,000 Fire Loss

Estimates completed today fixed at $15,000 the damage done by fire in a transformer at the Newton Center plant of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company. Oil in the transformer's cooling system was ignited by a short circuit.

City Dock Crews To Study New Pact

Three thousand Boston longshoremen will attend a meeting tomorrow night in Meridian Hall, East Boston, to consider a wage and working agreement with the steamship operators and contracting stevedores.

The old agreement expired last September.

Mis-Trusty

Los Angeles, May 19 (AP)—Charles Johnson, Negro, was made a trusty at the county jail and soon he walked off, taking flight by the hitch-hike route.

But he didn't hike far. He thumbed a ride with Deputy Sheriff Mike Matsoff, who recognized him.

Coal Deliveries Face City Probe

Investigation of coal deliveries to city departments will get under way at the City Council chamber this afternoon at 2:30.

Many department heads will appear at the hearing. Charges of delivery of an inferior grade of fuel will be aired.

Boy Flees Hospital And State House

When Thomas Jordan, 10, of Shepard street, Lynn, became tired of confinement today at Children's Hospital, he started a bit of excitement around town—and at last reports police were still looking for him.

He boarded a Park street subway car, where the attention of Miss Veronica E. Doyle, stenographer in the State Department of Child Guardianship, was directed to him because of his nervous actions.

Miss Doyle decided he was a runaway and persuaded him to accompany her to the State House. At the child guardianship office, however, he scuttled away again, with John Farrington, an office boy, in pursuit.

John captured Tom several blocks away and in a battel returned him to the office.

But when all backs were turned, Tommy was away again.

John J. Brennan Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for John J. Brennan, deputy sheriff of the Suffolk County jail, who died Saturday after a sudden heart attack, will be conducted tomorrow morning from the residence of his brother, Joseph H., at 104 Colbourne road, Brighton. A high mass will be celebrated at 9 o'clock at St. Gabriel's Monastery, Washington street, Brighton.

Mr. Brennan was well known in Charlestown, where his late parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Brennan, resided for more than 25 years.

Interment will be at Holy Cross Cemetery in Malden.

Koussevitzky Sails For Alpine Respite

Lt. Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, with his wife and niece, Miss Olga Naumoff, will leave New York today on the Manhattan, en route to Europe.

They will visit the Bavarian Alps and Paris.

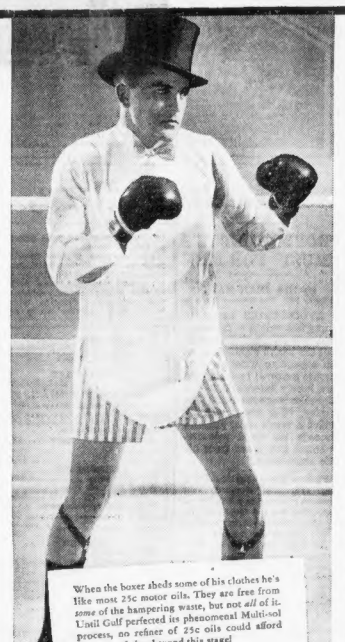
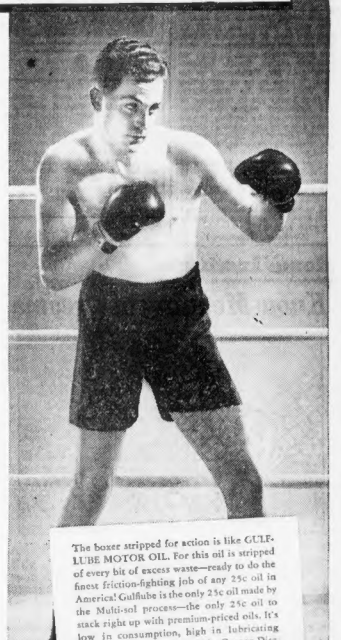
GET GULFLUBE—It's "Stripped for action"!

A boxer clad in full evening dress would be fighting under a bad handicap. Cheap, poorly refined motor oils are just as hampered. They can't fight friction efficiently because they're laden down with excess wax—sludge, carbon and gum-forming elements.



When the boxer sheds some of his clothes he's like most 25c motor oils. They are free from some of the hampering waste, but not all of it. Until Gulf perfected its phenomenal Multi-sol process, no refiner of 25c oils could afford to carry refining beyond this stage!



The boxer stripped for action is like GULFLUBE MOTOR OIL. For this oil is stripped of every bit of excess waste—ready to do the finest friction-fighting job of any 25c oil in America! Gulflube is the only 25c oil made by the Multi-sol process—the only 25c oil to stack right up with premium-priced oils. It's low in consumption, high in lubricating value. Try it—at the Sign of the Orange Disc.

Luxury Model

By May Christie

"I don't know much about the clothes business, but I do know that you have great talent, and a following of clients, and it's a pity to tie yourself up with other people on what is a comparatively small salary, and will doubtless involve a great deal of work on your part."

"But what am I to do, Mr. Vandaveer? I have to live. I have no capital."

"That's what I was coming to. Didn't I hear you tell Lorraine one evening that you would like to have a shop of your own, where you could create American styles for American women? And hasn't there been something in the newspapers in the past year, lauding and encouraging the idea of getting away from Paris, and the French fashions?"

She couldn't mean . . . . She drew a deep, excited breath.

"I have such faith in your ability, Luana, that I would be willing to finance you in your own establishment."

Seeing her eyes widen, he added quickly, in case she were under any misapprehension as to the nature of his offer, for a girl as good-looking as Luana couldn't be a fool: "It would be a plain business arrangement between us, the contract to be drawn up by my lawyer."

"You mean—we'd be—sort of partners?" she breathed.

He smiled.

"Exactly. I should advance the necessary capital, you to give me fifty-per-cent of the profits of the undertaking. My bookkeeper will take care of the books. With labor as cheap as it is just now, plus your undoubted creative ability and desire for hard work, I am sure we would make a great success of it."

"You mean it, Mr. Vandaveer? You really mean it?" She was as impulsive and as excited as a child.

"Certainly I mean it. I think there's a great leaning at the moment toward American fashions. Apart from everything else, with the depreciation of the dollar, people simply can't afford to buy abroad. Imported clothes are expensive. The women who used to go to Paris to buy their clothes can do so no longer. Therefore there's no reason why you shouldn't make a real success."

Luana could hardly eat her breakfast, she was so thrilled.

Jimmy would be delighted. He hated her to be a model. Jimmy had a great belief in her talent. She would justify his belief in her, and that of this kind friend.

"Of course you understand that our partnership must be kept an absolute secret. That's imperative," said Mr. Vandaveer as he rose. "I have to be at my office on Wall Street by nine-thirty, so that I may get to the floor of the Exchange before the commencement of the trading. If you come down to my office at three-thirty, Luana, I'll have my lawyer there to draw up the contract."

She packed her bags after he had gone, talking happily to Chou-Chou the while.

"We're going to have our own establishment, darling. We're going to be set up in business. Isn't that grand? Don't you feel proud of your minou?"

Congress Chooses Vacation Fashions

YOU'LL MAKE that all-important first impression a particularly grand one if you descend on your chosen vacation spot in exactly the right suit. You'll mow down the white-linen-coat contingent if your summer dance frock is the smooth thing it should be! And with that start given you by fashion, you should do rather well by yourself, my girl.

To that end, here are two Fashion Congress selections which give all for glamour and don't take much in the way of vacation money.

Below, Miss Margaret Wright models a sporty suit with smart detail, made of a brand new fabric called Kaffir cloth. Nearly a sheer, it keeps its suity character, comes in unbelievably pretty colors, and—what's more—it resists water stains, battles wrinkles, and dry cleanses like a charm. Brown, tan, grey, wine, beige, gold and lilac. And under fourteen dollars!

For men who seek a sane and practical way of ridding themselves of unwanted weight, Ida Jean Kain has prepared a new leaflet, "Man-Size Reducing Menus." Charm Of Clever Hostess

Classes in Entertaining

By MARTHA LEE

ENTERTAINING easily and successfully is an art as the accomplished hostess knows. It means much detail work ahead of time including carefully laid plans and the efficient execution of them.

In this way everything will run smoothly so the hostess may be unruffled and enjoy her own party as much as the guests.

Knowing from the hundreds of requests that come to us that there are many details that beset the woman who is preparing to receive guests for dinner, give a luncheon for visiting relatives, plan a party for daughters' young crowd, or a wedding reception for a dear friend, we've planned a most interesting series of classes on the etiquette of entertaining, including all the occasions which arise in the average home.

These classes will be held at the time of our regular cooking school, that is Tuesday evening, May 26, at 6:30 p. m., and Wednesday afternoon, May 27, at 2 p. m., at the auditorium at 5 Winthrop square, Boston. The series will not be as long as the regular cooking classes. It will run for five consecutive weeks through June 23 and 24.

The type of food will be suggester and prepared and the classes will include the setting of the table with the proper silver, china, glassware, linen and flowers, and the etiquette of serving the food. To make it more practical the luncheon or dinner will be served to women selected from the audience. In this way, table service may be more successfully demonstrated. The guests will be chosen from the attendance list, so that you will want to be sure to register immediately, not only for this, but also to assure you of a seat as a record class is expected for this very inte sting series. Send immediately for a ticket of admission to Martha Le-, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

TAILORED CANAPES

Thinly sliced calavos
Sliced bread, cut in 1½-inch squares
Butter
Prepared mustard
Deviled ham
Capers

To prepare calavos, cut into halves lengthwise, remove seeds, and cut into very thin slices lengthwise. Saute bread squares lightly in butter on one side only. Spread thinly with mustard. Cut sliced calavos into squares to cover bread. Cut deviled ham into thin slices, then in oblongs large enough to cover one-third of the calavo square. Place in center of calavo square and decorate with three capers in a row.

SUNDAY NIGHT ENTREE

2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
1½ cups diced cooked chicken
1 medium sized calavo
4 slices toast
American cheese.

Rub butter, flour, and salt to a paste. Heat milk to boiling point and pour over paste, stirring to prevent lumping. Add chicken, return to fire, and cook three or four minutes, stirring continuously to prevent scorching; remove from fire and cool slightly. Cut calavo into halves lengthwise, remove seed, peel, dice, add to chicken and mix lightly. Pour over toast, sprinkle sparingly with grated American cheese, and serve immediately. Serves four.

STUFFED EGGS

4 hard-cooked eggs
4 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 small green onions, minced
Salt
1 large calavo
Lemon juice
Lettuce
Paprika

Cut eggs into halves, either crosswise or lengthwise. Remove yolks, leaving whites unbroken, and mash. Add mayonnaise, minced onions and salt and blend thoroughly. Cut calavo into halves lengthwise, remove seed and peel. Dice one half, sprinkle other half with salt and lemon juice and cut lengthwise into eight strips. Add diced calavo to egg mixture, mix lightly and use to refill egg halves. Arrange two halves on lettuce-garnished salad plate and sprinkle tops with paprika. Add two strips of calavo to each salad. Serves four.

Know Meaning of Dreams

"JUST one of those silly dreams!" said Helen. "I'm planning to go back home to Rosedale for a visit.

"I dreamed I was on an express from Rosedale to Bigtown. In the middle of the trip I stopped the train, got off and started to walk back. The going was so bad I finally took a local back to Rosedale at the next station."

It does sound weird, until you know Helen's story. As a girl she ran away from college to Bigtown with a worthless fellow, who deserted her. Too proud to go back home, she supported herself for years in Bigtown. At last she patched up her quarrel with her family, and was going home for the first reunion in a long time.

The dream? A psychiatrist would know at once that the train was her early energy and hope; the getting off the train and going on alone meant her years of lonely effort; taking the local back home meant acceptance of the humdrum safety of life in Rosedale.

Almost like a fable. Yes, that's always the language of dreams, a queer symbolism that it takes study and science to interpret.

Get a clue to YOUR dreams with the aid of our 40-page booklet, INTERPRETING YOUR DREAMS. Written by a noted psychiatrist. Sound, scientific, illuminating, entertaining. Throws a modern light on the workings of the mind in sleep. Tells of historical dreams, dreams of famous people.

PROPER DIET IS A "MUST" FOR MEN

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Copyright, 1936, King Features Synd., Inc.

AVOIRDUPOIS seems to carry less weight with masculine than with feminine vanity, but the health significance of an expanding waistline does arouse concern; business men are keenly interested in the statistics that substantiate the saying, "For every inch by which a man's waist measure exceeds his chest measure, subtract two years from his life expectation."

Figures prove that the fatter you are, the slimmer your chances of living to a healthy old age. Here are the facts compiled by the statistical department of a life insurance company:

After the age 35, even a small amount of excess weight is a health handicap. The danger increases with advancing weight and years.

For men under five feet seven inches in height and between the ages of 40 to 44, 20 per cent of overweight adds 30 per cent to the mortality. Forty per cent excess weight increases the mortality by 80 per cent. Your chances of living are only half as good.

Fat a Health Hazard

Among men over five feet ten inches in height, the overweight danger is greater. From the ages of 40 to 44, 20 per cent overweight increases the mortality by 40 per cent, and a 40 per cent excess boosts the mortality to 80 per cent.

In the past few months, a number of requests for more information about calories have come from men. The usual question is, "Are the menus in the daily column also intended for men?" These reducing menus I give daily are too low in calories for the average man. In reducing, use two-thirds your normal calorie allowance.

As an easy way of figuring your calorie requirements, multiply your normal weight by 16, an activity integer. The result of this multiplication represents the number of calories which meets your activity needs and

It is the number at which you neither gain nor lose. If you wish to reduce, use just two-thirds this normal allowance, and you can lose weight at the rate of one to two pounds per week.

Send for the "Pointers to Slimness" leaflet. This will tell you exactly how to proceed with a scientific weight loss program. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

It is unnecessary for you to "go on a diet" in order to reduce. You will accomplish much more by intelligent food selection. Gradually change your fattening food habits and you will arrive naturally at normal weight. To help you with your calorie counting, a reducing menu has been planned for you.

Before you adopt any program or diet, consult your doctor. He will no doubt be highly in favor of reducing—for you, if you have let your waistline get beyond you, begin now with calorie subtraction. You cannot expect to feel up to par unless your weight is down to normal.

Mrs. Beeckman On Good Manners

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please send me a few suggestions as to giving a small remembrance to a friend on her fiftieth wedding anniversary? The friend is a neighbor. S.

You might with only to make a bow of congratulation by sending a box of flowers, and the flowers might be in yellow or golden ones in tone, to carry out the golden idea of the anniversary. A box of several kinds of yellow spring flowers, for instance, golden daffodils, yellow freesia, mimosa. Or a few stately yellow calla lilies would be especially lovely.

Or if you wish to carry out the golden idea in something for the home, you might send a linen-set in golden shade, or with the golden shade predominating. Or some china or glass salad or dessert plates. Or you can find decorative and useful boxes of golden shades, and of varying prices according to your budget.

And it is not necessary for you, unless you especially wish to, to carry out the golden-idea. It is just as correct to send any kind of house gift that you think will be appropriate for their home.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Wife of the Praise-Miser One of World's Most Tragic Creatures

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Not all the wall-flowers are to be found in dance halls. Most of them are standing over stoves in kitchens throughout the country.

I am thinking of those poor women who laid down their individuality on the alter of matrimony and became as much their husband's property as the pipe he smokes or the automobile he drives.

In all the world there is no more tragic creature than the wife of the praise-miser who thinks always of himself, never of the woman he swore to love and protect.

Today it is a pleasure for me to send my five-dollar check to a dear, column friend who is married to just such a man. I hope the money brings her happiness and lets her know that all of us are ready and willing to help a sister in distress.

Here is her interesting letter:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

Tomorrow I shall be 30. Not so old, but still a bit advanced in years.

I have been married 12 years during which I have tried to be a good wife to my husband

I have given up my favorite foods for his. I have gone without new clothes because I could always stay at home. I have tried to make every penny do the work of three.

Now where has this got me?

I have not had a vacation for years, but the last week of this month I plan to go to my old home town on a visit. Of course it won't be very much fun because I haven't a cent to my name.

All I want is enough for a movie, a marcel, an ice cream with an old friend and a little washable sport dress. But where can I get it?

Husband has been away on week-ends at least once a month every year of our married life. These cost anywhere from five to 20 dollars.

I used to think virtue had its own reward, that if I stuck to my bargain and tried to keep our family going we would come out all right.

Now I have got tired of work without play. And though I do not intend to become promiscuous, I still would like to have just one or two luxuries. And I would like my children to have the opportunities other children enjoy.

Staying at home and doing without everything has got me nowhere.

Virtue has not had its own reward. I want to start living once more. What can I do?

THOUGHTFUL THIRTY

MY DEAR FRIEND

Your letter is an interesting one, also typical of the inner workings of a thousand women's minds. That is why I am sending you five dollars in today's mail. Use that money to buy some of the things you want. Then go back to your home town, visit your friends of long ago and try to get a new grip on yourself.

When you return to your husband, resolve that you are going to find new interests. Join the church. Take an active part in its activities. Become a figure in your small community. Make your husband proud of you.

And, above all, keep people coming to your home. Ignore your husband's protests, if he makes any. Don't argue or quarrel. Just be determined to forget your unhappy twenties and enjoy every day of your new thirties.

So far you've made yourself a slave and, as it always happens, you're being treated like a slave. Demand freedom and you'll get it.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am the mother of six children, all of whom are a credit to me and their father. Four go to school and two are still at home.

My problem is that three of the neighbors are rapping at my door every morning, even before the breakfast dishes are washed. They sit and talk until noon, when they rush home to prepare a bite for their families. But 1 o'clock finds them again on my porch, all set for an afternoon of gossip.

"The Rocking-Chair Brigade" is what my husband calls them. He thinks them rather funny, though I consider them pests one must tolerate.

Miss Fairfax, is there any way of getting rid of these women without insulting them? I am sure other mothers have the same problem.

MRS. R. F.

MY DEAR FRIEND

There is one sure way to rid your house of these gossip mongers. It never fails. Do try it.

The recipe is simply this. When your "pests" appear tomorrow, go to the door with a mop or scrubbing brush in your hand. Be all smiles. Invite them in. Sit them down. And keep right on working as hard as you can.

Suddenly say to one of them: "We can work and talk, can't we? You wouldn't mind dusting off the furniture for me while I polish the floor?" Or "Would you mind giving me a hand with the piano? I think it would look much better on the other side of the room." Or "I've just got to get these dishes washed. There's such a pile of them. You wouldn't mind wiping while I wash, would you?"

Do this, dear friend, and your "Rocking-Chair Brigade" will be shortening their future visits to five and ten minutes. They'll flee from work in your home just as they are running away from the tasks in their own.

Confidentially, I tried this on a bothersome neighbor once, and her calls were soon confined to infrequent telephone chats.

Married Comrades

By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER 13

THERE WAS something in Philip Veritzen's voice as he telephoned, asking if Noel and Mary were with us, which I never had heard before; an earnestness and sincerity utterly foreign to his usually polished, courtly but cryptic manner.

It was as if he had been suddenly stripped of a veneer, I told myself, and the real soul of the man was manifesting itself. One thing was very plain. Some primitive emotion was shaking him, something other than anger. Whatever it was, it was possessing him utterly.

My answer was prompt.

"Yes, they are both here," I said. "They arrived only a few minutes before you telephoned."

"Has Noel broken his promise to me?"

A BROKEN PROMISE?

"He hasn't had time to break anything," I parried with a light laugh. "I told you they have but just arrived."

"Do you mean to say he hasn't told you anything about me?" he demanded incredulously.

My subconscious thought went back through the years to an unforgettable line I once heard Blanche Bates utter in the "Darling of the Gods," when as a little Japanese girl, she saved the life of her lover by a falsehood.

"It is better to lie a little than to be unhappy much—" she intoned. And paraphrasing it by repeating in my own mind "than to bring certain unhappiness to Noel and Mary" I uttered only a part truth to the excited man at the other end of the line.

"Why, he said that you were very busy and that he had to hurry back to help you with a piece of work that he was doing for you."

"Did he tell you the nature of the work?"

"My dear friend!" I expostulated with what I flattered myself was just the proper amount of disbelief. "Do the people helping you in your very important work ever presume to discuss their share in it with anyone?"

THE MYSTERIOUS JOB

"You are begging the question," he said sharply with a discourtesy I never had heard from Philip Veritzen. "Did Noel tell you what his work for me was?"

The time had come for the "little lie," I told myself, and salving my conscience with the far-fetched quibble that Noel had told nothing to me alone, but made his revelation to Dicky and me together, I said firmly, and with a sharpness—and, I fear, rudeness—equaling his own.

"No, he did not," I said, "and you ought to know him better than to ask such a question."

ASKS A FAVOR

"What excuse did he give for coming down to the farm when he had an important piece of work on hand for me?"

I went back mentally to the excuse Noel told us he had given his father.

"He said that Mary wasn't well and that he felt that he must bring her down to us."

"Ah!" A quick, sibilant breath accompanied the exclamation over the wire. Then he put another peremptory question.

"Is he leaving Mary with you?"

"For tonight at least, I imagine," I said.

There was silence at the other end of the wire, and I had begun to wonder if the connection had been broken, when he spoke again, this time with something of the old suave courtesy in his voice.

"May I ask you a great favor," he asked.

Deep within me there sounded a warning note, and I heeded it.

SEPARATE MARY AND NOEL

"I will do anything in my power for you," I answered, "but I never promise anything blindly. Tell me what it is you wish me to do."

"Can you keep Mary with you indefinitely?"

I almost dropped the receiver in my astonishment at the crass request, and he correctly interpreted my slowness in answering him.

"I am not trying to separate husband and wife," he said with a distinct sneer in his voice, "but if Mary is not well, it seems to me she would be much better off with you people on the farm than she would alone in a city apartment."

"And I am not being inhospitable," I retorted promptly. "You know that both Mary and Noel are welcome here for an hour, a day or a year, whenever they wish to come to us. But, frankly it seems to me a queer arrangement to propose for a couple married but six months. And why must Mary necessarily be alone in a city apartment?"

The bidding:

West had a close decision to make over the five club bid. His three honor-tricks outside of the spade suit made a double tempting, but in my opinion he was correct in bidding five spades.

It was perfectly obvious that North had a generally good hand and that South, therefore, must have very freaky distribution in order to bid at the five level. He felt that there was a very good chance of making five spades and was unwilling to settle for a one or even two-trick penalty.

North opened the King of clubs and then shifted to the Queen of hearts. Declarer won and took out the only outstanding spade. Next he led the King of hearts and ruffed his losing heart in the dummy.

With no more clubs or hearts in either dummy or his own hand, declarer had simply to find a way to avoid the loss of two diamond tricks.

There were two possibilities. One that either North or South had one of the honors only singly guarded.

But the declarer gave a great deal of thought to North's takeout double of the one spade as well as his final penalty double of the five spade bid. Knowing North to be a conservative player he felt sure that he must have upward of three honor-tricks for his takeout double which strongly pointed to the conclusion that he held both the King and Queen of diamonds as well as the Ace-King of clubs.

On this analysis declarer returned to his hand with a trump and led not the Ace of diamonds but a low one up to dummy's Jack. This play made North helpless. He was forced to go up with his Queen and had the Hobson's choice of giving declarer a ruff and a discard by leading a club or a heart or of re-

Takes to Water like a Duck —
ELECTRIC WATER HEATING HEATS WATER DIRECTLY — GIVES YOU ALL THE HEAT YOU PAY FOR

Cheaper in the long run

—because no heat is wasted

Electricity is ideal for economical water heating, because the heating unit is immersed directly in the water. Thus, the water is heated without loss — you get all the heat you pay for.

Also, the electric water heater need not be located near the chimney, for no flue is required. Place it handy to where the hot water will be used and save the heat losses from long runs of pipe.

Electric Water Heating Gives You

3-WAY ECONOMY

1. Lifetime Service — There is nothing in the equipment to burn out or wear out. It lasts indefinitely
2. No Waste Heat — The electrical method of water heating is the most efficient ever devised. Eliminates waste. You get all the heat you pay for
3. Special Low Rate — The rate for electric water heating is a low "off peak" rate provided for this service alone

Smith Girls Call New Deal Insecure

Northampton, May 19 (US)—"Uneconomic, insecure, and unplanned" is the appraisal of the New Deal and Roosevelt policies made today by students at Smith College, largest women's college in the nation.

Distrust of New Deal experimentation was expressed by Ruth M. Hendricks of Detroit, Michigan, who plans a career in personnel and is making a study of governmental policies with that in mind.

"Every time some one puts an economic bug in Mr. Roosevelt's ear, we are afflicted with some new experiment which doesn't live up to its ballyhoo," she stated.

"Look at the colossal flop of the NRA and other alphabetical agencies. Even the soil conservation act is being so badly administered that has already degenerated into a handout.

"Like many of the New Deal policies, the NRA helped the big fellows who did not need it and hurt the little fellows who really required help. It forced Bloom's Grove of Scotch Lassies member of Phi Beta Kappa.

"Even with the national administration and all the talk about helping south, nothing much has been accomplished in that direction. Needy students were put on useless jobs when there were plenty of useful jobs around. We even ran out of useless jobs here."

Charges ... Ingly and ... were advanced ... Utica, New ... student ... ed:

"Many on relief ought not to be there, and many worthy ... cannot obtain relief. Until the determining factor ... a period pull and not real need.

"How then can Roosevelt expect youth to respect the government when pearls all the jobs are political and there is a 150 per cent turnover after each election, and deserving Democrats or Republicans get the jobs?"

CITY PLANS 'MILK FUND DAY'

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

Truth says the proverb, is stranger than fiction.

Long ago Robert Ripley discovered this, and many a time and oft has proved it in detail. That is why I am inclined to believe the story recently spread in the public prints that a gentleman from Boothbay Harbor Maine now incarcerated on a murder charge recently received at the hands of a lady in spectacles, anonymous or incognito, a cake containing a couple of saws baked into it.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The gentleman's attorney thinks it was a plant to get his client into trouble.

I prefer to believe that romance still blooms in some heart and that the lessons of famous heroes who escaped jail in various romantic ways are not entirely lost on the present generation.

One remembers Edmond Dantes in the Chateau d' If, Benevenuto Cellini in Renaissance Rome, the Chevalier Jacques Casanova escaping over the leads of the Doge's Palace in Venice, the Baron Trenck, not to mention the Baron Munchausen and many others.

Tom Sawyer Best Tutor On How to Escape Jail

But most of all this idyllic Maine episode reminds me of Huckleberry Finn on the famous occasion when Tom Sawyer taught him how to organize the escape of Jim, the slave boy, according to the most famous authorities.

"Now, whilst I think of it, we got to hunt up something to make a saw out of the first chance we get."

"What do we want of a saw?"

"What do we want of a saw! Haint we got to saw the leg off Jim's bed so as to get the chain loose?"

"Why you just said a body could lift up the bedstead and slip the chain off."

"Well, if that aint just like you, Huck Finn. You can get up the infant-schoolest ways of going at a thing. Why, haint you ever read any books at all?—Baron Trenck, nor Casanova, nor Benvenuto Chelleeny, nor Henry IV nor none of them heroes. Who ever heard of getting a prisoner loose in such an old-maidy way as that? No, the way all the best authorities does is to saw the bed-leg in two, and leave it just so, and swallow the sawdust.

"Then, the night you're ready, fetch the leg a kick, down she goes; slip off your chain, and there you are. Nothing to do but hitch your rope ladder to the battlements, shin down it, break your leg in the moat—because the rope ladder is nineteen foot too short, you know—and there's your horses and your trusty vassels, and they scoop you up and fling you across a saddle, and away you go to your native Langudoc or Navarre or wherever it is. It's gaudy, Huck. I wish there was a moat to this cabin. If we got time, the night of the escape, we'll dig one."

'All Romance Not Dead, Gift of Files Proves

Tom thunks it would be even better to saw off Jim's leg, but regretfully gives up the idea.

"But there's one thing—he can have a rope ladder; we can tear up our sheets and make him a rope ladder easy enough. And we can send it to him in a pie; it's mostly done that way. And it's worse pies."

So Tom goes ahead, piling invention on invention. The pie, the rope ladder, old shirts to write on with the prisoner's own blood, a candlestick to be filed down by rubbing it on the stone work, or little messages scratched on a tin plate with a fork "like the Iron Mask always done," to say nothing of the case knives for digging under the foundations . . .

As a matter of fact, the unknown benefactor could have done a lot better for the prisoner than a couple of saws. She could have given him a copy of "Huckleberry Finn," the historic prisoner's handy guide to escaping, with especial attention to the rats, spiders and snakes which the prisoner can make pets of in his cell. Perhaps the prisoner might be as grateful as the slave boy Jim was, when Tom Sawyer just plumb wore him out teaching him how to escape properly like in the history books.

Anyway, the saws in the cake gave one jaded spirit a lively sense that all romance is not yet dead. I guess that Mark Twain would have appreciated them, too.

BONUS 'Firsts' in State LISTED

Albert L. Palmer, of Williams avenue, Lynn, will on the morning of June 15 become a No. 1 bonus-letter. His name is first on the list of veterans to receive a bonus payment.

He boards will be mailed immediately after midnight on June 15 and he will probably get his service compensation with the first mail.

The first woman to receive a bonus payment in Massachusetts will be Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart of Summit street, Whitinsville. She served as army nurse. Her husband is a machinist at Whitinsville, and she is the mother of a nine-pound boy.

Walter Mazeika and Joel L. Tammelin, of Norwood, are numbers 2 and 3 on the male list, and they too will receive their payments on the morning of June 15.

More than 2000 applications are being handled daily by the corps of clerks at the Veterans Bureau. A special bureau has been set up outside the Federal building at 1 State street, to expedite the work.

75th Auto Victim Killed at Lynnfield

Death again took the wheel early today when Thomas Monahan, 52, married, of Salem street, Lynnfield, became the 75th automobile victim in Greater Boston this year.

Several motorists had complained during the night that a man walking in zigzag fashion along the Newburyport turnpike in Lynnfield was disrupting traffic and was in danger of being struck by a passing car.

[illegible] from Andover barracks went down to investigate reaching [illegible] in time to take an injured man to the Lynn Hospital, where he was found to be suffering from a fractured skull and broken ribs. He died two hours later.

Sports' Aid For 60,000 Pledged

COLLECTIONS GO TO NEEDY

Leaders in Boston's sports, social, charitable and civic circles joined Mayor Mansfield's Committee of 49" today in planning a "Milk Fund Day" for the city's 60,000 undernourished children.

Meeting at City Hall, the committee, which is headed by City Councillor James E. Agnew of Allston, was deluged with offers of assistance.

Health Commissioner W[illegible] B. Keeler in his endorsement of the project, pointed out the tremendous number of children involved.

"The idea of the fund," he said, "is that it shall be similar to the one sponsored by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst in New York City.

"In New York no child goes without his pint of milk daily. But in Boston there are too many who have no cereal and milk for breakfast. They have coffee and doughnuts, instead.

Plan Date

Chairman Agnew announced after the meeting that a date for "Milk Fund Day" will be set in a few weeks.

The day, he said, would be featured by a sports program and collections would be made in business offices, theaters and other places where the public may be reached.

Alex McLean, promoter for the Boston Arena, volunteered to arrange a program of wrestling and boxing at which proceeds going to the fund.

George V. Brown on behalf of the Boston Garden management made a similar offer.

Former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry volunteered to help in any capacity he could. Mayor Bernard C. Weigl of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to children.

Thoughts on Eve Of the Nation's Memorial Observance

(Reprinted by request. A true story of a war hero.)

UNDER THE GREAT BEAMED ARCHES the lights of Memorial Hall are bleak. The refectory tables where past generations of Harvard men once dined are deserted and the portrait cases of Harvard's war-dead are pushed against the walls.

Austen Lake

There is the picture of the tragic young poet, Alan Seeger, wearing the dusty regimentals of the Foreign Legion, a faded, yellowing record of a gaunt youth with sorrowing eyes. And there is slender and boyish Dave Putnam in the trim uniform of an aviator, bits of colored ribbon and silver wings over his heart. Yesterday's sons who live now in receding memory, shadows from a mad past.

And now the scene changes. It is 23 years ago, and a slim boy with wind-burned cheeks and a flash of bright teeth is visiting at Exeter Academy. He is David Putnam, captain of the Newton high school baseball team—American boyhood at its best. There are grins all around and the chat is about the afternoon's game, full of boyish enthusiasm—light laughter and cubbish sniggers. It was a good Exeter team against which the slighter Putnam had scored a home run on a hard, whiskery shot. And striking a pose he had said: "Boy, am I proud!"

So we pump his hand with elaborate congratulations, link arms and go off to supper amid the clatter of crockery and the buzz of schoolboy voices.

* * *

WAS IT HIGH ADVENTURE?

ONCE MORE THE SCENE CHANGES. And now it is France in mid-June of 1918 and I am traveling across country in a French ambulance. Putnam with his flight of Spad pursuit planes is stationed near Coucy-le-Chateau, and I drop off for a quick "hello" and a round of cognacs, envying the smug comfort of the aviation huts and the chummy atmosphere of Dave's life here at the base. None of the thick chocolate mud of the front lines. No crawling stench of the dugouts. Just a wind-blown freshness and high adventure in the skies.

Putnam had just been decorated for his 10th official victory, having shot down an enemy bomber in flames. And among the shining war jewelry on his chest he has added another medal. So we clasp hands and he says again: "Boy, am I proud!"

But there is a [illegible] squinting intensity on his brows and [illegible] in his eyes.

And now the scene changes for the last time. It is September 12 of 1918, and a Polish-American corporal and I are tramping down a winding road near the ruined town of Limy. It is crisp autumn, full of sunlight that blesses the scarred hillsides where only yesterday the American army had blasted through the St. Mihiel sector and squeezed the enemy in its huge pinchers. Our shoulder packs are heavy and for a spell we sprawl on the roadside and use our loads as comfortless cushions.

* * *

RENDEZVOUS OVER LIMY

HIGH ABOVE THE SHATTERED town, where the once trim farmhouses are piles of rubbish, a combat patrol of German planes is circling and soaring with the lazy impudence of buzzards. White puffs dot the sky like little balls of cotton, as aircraft batteries range the distance. And the corporal had rolled a cigarette with a deft twist of stained fingers and sneered that our fliers must have gone to lunch.

But now from the horizon, low against the purple hills, come two tiny specks, looming gradually into planes with colored bullseyes on their lower wings. One throttles down to a snail's pace, loath to challenge such an overwhelming force. The other climbs steeply, gaining in a headlong rush that carries him into the middle of a wild whirlpool.

And on the instant the sky is filled with the sound of a thousand hornets and the constant stutter of machine guns as the planes dive and twist. Suddenly one of the buzzards swoops sharply, falling like a leaf in quickening spin and flutters, a plume of dark smoke trailing from its tail. There are licks of flame on the fuselage as it slides beyond the neighboring woods, where the smudge turns to a yellowish vapor that spirals above the trees.

Quite as suddenly now the plane with the colored bullseyes noses down diving steeply and followed closely by one of the buzzard flock with its guns blazing and its motor screaming.

* * *

THERE IS A HILLSIDE IN FRANCE

FOR A MOMENT THE AMERICAN levels off and then descends in a long, sweeping spiral so that we can hear the shrill shriek of the wind in his wires when he comes roaring over our heads. It is a crescendo of sound that ends with a stunning impact as it crashes against a hillside less than 50 yards away.

And through the cloud of dust I can see the tail of the stricken plane settle gradually back from its wings in a tired, lazy sag as though it were laying down to rest.

We ran, the corporal and I, and unstrapped the heroic American from his shattered plane, laying down his limp figure in its fleecy woolens that he would need no more. There were goggles on his eyes and a fur helmet close about his cheeks. It was the Polish corporal who fished for his silver identification bracelet, peering down as he read: "It's a guy," said he, "named David Putnam."

I have wondered since whether, in the twilight of that 23-year-old day, the German boy who shot Putnam down may not have slid from his plane far behind his lines. And whether, flushed with victory he might not have clasped the hands of his flight comrades and, striking a pose, said in his native tongue: "Boy, am I proud!"

TECH Crews Seek RICHARDS' CUP

Technology crews will close the 1936 season this afternoon with the Richards Cup class races which will be held on the Charles River, with Prof. Robert Richards, 91 year old former Technology professor as the official judge of the races.

Prof. Richards, '68, is the donor of the Richards Cup. Several varsity men are expected to row in the regatta.

In fact the races will be practically a race between the all sophomore varsity Tech shell which has rowed for the Beavers in the last two races and the junior varsity crew which has five veterans from last years shell and is comprised chiefly of members of the junior class.

Bill Haines plans to have some crew work during the summer for his men. Most of the M. I. T. oarsmen come from local parts and Haines sees the possibility of a great varsity next year on the basis of Tech's improved showing in its last two races of the year.

Mrs. Moody Shops in New York

New York, May 19.—While Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, the world's tennis queen, did a bit of shopping around town today, the word was [illegible] that she would be aboard [illegible] within a week bound for the defense of her Wimbledon title.

Mrs. Moody was noncommittal on the subject during an interview during which she said she would love to play on the United States Wightman cup team. She was not named for it.

The team leaves tomorrow on the liner Manhattan for England. Included in the party are Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Boston, Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn.

Eagles Tackle N. H. State Nine

"Muggsie" Kelley, left-handed pitching ace of the Boston College varsity baseball team will toe the mound at University Heights this afternoon as the Eagles seek to hit the victory path once again against the New Hampshire State nine.

Following today's visit Coach Frank McCrehan will take his charges to New York for games with St. John's University, New York University and Fordham.

Harvard Alumni Battles Jumbos

Tufts starts the hardest week of their diamond schedule this afternoon when the Harvard Alumni visits Tufts Oval at 4 o'clock.

Dick Owen, who hurled against B. C. last week, is expected to take the mound again for the Crimson, while Tony Radvilas will work for the Jumbos.

Boston Clubs Wind Up Chicago Series

SOX TRAIL YANKS BY 1 GAME

By Joe Cashman

Chicago, May 19—All smiles again after Mose Grove's Monday masterpiece which brought our Red Sox percentage up to .500 for this trip, Manager Joe Cronin has decided to take another chance on John "Footsie" Marcum in the final White Sox tilt today.

"Footsie" had his glove and nothing else, which wasn't nearly enough, in his previous start, against the Indians and he wasn't slated to get another opening assignment on this jaunt.

But he returned in a relief roll Sunday to become the winning pitcher by setting six hostile batters down in order. So opportunity is once more knocking at his door.

"Footsie" chirps very optimistically as he prepares to duel with Monte Stratton.

He sounds as though he might have been talking with Master Grove and had been told the secret of winning, even if handicapped by a weak arm.

Arm Weakens

Mose added that miraculous accomplishment to his amazing 1936 slinging saga in the Monday melee. He didn't feel too good starting and the sultry heat wore him down before the half-way mark was reached.

From the fifth inning on, his arm was so tired that Ostermueller and Wilson were kept warming up continually, yet, he went through to the finish to gain his fourth shutout and seventh victory of the season.

Only five White Sox reached first and only two advanced as far as third. Haas and Walker singled in the fourth, Dykes walked in the

BENGE TOES MOUND AT HIVE

By Bill Grimes

From the moment, Augie Galan's Texas Leaguer was allowed to drop safe in short center field in the opening inning until Billy Herman scored Woodie English with the seventh Cub run in the 8th, it was apparent that the Bees were not going any place yesterday.

It was one of those days when they did not get the pitching and as is invariably the case under such a condition, the "breaks," which played an important part in putting across the five runs scored in the first two innings, were against them.

I wouldn't know but the experts claim that Jim "Tex" Carleton has the old Indian sign on the Bees. That may be so, but unless I erred in my judgement of the big Cub right hander, Carleton would have been out of there, if the Bees had been trailing 2 to 1, instead of 5 to 1 going into the last of the 2d inning.

As I saw it, one good "jockey" can ride Carleton out of any ball park and if the game had been close, some loquacious member of the Bees would have climbed aboard him and brought about his early retirement.

2 Lucky Hits

Two lucky hits by Augie Galan coupled with wildness on the part of Danny MacFayden cost the Bees at least three runs in yesterday's game with the National League titleholders.

Galan opened the game with a fly to short centre field which either Tommy Thompson or Bill Urbanski should have gathered in. That was the blow that started the Bees on their way to defeat.

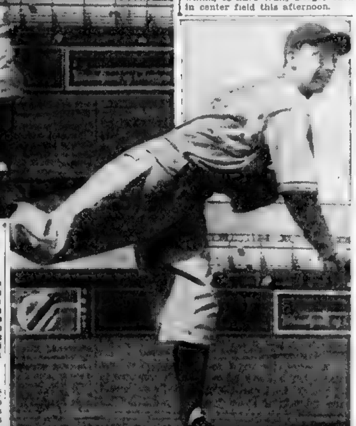
Even at that MacFayden could have escaped with only one run scored against him had he been able to recover his balance in time to field a double play ball hit back at him by Demaree. But, he failed to square away, after the pitch, the ball got away from him and Klein, who had walked, scored.

Four of the Cubs' first five runs were gifts and took most of the fight out of the Bees while instilling great courage in Carleton.

The only satisfaction the Bees derive from yesterday's game was from the showing made by Bobby Reis. During the eight innings he was on the hill top, Reis allowed only five hits and but two runs. On his showing, Reis will soon be a starting pitcher and one who should win his share of games.

Berger Back

Manager Bill McKechnie is determined to break through with a win over the Cubs and therefore he was willing to have Wally Berger back in center field this afternoon.



DEACON DANNY MacFAYDEN, pride of Somerville, shows the magic eye how he shoots his dazzler.

Mr. Boston

Red Sox Need 2nd Grove

—By Jack Conway—

PERSONAL opinions . . . What the Red Sox need is more Grove. "Lefty" is pitching as well as at any time during his colorful career.

* * *

Joe Cronin will hop back into the Red Sox lineup as soon as his fractured thumb is okay. Baseball problems have a habit of [illegible] themselves. Cronin's [illegible] enabled [illegible] Werber [illegible] his old place at third base after Eric McNair was shifted to shortstop. Now Kroner is playing third in place of Werber who is troubled with an old toe injury.

Mr. Boston

* * *

Werber injured his toe in St. Louis last year when he kicked a water bucket. Motto: Keep away from water at all costs.

* * *

Form [illegible] breaks during the [illegible] the Spring meeting at [illegible] sett Park. [illegible] Elk came home [illegible] day while Seaman [illegible] San Apollo, San Abbot and [illegible] also had plenty of [illegible] among the [illegible] their horses on form. The [illegible] of 5 to 1 to 8 to 1 shots have had most of the [illegible] during the Narragansett meeting.

* * *

Now that the racing season in New England is getting more advanced the thoroughbreds will run more to form. Better [illegible] PERHAPS at Rockingham which opens next Monday and [illegible] which gets underway on June 15.

* * *

New England's race going public has not let me down in my earlier prediction that attendance and mutuel figures for 1936 would run ahead of 1935 by 10 per cent.

* * *

ANDY CALLAHAN

ANDY Callahan of Lawrence who returns to the ring wars at Lowell on Thursday night will have to keep to win over Victor Lott of Marlboro whom he meets in a ten-round bout. Callahan is once more back under the management of John [illegible] after a short stay in the [illegible] stable.

* * *

Jack Sharkey's next [illegible] start will probably be in Boston sometime in June. At a show to be staged at Fenway Park by the Goodwin A. C.

* * *

Danno O'Mahony, Irish wrestling sensation, will be a speaker at a communion breakfast at Father Kelleher's parish in Canton next Sunday. I shall give a sports talk at the same occasion.

* * *

Bob Quinn of the Bees is the most sought after [illegible] for sport talks. [illegible] frequent appearances [illegible] him so much [illegible] speech making [illegible]. Other than for Sunday morning talks at communion breakfasts.

* * *

* * *

Paul Bowser is better. Dr. Henderson, Paul's medico, expects the wrestling promoter will soon be able to go to his home at Fair Oaks Farm. He will then be able to see Tara and his other famous trotters and pacers in training.

* * *

Tara had pneumonia last fall, but has looked well in training. Most horses are short winded after recovering from pneumonia. Tara cost Bowser $475. He has refused $25,000 for this famous holder of world records.

* * *

GOLF

GOLF, after experiencing two bad seasons, has regained some of its old popularity. Various local clubs report a pickup in membership, while the pro shops declare the golfers are purchasing new equipment. Golf pros gets a cut of the money taken in at their shops in addition to their salaries.

* * *

Golfers are also taking more lessons in an effort to improve their game. All signs of better times in sports.

* * *

Racing, strange to say, has led other sports out of the depression.

Crusaders Clinch Diamond Laurels

TERRIER

Nine Nears End of Fine Season

By Walter Kiley

It's no longer news when Jack Barry pilots his Holy Cross Purple to the top of the Eastern collegiate baseball heap. It's now a habit.

But for the sake of record it should be stated that the Crusaders are once again unchallenged as finest nine of the season, undefeated in 11 starts and growing stronger as the season progresses.

Manhattan was [illegible] the Purple a neck and neck race up to last week's game with New York University. The V[illegible] and the Jaspers and the Holy Cross blasted the Harvards which had run riot through nine straight games.

This Holy Cross today stands atop Mt. St. James and shouts its own praise loud enough to be heard from the Atlantic to the Mi[illegible].

In this fine Purple [illegible] [illegible] as victims Dartmouth, Brown, Boston University, Providence, Maine State, Columbia, Tufts, [illegible] R. I. State, Springfield and Harvard [illegible]. The Crimson [illegible] by [illegible] drubbing [illegible] the Eastern Intercollegiate League [illegible]. Here it has yet to taste defeat.

It plays three more league games [illegible] Harvard tomorrow and a doubleheader with Penn at Soldiers Field on Saturday.

Boston University [illegible] downtrodden [illegible] of the [illegible] today after finest record in a [illegible] a score of years.

The Terriers, coached by Mel Co[illegible]ard who broke [illegible] daily duties [illegible] cased in plaster of Paris, has won and [illegible] six games [illegible] play Rhode Island State at Nickerson Field [illegible].

The Rams beat B. U. 5 to 3 [illegible] the box today [illegible] Tufts and Boston College [illegible] Terriers hope to fade out [illegible].

Week-End Track

The 50th N. E. I. C. A. A. track and field championships on Friday and Saturday, being held at Aldrich field, Brown's Providence sports pastures, find Northeastern hard pressed to defend its title won at Portland last May.

Holy Cross, Brown and Bowdoin have sights lined on the 1936 title with Rhode Island not to be overlooked.

Among the defending titlists will be Bowdoin's Phil Good in both the high and low hurdles; Colby's Cliff Veysey in the two miles, Bates' Anton Kishon in the discus, R. I. State's Jack Hunt in the javelin, Brown's Reggie McShane and Bates' Louis Meagher in the vaults.

B. C. Meets N. H.

Frank McCrehan's Boston College Eagles, nearing the wind-up of one of their most average seasons, play host to New Hampshire State this afternoon before embarking on a three game New York trip.

John "Muggsy" Kelley of Cambridge will probably hurl today. The Eagles play St. Johns at Brooklyn on Thursday; N. Y. U. on Friday and Fordham on Saturday.

Earlier this season, they beat St. John's 5 to 3. But they have a 14 to 3 shellacking at the hands of Fordham to atone for.

Fight Results

New York — Aldo Spaldi, 136, Italy, awarded a technical knockout over Lou Campa, 129¾, New York, in the sixth round.

New Bedford — Joey Archibald, Providence, awarded decision over Biff Lemieux, New Bedford. Ten rounds.

Mrs. Moody Urges Practice, Study

By HELEN WILLS MOODY

The sum of my experience in 16 years of tournament play lies somewhere between the extremes of having learned nothing and of having learned all there is to know.

When used in a general way the word "[illegible]" is taken to [illegible] recent [illegible] anything, and it is a convenient [illegible] for [illegible] of comparison. So that I hope [illegible] [illegible] one cannot make [illegible] experiences until one [illegible] had a certain number [illegible] then they cannot be recognized as such.

You have to know something about tennis [illegible] say to yourself—in that match, I did not take [illegible] my opportunities—because it takes knowledge to know [illegible] there are opportunities.

CHANCES OFTEN MISSED

A young player may have all sorts of chances presented to him in a game and not realize it. His friends on the sidelines may groan when he passes up a seemingly obvious opportunity, and yet were they on the court, involved in the action of the match, they might well be less able to take advantage of the situation.

For a whole season, when I was first pl[illegible] I was defeated by a player whom I [illegible] left-handed. I saw, of course, that she was left-handed, but did not realize completely what it meant. Seeing, and [illegible] what is seen, are two quite different things.

So that while I saw that Leslie Bancroft was left-handed, I was not able to remind myself that because she was [illegible] her game would be exactly opposite—spin, direction of [illegible] hand drive, the angle of her backhand drive, the placing of her serve, bound of the ball, and so on.

Even had I been able to understand, I probably would not have won, because she was a player of much more experience [illegible] and older. But at least the score would have been better and I would have had the satisfaction of knowing that I had been aware of what it was all about.

How can one gain experience in match play? Only by playing in tournaments. It takes a great many of them to turn out an experienced player. It would be interesting to know in how many tournaments William Tilden [illegible] played, and how many draws carried the name of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen since the time when, as an alert, dark-haired, thin little girl, she first began tennis in the south of France. Followers of the game know how Mrs. Mallory used to reel off tournaments by the score.

It is true that the competition of tournament play brings to life a certain keen and alert interest on the part of the player which is not aroused in an everyday match.

But before entering a tournament, many players feel that a brushing-up or refurbishing of their store of tennis knowledge is necessary. What one has learned has been more or less in the cupboard for the winter months, in spite of the fact that one has been practicing regularly on one's home club courts.

The feeling for tournament play must be built up each season by participation in several preliminary meetings before the championships. To get into the swing of it, to become accustomed to the call of the umpire, the atmosphere of match competition, the demands for concentration. It may well be called a reviewing or summing up all the experiences of the past in one's play.

How can the player make the most of his experiences? What does "making the most of one's experiences" mean? I think that

State Net Title Choices Advance

Opening day matches saw favorites coming through with comparatively easy victories. Kay Winthrop, defending champion, Miss [illegible] and Mrs. [illegible] won their matches in straight sets.

Mat Results

Worcester—Rudy Ladiski, 220, Hungary, threw John Malmberg, 225, Worcester, in two straight falls. Sibler McCoy, 225, Cambridge, pinned Al Baxter, 218, Kansas City.

Schmeling Hailed To Trial for Debt

New York, May 19 (US) — Max Schmeling, heavyweight prize fighter, was forced [illegible] the [illegible] of his training camp at Napanoch, N. Y., today to appear in Supreme Court here as defendant in an action instituted by a firm of attorneys.

The firm, White and S[illegible]man, charged they were his lawyers from 1929 to 1935 and contended he owes them $17,[illegible] in legal fees. The case was [illegible] tried before Supreme Court [illegible].

Bundy Elected

New Haven, May 19—Harvey H. Bundy of Boston today had been elected manager of the Yale tennis team for 1937.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

Both of my Monday choices ran second. LADY DAY, in the first at Narragansett, placed at $4.10 while CACHALOT, in the nightcap at Belmont, ran second at odds of 2 to 5.

The bankroll is now $437.40 going into the forty-first day of the experiment. And I'm hoping for a change in our betting fortunes.

VIRBET, a fast stepping bangtail, is my choice to win the first at Walter O'Hara's track. She might have won her last but for bad racing luck. It's TON BROOK primed for a soft spot in the fifth stanza at 'Gansett. The race, labeled the Valley Handicap, has attracted eight of the better handicap performers now on the grounds. Another $5 to win here.

ANN MARSTERS' BETS

$5 Win Boston Brook, Narragansett 5th.

BANKROLL IS NOW $437.40. DAY'S PLAY $10.

(At the suggestion of Walter O'Hara, Miss Marsters has set out to determine that conservative bets can result in satisfactory profits, or at worst small losses. Walter O'Hara, Narragansett Park owner, provided the capital with a $1000 gift. Half was turned over to Boston Evening American Christmas Fund immediately. The remainder will be similarly handled at the end of the experiment. This is the forty-first day.)

Good ol' C. H. Trotter has $5 to win.

BEST—SIR GAWAINE.

"Out In Front." Such is the comment appended by the lads at Belmont and relative to Mrs. Whitney's good jumper POPPYMAN.

As a matter of fact, they also added, "only needs to repeat that recent winning effort to win by open daylight."

RIDIAN, with a "monkey" in the pilot house—Apprentice to you, boo—has a good chance to outlast BLACKCOCK and SENADOR. In that order I figure 'em.

KNIGHT GALLANT, which on his initial appearance when he finished second, was probably one of the heaviest backed "sleepers" of the season, should be heard from hence I am giving him the call over Ber Bradley's BILLIONAIRE. The latter is fast, but is a bit rank.

SOPHIE TUCKER and COURT SCANDAL for what's left. BRUSH HOOK should redeem himself today rather easily. This is a nice field. SNOW FOX and REDLEY are closely bunched. My most probable winner of the day is KUNGSHOLM, which, I believe, is a bit better than ordinarily rated. Boy, wheel it away.

At Narragansett

Over at Narragansett Park they are taking BEDIGHT out of the old vat—in the day's opener. Well, in support of this, I might add my mite! She always runs her best race right off the reel. GENERAL A, who has been racing indifferently of late, is due for an awakening. Tab the ring action closely. WESTY JUNIOR, a very fast trick, has been burning up the track in recent morning trials, and is given the call over Dark War, Bacon and Fredrick. The latter also comes well recommended.

All but forgot to mention that Jersey reports oodles of kale for SWEET MOLLIE; she has a full three-point call in the ratings, and I believe only needs a "ride" to come home on the chin strap. GOLDEN SCEPTRE has also worked extremely well, and may well be out cover up. LOVE HAND, which did not run his best race last time, is again sent along as a XXX special. You have the info for what it is worth.

MOST PROBABLE WINNER—KUNGSHOLM.
BEST PARLAY — BRUSH HOOK, PORTDEN, SWEET MOLLIE, A PLACE.
DAILY DOUBLE — BEDIGHT, SWEET MOLLIE, NARRAGANSETT.

WILSON PLAYS LONE HAND

PLATER Goes in SEVENTH

By Dave Wilson
(Selections made for fast tracks)

BEST BET—LONE HAND, THIRD RACE.

Narragansett Park, May 19—Lone Hand is rated a standout hazard over indifferent opposition of the $1300 top and $1000 bottom variety in the one mile and seventy yards of the seventh stanza here today.

FIRST RACE.

Virbet, Bedight, Golden Key

VIRBET has drawn the extreme outside post and should escape early trouble. Might have won her last but for repeated interference. BEDIGHT, fast and faint-hearted, has had the benefit of a conditioner and should hang on long enough to save the place from GOLDEN KEY. The latter is dropping down.

SECOND RACE.

Sun Chaucer, Flying Play, Solar Time.

SUN CHAUCERS last and only endeavor was much better than the cold type notes, W. O. O'Hara's intelligent handicap choice failed to hold the maiden route in this affair. FLYING PLAY, third to Sophie and Maestrom, turned in a cracking performance in that frame of endeavor. SOLAR TIME, a nicely-bred first starter, comes highly recommended by his looking trainer.

THIRD RACE

Lady Pal, Sweet Mollie, Golden Sceptre

LADY PAL, running like a "world-horse" in the mile, needs only to run back to her last time's mile order to grace the winner's circle today. Furlongs in 1:34 proved entirely to what went as a final. SWEET MOLLIE will be dangerous only in the event of mud. She's a five-star mudder in my book. GOLDEN SCEPTRE is descending the scale. May be a bit better than rated.

FOURTH RACE

Westy Junior, Frederick, Dark War

WESTY JUNIOR, won [illegible] last summer, will be coming back trained to the letter [illegible]. He's a better favorite last time [illegible] dangerous. DARK WAR, [illegible] feathery impost of 109 pounds should prove hard to beat for the short end.

FIFTH RACE

Boston Brook, Go Quick, Warren, Jr.

BOSTON BROOK [illegible] recommended good speed [illegible] should find the [illegible] enty yard route of [illegible] easy [illegible] down his [illegible] show that he has [illegible] company in the past [illegible] has had quite a bit of [illegible] cently, but she figures [illegible] right at odd stops. WARREN JR. may hold the other five [illegible] safe.

SIXTH RACE

Crete, Onrush, Sea Fox

CRETE was pitted a bit too [illegible] unfortunately in a last and [illegible] start in this sector, and that effort shouldn't be taken too seriously. Previous good Western form points him out over this field. ONRUSH holds some class and has had the benefit of a conditioner in his last race. Figures dangerous over [illegible] races. SEA FOX drubbed weaker company in continuing style and a few days back.

SEVENTH RACE

Lone Hand, Rhodesia, Bright Bird

LONE HAND, third to Bright Bird and Laffoon needs only to duplicate that most recent endeavor in order to stop this one capable filed. RHODESIA barely headed by UKRAINE last time out, is strictly the dangerous.

EIGHTH RACE

Wickliffe, Vested Power, Patchoye

WICKLIFFE ran a scrambling race after breaking poorly in last Saturday's test. Needs only to break nicely in order to trounce this less capable lot. VESTED POWER, away since last summer, will be coming up dead fit, according to the clockers.

Judges Cast Three Votes for Vote Boy in 4th

COMING DOWN to the wire in Monday's fourth at Narragansett, the camera finds Vote Boy and Deduce having a merry struggle to lead the pack. Vote Boy, on the outside, managed to poke his nose home in front to pay $15.50, $7.10 and $4.30. Deduce took second by a length and a half, while Happy Knox, the favorite, shown right in back of the leaders, came in third. No. 5, Hope to Do was fifth.

"Octopus Hold" Faces Menace

George K. O. Koverly will depend on his dynamite-loaded fists to give Angelo Cistoldi, of "octopus hold" fame, his first whipping in the main bout at Alex MacLean's wrestling show at the Arena tomorrow night.

Koverly intends to cut loose his Sunday punch at every opportunity to take the speed and fire out of the agile Italian with the punishing "octopus hold." Cistoldi has insisted that MacLean put a referee in the ring to force Koverly to live up to the rules.

But Koverly, former fighter, is sure to be winning frequent punches, and faces the danger of losing through disqualification.

Bob "Bibber" McCoy, flying tackle artist, vs. Tommy Rea, dangling dropkicker, is the semifinal. In special bouts, Henry Piers will face John Spellman and Steve Brady will mix with Jumping Joe [illegible] in the opener. Referees ranged to complete the card.

Germaine Meets Count Von Zuppe

Ted Germaine will have his hands full tonight when he tackles Count Von Zuppe in the feature bout of Charlie Gordon's weekly show at Mechanics Building.

Wrestling fans have long waited the downfall of "Slugger" Ted, but so far he has managed to stay on top. The Count, however, is no pink tea party himself and has a variety of wrestling holds that are sure to trouble the bad man.

The semi-final will bring together Wim Robins and Ragner Halldin of Denmark. Both are clean, fast performers, and the contest should be a lively one. Pete Montana of Texas, a newcomer to this section, will tackle K. O. Marko, and Carmen Carone will meet Dynamite Dunn.

Other bouts on card bring together Stuart Spears and Al Taylor, Jimmy Trephone and Sahob Kahn, Ray Delong and Ernie Labonte, and Bill Curry and Al Staples.

STOUT In 'Gansett DEBUT

ARRIVES FROM PIMLICO

Pawtucket, R. I., May 19—The hard luck rider of a hard luck horse, Jimmy Stout, the lad who was astride Granville, Belair Stud's Kentucky Derby and Preakness candidate, will be making his 1936 New England racing debut this afternoon at Narragansett Park.

The New Jersey lad, popular with local race fans, is scheduled to have the mounts up on W. A. Jones' Boston Brook in the Valley Handicap and Mary Madden's Caspapedia in the sixth event. Stout will ride at Rockingham's spring meeting.

He arrived here from Pimlico where he engaged in that terrific stretch duel with Bold Venture which saw a camera finish decide the historic race.

Stout rode a beautiful race on Granville the gallant son of a gallant father, Gallant Fox but it was not enough to lick that combination of Georgie Woolf and Bold Venture. It appears that the latter will be no stranger in the various handicaps to be decided.

Adolf Mogavero, West Roxbury lad, rode his first [illegible] the [illegible] day card. Mogavero gave a capable ride the entire route. Mogavero was astride [illegible] in third race. The youth jockey is under contract to Danny Shea.

Thoroughbreds continue their march on the local track. Twelve horses arrived from Gotham including Hal Price Headley's Statia [illegible]

fifth and Krevich and B[illegible] in the ninth.

It was in the fourth that "Lefty's" arm started to weaken. With runners on first and third and only one out he put everything behind every pitch to strike out Bonura and then got Appling on a weak roller to the box but not before the Chicago White Sox shortstop had fouled off seven straight pitches.

Knowing that Mose wasn't at his best, however, helped the Chisox none.

The answer is that our peerless portsider has been so brilliant by befitting this spring that now all he has to do is to stare hostiles in the eye and they roll over and die.

The Dykes' gentlemen don't have to do much hitting to win. Vernon Kennedy pitched a whale of a game permitting three hits and two runs in the first frame and then holding the Fenway fence busters to two singles, both by "Heinie" Manush and letting nobody get beyond second base the rest of the way.

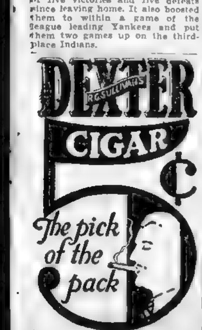
Praises Kennedy

It was purely and simply a case of a stellar pitching performance being ruined by a rival's reputation. Grove had nothing but praise for his opponent when it was all over.

Grove in winning seven games in eight starts has pitched 65 1-3 innings to date and has allowed only six earned runs, an average of less than one to a game. He's yielded only 42 hits, has fanned 34, and has given but eight walks.

In short, the game has never seen a more perfect pitching machine than he's been over that stretch.

His latest win was his second of this trip and gave the Sox a record of five victories and five defeats since leaving home. It also boosted them to within a game of the league leading Yankees and put them two games up on the third-place Indians.



Preparedness Keynote Of Hearst Message In Presentation

Gary, Ind., May 19 (US)—Presentation of the William Randolph Hearst marksmanship trophy and medals to the five members of the Gary High School rifle team brought to a close Junior R. O. T. C. activities for 1935-36 before a large crowd of students and parents at Horace Mann Field.

Assembling for closed order drill for the first time since 1934, more than 200 cadets comprising the six companies in the Lew Wallace, Emerson and Horace Mann [illegible] behind the R. O. T. C. band directed by Sam Rotolo.

Members of the rifle team which advanced from fifth place in 1935 to second place this year in the Fifth Corps Area Junior R. O. T. Hearst Greetings

In commenting upon the credit [illegible] of the rifle team and the [illegible] of the [illegible] Frank H. Ho[illegible] with the [illegible] telegram [illegible] from Mr. Hearst:

"A nation like the United States, subjected to the envy and jealousy of a hostile and insufficiently civilized world, should be able to defend itself against some outbreak of this latest hostility into attack. A democratic nation does not want a large standing army, and the only effective alternative is a competent citizen soldiery.

"Military training for the young men of the nation in schools and colleges was favored by the founders of the republic, but unfortunately this plan is not in general operation. The next best plan for national defense is to instruct the youth of the land by other means in the rudiments of military training.

"The object of this rifle shoot is to make skillful marksmen of as many young Americans as possible and so contribute in this important manner toward the defense of the country through an efficient citizen soldiery.

None Wants War

"The trophy is being awarded, therefore, not merely to the winners of an ordinary contest of skill, but to young Americans who have most effectively cultivated their mental and physical gifts toward the possible defense of their country in time of danger.

"It is being presented, not merely to good marksmen, but to good citizens, the young men whose love of country leads them to prepare for patriotic duty.

"None of all the people in America wants war, but some have the vision to see that war may be forced upon us, and the patriotism to prepare for that emergency."

Discovery to Run At Rockingham

By the Associated Press

Bob Turner, outrider at Narragansett Park, figures he and his pony Head [illegible] cover about 20 miles per day during the [illegible] races. He has to walk to the post, [illegible] around to the backside to watch for runaways as the horses prepare to pull up after the race, rouse late comers at the stable or dash up the track to pick up dropped whips or other equipment. Headlight, a former rodeo horse, can run a lot faster than one would think and can stand up under all kinds of work.

Closing day for the seven major stakes at Rockingham Park's spring meeting, which opens Monday, was featured by 30 nominations from Alfred G. Vanderbilt's stable. Heading the list was Discovery, ace of the stable, which is expected to start in the $10,000 Rockingham Park handicap on the closing day.

FOUGHT Way to HEIGHTS

DECORATED 16 TIMES

By Murray Kramer

Salem, N. H., May 19—It's too bad that kids of today don't read Alger stories and devour them with the wide eyed simplicity that we did a few years ago.

For if they did, another story could be written which would be a dandy.

It would be a yarn about a kid who was [illegible] a [illegible] and [illegible] to [illegible] the ladder of success by throwing [illegible]

Perhaps this is as good a spot as any to introduce our hero, Colonel [illegible] Errol Fauntleroy, treasurer of New Hampshire Jockey Club which directs Rockingham Park.

In this modern generation where [illegible] young mothers think [illegible] [illegible] a moniker like Cedric would not attract great attention but 58 years ago it meant [illegible] trouble and whatnot.

And to make matters even worse Cedric's mother was a disciple of Francis Hodgesdon Burnett and [illegible] make her younster a second Little Lord Fauntleroy.

She curled his hair and made him [illegible] lace collars and velvet [illegible] need we say just how [illegible] Mike, Abe, Tony and the rest of the gang!

The Fighting Heart

Our hero, however, came from [illegible] stock. His dad was an old Texas Ranger and Cedric seemed to inherit that fighting instinct.

When Cedric started to [illegible] every day the [illegible] went up and all that one could hear was "Sissy."

But instead of running home our [illegible] just [illegible] up [illegible] and [illegible] away. He took his share of lickings but he gave more than he received and finally won the respect of the gang.

lay down the law to his mother. He gulped once or twice and then defiantly declared:

"Mother, I am sick of this business, and I want a real pair of pants."

It was rebellious but it w[illegible] d he [illegible] the trousers.

At 17 the now [illegible] treasurer and director [illegible] ham decided to swing [illegible] own and [illegible] or [illegible] own Austin [illegible] [illegible]

The [illegible] he [illegible] the popular signature of "Jack [illegible]zer." He became a [illegible] then drifted into mining, at [illegible] became interested in aviation.

He went to [illegible] school to study aviation engineering and worked in an automobile factory days. About this time, the United States entered the World War. Fauntleroy tried to enlist in the air service but wasn't accepted because he was not a college man.

This hurt for he did not want any other branch so he took his meager savings and sailed to France where he joined the Foreign Legion and in this way became a member of the French Air Force.

From there he was transferred to the American Air Service as a second lieutenant but by the time the war was over, he had won the rank of major. Incidentally he is now a colonel.

As tribute to his daring service, Fauntleroy has 16 decorations from France, Poland and the United States.

When he returned to the States he went into the investment and banking business with the same enthusiasm he went into aviation and went right to the top.

He was now connected with several of the largest organizations in this country. One of them is technicolor which one of the films being shown at a Boston theater this week is featuring.

Racing is his hobby and despite his active New York life he is now spending his time up at Salem, N. H. helping prepare for the opening of Rockingham Park next Monday.

Bold Venture Out Of Chicago Classic

Chicago, May 19 (AP)—Bold Venture, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, definitely was out of the $12,000 added Illinois Derby today, leaving the mile and a [illegible] event to be run next Friday at Aurora a wide open affair.

Max Hirsch, trainer of the Morton L. Schwartz [illegible] colt, notified track officials that Bold Venture would be given a rest before starting in the Belmont stakes at Belmont Park.

From three dozen other horses nominated, however, will come a field expected to make the stake, first major event of the long Chicago racing season, a better than average affair. The Fighter, the Milky Way Farm's Texas Derby winner, may be established as the favorite although Rushaway, winner of the Louisiana Derby, Holl Image, winner of the Arkansas Derby, and Grand Slam from the Bomar Stable of Detroit, will draw much support.

Dnieper, second to Brevity in the Florida Derby, Reepon, from the Coward and Coffee Stable, Spy Second and Sangreal are other likely starters.

Future Tennis Greats Must Study, Practice

It means, first, that one must be able to recognize one's experiences as such; secondly, that these experiences must be stored away, not in a ponderous file, but in such fashion that they will be at any moment accessible to the nimble-fingered secretary who arranges knowledge in our minds; lastly, that without conscious effort on our part, the stored-up knowledge may be adapted to a situation advantageously.

THOROUGHLY MURDERED

Jeweler Strangled, Knifed, Buried Alive

This is the 105th in a series of true murder-mystery stories from New England police and court annals being published daily in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Jack English, one of the ace reporters for the American and Sunday Advertiser relates this thrilling story of "The Case of the Thoroughly Murdered Man."

By JACK ENGLISH

Patrolman Joseph Preston just missed being blown to bits twice on that bitterly cold day of December 24, 1914.

The chance failure of a dynamite trap saved him the first time.

Preston was one of a group of numb fingered Wakefield police officers who were engaged that day in the grim holiday task of searching for a corpse.

M[illegible] H. Albertson, wealthy [illegible], has disappeared from his home five days before [illegible] a gem purse containing [illegible]

He had been seen last in Wakefield [illegible]

Five days of painstaking investigation led police to a dilapidated one-story wooden [illegible]

It had been further ascertained that Albertson had come to display [illegible] possible bridal present.

Officer Preston had known Albertson [illegible] and it was with a heavy heart that he had entered the shanty.

A [illegible]

Kerosene Odor

It was Preston, who first noticed [illegible] the axe and pick-axe neatly [illegible] against the wall, were [illegible]

To the surprise of his fellow officers he suddenly got down on his hands and knees and again started sniffing.

But Preston didn't even bother to answer the quip. Disregarding the accumulated dirt on the floor he slowly crawled toward the center of the room. Then [illegible]

"There's a trail of kerosene," he announced, "which leads from the axes to this crack in the floor."

He took out his jack knife and ran it along the crack. A few minutes followed.

"A trap door," he said.

[illegible] Preston lifted back the [illegible] trap door which led to the [illegible]

Once again sprawling on the floor [illegible]

[illegible]

His first examination disclosed nothing beyond a few piles of sticks and rubbish. He could see no evidence that the ground had been turned over.

The second sweep of his light had revealed a few tangled wires attached to the door. He pulled [illegible] at one of them which led to a pile of rubbish. And [illegible]

[illegible]

No one spoke.

Preston again examined the door and the wires.

"As near as I can figure it out," he said, "whoever left this here hoped that this trap door would either fall under the weight of a man or that tampering with it would have set off the dynamite."

Breathe Deeper

[illegible] were in the near presence of murder.

A crime which might easily have included them among its victims.

[illegible]

Hours of hard and dangerous digging in that cramped little cellar. [illegible] time. The cold was intense as the wind whistled through the cracks [illegible]

It was Preston again who made the discovery. At a depth of about [illegible] long feared happened a man's hand appeared.

But in digging around [illegible] for the second time that day made him realize how close he had come to eternity.

It was another stick of dynamite which had been placed near the body where the chance blow of a spade might have blown [illegible] shanty to kingdom come. But the chance blow of Preston's spade, which had uncovered it, had by luck scooped it up instead of hitting it directly.

The [illegible] of the body proceeded [illegible] But when the last bit of dirt had been taken [illegible] forget in a single lifetime.

The men looked on in silent [illegible]

"He must have been buried alive. He must have struggled to the very last."

11 Stiletto Wounds

When the body had been finally [illegible] to the floor above it was [illegible]

"Were they going to burn him alive," gasped one of the men. "Kerosene and excelsior—I've run across that combination before."

But it was when the sheet was unwrapped that the full extent of Albertson's torture was brought out. Between his shoulders and stomach were 11 stiletto wounds.

None of them would have caused instantaneous death.

As if this was not enough, around the murdered man's neck and throat was a combination gag and [illegible]

It was such a combination of murder intent and deed as had [illegible] before been experienced in Biagio Falzone, who went to the chair for the slaying. Ignatzio Morella, an accomplice, got life.

the [illegible]

[illegible] at one another. But they said nothing. It seemed to them that there were no words to express [illegible]

Once back at the station house, however, there was speculation concerning the sequence of events. It was generally held that Albertson, after a terrific battle, had been [illegible]

Then, for a reason they were at [illegible]

And as the crowning agony, he had been thrown into a living grave.

The verdict of Medical Examiner [illegible] reasoning [illegible]

[illegible] thrown into the cellar tomb was never known. But the position of the body had seemed to indicate that [illegible]

The [illegible] was not d[illegible]

Face Scratched

A day later Ignatzio Morella was arrested and charged with being an accessory to the murder. His face was badly scratched.

But police were convinced that there was at least one other implicated.

For a time they worked on the theory that there was some connection between the [illegible]

Paid With His Life

If this were so, it [illegible] death.

This theory gained credence when it was learned that Albertson [illegible] attack. For [illegible] he made one of [illegible] trips to Wakefield he always told his [illegible] in Lawrence [illegible] he was going [illegible]

By now [illegible] that [illegible] Italian [illegible] Falzone [illegible] to them that Falzone [illegible] sister were even now [illegible] for [illegible]

Could an insane desire for a bridal present have been the motive for such a murder? This proved false, but the theory led to the capture of one of the murderers.

There followed the usual [illegible] concerning the whereabouts of suspected and hunted men.

It was a letter which proved the undoing of the youth. A letter he wrote to a friend in Wakefield. A letter which soon fell into the hands of police.

On the fifth of January he was arrested in Fitchburg, but only after a short quick battle. [illegible] was brought to East Cambridge jail to await action by the grand jury and the subsequent trial.

[illegible] the hands of the law the vain hunt for the missing jewels and the $400 [illegible] have had on his person, was carried on by police.

[illegible] of two of the less expensive rings the missing gems were never recovered.

Two Verdicts

On the night of February [illegible] the jury returned two verdicts.

Falzone was found guilty of murder [illegible] degree.

Two days later, despite the protests of defense counsel pointing out the extreme youth of the doomed boy, Falzone was sentenced to the chair. Morella was meted [illegible]

[illegible] of May 11 [illegible]

I, Biagio Falzone, about to die, wish to say that from the bottom of my heart, I forgive all who have taken part in this case, especially those who testified against me.

I earnestly ask my relatives and friends not to injure or molest in any way those who were associated with me.

"I ask God's forgiveness and beg my friends to pray for me."

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

Marshall has never taken a lesson in art, he tells us. But he enjoys these adventure stories so much each day that he just couldn't resist taking his pencil in hand, to express himself through the drawn line.

Adventurer Survives Death Drop With Crazed Driver

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

The award today goes to Edward H. Miller of Plainfield, N. J., for his thrilling tale of a hair-raising auto ride that nearly became his last.

Back in September, 1919, Ed, who lived then in Flatbush, N. Y., with his wife and one-year-old son, took a house in Staten Island. On a Sunday he decided to move certain fragile articles himself for safety, and not having a car of his own borrowed one from an employe of his.

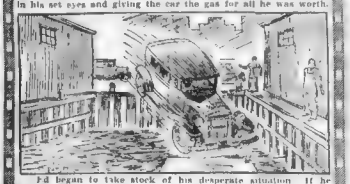
Ed couldn't drive a car in those days, but the car arrived at his Flatbush home, driven by a friend of Ed's employe and Ed packed the back seat of the sedan with bric-a-brac and started out.

He hadn't gone very far when he found that the young man who drove the car was a real character. Ed tried to get him into conversation but found the first name his name was "Joe." Ed couldn't get him to say a word.

The car went [illegible] and driving right through [illegible] Ed told the young man to take it easy as he had the car [illegible] but the driver just grinned and went on the faster.

Ed looked the young man over very carefully and finally realized that he was riding with a madman. But he didn't know what to do about it. He could get out himself, if the car ever stopped, but if he did what would happen to his dishes and glassware? He regretted now that he hadn't let them go with the other stuff in the moving van and finally decided to stick it out.

Ed looked at his driver's face and felt himself go pale. The crazy man was staring straight ahead, with a wild look in his set eyes and giving the car the gas for all he was worth.



Ed began to take stock of his desperate situation. If he stayed with the car, death was certain. He couldn't swim a stroke, and, besides, even if he could swim, the crash when the car hit the water, 20 [illegible] below, would surely finish him.

Ed put his hand on the [illegible] of the door, ready to jump. But he hesitated a split second and the next thing he knew he was sailing through space with the car.

Down went the front end, and [illegible] down by the heavy motor. Ed thought it would never [illegible] water. Although death was staring him [illegible] Ed's mind was perfectly [illegible] he had thought that the water here was 18 feet deep. The car [illegible] immediately to the bottom.

The car [illegible] nose down [illegible] The raft was [illegible] noticed the paint [illegible] for the small raft but [illegible] stop their fatal fall [illegible] ing match.

And yet that raft brought hope to Ed. He felt that if he could only throw himself clear he might in some way grab hold and keep himself afloat. But he couldn't move. The falling car held him as though in a vise.

Crash! The front wheels struck smack in the middle of the raft. The raft went under but it had served its purpose. It had acted as a hydraulic cushion, and in addition lessening the shock of the fall had actually straightened up the car.

Ed held [illegible] Down, down he [illegible] shore at the [illegible] Up to the surface he [illegible]

How he wished [illegible] Out of glazed eyes [illegible] a boat-hook [illegible] keep afloat the few [illegible] him but as he tried to [illegible] and he sank.

Bells began to ring and lights flashed before Ed's eyes. He was drowning he told himself and stopped struggling.

But Ed didn't drown. He woke up in a bed in St. Vincent's Hospital and found his wife and baby by his side. They told him that his body, as it came to the surface for the last time, had been hooked by the man in the boat. Pulmotors had brought him back to life.

What happened to the crazy driver? Well, you know what they say that "God takes care of fools and children," and it proved true in this case. The driver was fished out more dead than alive, for his bath and taken to an asylum, where it was found that his mind had cracked.

Floyd Gibbons will pay good money for good TRUE adventure stories. Hundreds of people in Boston and nearby towns have received ten-dollar and hundred-dollar bills for their yarns, and there's no reason why you can't do the same, for, as Lloyd says, everybody has had at least one adventure. Fred A. Carlson of 37 Deaconess road, Boston, won a hundred and ten dollars for the story of his life's biggest moment, and you can do the same. For further details, see the box at the right side of this page.

HERE'S Katharine Cornell's 'Privacy' Theory

"Few people think acting takes anything beyond the presence of the player a few hours each night," is Miss Cornell's reply. "Hence these innumerable requests for our appearance elsewhere. It is my experience that if I am to give the public which pays its money to see me in the theater all I am capable of giving it, I must be permitted to maintain a private life that has all the freedom from interruption and all the personal social contacts that any normal person is entitled to claim."

And by privacy Miss C[illegible] rushed to [illegible] mean a publicized secrecy—a movielized secrecy"—but merely the ordinary seclusion any citizen of the country possesses.

Strong Cast In Davies Film

By HARRIS MORGAN

Casting directors, in addition to possessing rare judgment, skill and the ability to withstand the assaults of fame-seeking actors, also must be expert historians.

In preparation for "Hearts Divided," the forthcoming Cosmopolitan Production starring Marion Davies which Warner Brothers will release, the casting executives received orders to select actors for the roles of Napoleon Bonaparte, President Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, Aaron Burr and many other noted figures of the [illegible].

Miss Davies was to be the star, being Betsy Patterson of Baltimore and Dick Powell was to be Jerome Bonaparte, younger brother of the Emperor Napoleon. That much was determined; the balance was up to the casting executives.

Their task was not easy. Their selections had to possess dual qualifications: first the histrionic ability, and second, the physical appearance. A tall, lanky actor, no matter how excellent, could not become Napoleon and neither could a youngster play the role of President Jefferson, who was 60 in 1803, the year in which the events depicted in "Hearts Divided" occurred.

So the casting experts retired to their offices, brought forth history volumes and yellowed pictures. These they studied and then they plunged into the great files wherein are listed the photographs, records and qualifications of thousands of actors.

Days passed and gradually the cast began to take shape. Claude Rains, who scored a triumph in "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," became the Emperor Napoleon. George Irving, who appeared in "Dangerous" with Betty Davis, the film that won her the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences Award, was selected to be President Jefferson.

A trio of film comedians, Edward Everett Horton, Arthur Treacher and Charlie Ruggles, became the three persistent suitors for the hand of Miss Davies.

• • •

Next came the make-up experts, artists in their own right. Carefully, lengthily, they scanned the pictures, noting in their minds and their notebooks the hair lines, cheek bones, wrinkles, noses and other features of the great men who looked down upon them from the walls.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON, TUESDAY, MAY 19, 1936 21

Haney Sizes Up Trade

Business Holds Up

Situation Balanced

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, May 19—Business activity continues to hold up well, and last week's figures showed little change. There is no more than a little seasonal rounding off from a level which is the highest since 1930. Some industries are a little under the peak touched on the 1933 spurt, but the situation is in better balance than then and the average is higher.

Some trouble is being experienced with overproduction in the oil industry, where an artificial price structure tends to stimulate an output in excess of requirements. The textile industries are none too vigorous.

As usual, too much is being made of comparisons with "a year ago." Since business a year ago was at the low point of one of those New Deal slumps, this makes an apparent "gain" which means nothing.

But when all is said, the outlook for business activity is good. The crop outlook has improved, and this, together with large prospective distributions of government money, makes an increase in farm income almost certain. Machine tool orders for April have just been reported, showing that the March slump was temporary and that the upward trend has continued.

While many veterans have been anticipating the "bonus" distribution, the peak of their spending is probably yet to come.

* * *

It is becoming more apparent, too, that the political campaign is likely to be less alarming than many feared. It will center on "prosperity." The ammunition will be promises to do things for farmers and laborers.

But back of it all will be two facts: (1) Our Democratic political institutions are not to be revolutionized, and (2) the existing inflation of bank credit is not to be stopped.

Thus it seems probable that, however the political tide may run, business activity will not be much disturbed.

* * *

Aside from a seasonal slackening in certain consuming industries, steel production continues to hold well at a level not much under 70 per cent of capacity. This is somewhere between 80 per cent and 90 per cent of "normal," depending upon what you guess the normal level to be.

The decline in the price of steel scrap, therefore, probably has little significance. Partly it represents a reaction from the abnormal rise when scrap piles were frozen up in February and March. Partly it reflects less foreign demand for military purposes.

Railway carloadings also show no important change, and are running somewhere between 70 per cent and 80 per cent of "normal," again depending upon what "normal" is.

The level is rather backward in comparison with industrial production, but several conditions might explain the situation, and at least the adjustment is better than it was a month or two ago.

Automobile production at about 114 per cent of estimated normal shows active spending, and with soldiers' bonus and farm money to come, prospects seem good.

* * *

Despite weather abnormalities and much "spottiness," retail trade indicates no general recession. In fact, wholesale trade reports suggest improvement to come.

While wholesale prices have sagged further, the declines have come chiefly in agricultural products, and it is to be remembered that a larger volume of such products and lower living costs may be beneficial. It seems to me not unlikely that the recent dip in the commodity price averages is near bottom.

* * *

On the whole, political news is "constructive." The threatening tax bill is to be revised so that it will produce more revenue and less "reform."

The holding company death penalty probably goes out, and the attack on corporate surpluses will at least be moderate.

The failure of the vicious Frazier-Lemke bill shows greenbackism to be "out." (Incidentally, it proves the weakness of Coughlin's following.)

The labor attack on this bill shows that we need not fear a radical alignment of farmers and laborers.

With gold coming in, the indications are that excess reserves will rise to new highs. With a prospective government deficit for 1937 and 1938 of eight billion dollars, not much tightening of credit is likely. So credit inflation is on the way.

U. S. TO Buy Chinese SILVER

AS CURRENCY SUPPORT

By Morris J. Harris
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Shanghai, May 19—The United States agreement to purchase Chinese silver, providing China with dollar exchange, resulted from Sino-American conversations aimed at strengthening further the Chinese currency, the ministry of finance disclosed today.

The Nationalist Government minister of Finance, H. H. Kung, said that during the last six months the Chinese government has devoted its efforts to developing and strengthening the machinery for monetary reform adopted November 3, 1935, which have resulted in attainment of exchange stability at a level adapted to China's economic life.

To achieve this further strengthening of Chinese currency, definite arrangements have been made to increase the gold and foreign exchange portion of the nation's note issue reserve.

The finance ministry said the announcement, made by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau at Washington late yesterday, of the silver purchase agreement, was the outcome of recently completed Sino-American financial undertakings at Washington.

* * *

Minister Kung declined to estimate the amount of silver China would sell to the United States to achieve further currency strengthening or to disclose the price the United States would pay, but he asserted:

"The American purchases which Secretary Morgenthau's announcement anticipates will extend over a period of months, involving a considerable amount of the white metal."

Kung specifically repudiated rumors that China was abandoning its interest in silver, Kung said the opposite would be correct in a statement of the official Chinese attitude.

"Henceforth, the silver portion of our reserves will be at least 25 per cent of our note circulation," he said.

"Furthermore, we are removing the restriction governing use of silver in manufacture of silver articles as promulgated Nov. 15, 1935."

This restriction limited to 30 per cent the fineness of silver used in arts and industry. It was imposed as an emergency measure to assist in nationalization of silver and to prevent smuggling.

* * *

Kung expressed belief these supplementary measures of monetary reform and new arrangements made would assure China of ability to maintain a fully independent currency system, not linked to any foreign monetary unit.

His finance also permanent stability for Chinese currency "which will inevitably lead to great economic improvement and prosperity for the Chinese people."

To complete reform of the Chinese currency system, Kung disclosed, the Nationalist government will issue silver coins of 50-cent and $1 denominations.

TRADE Restoration PLAN

SEC. HULL CITES VIEWS

By Associated Press

Washington, May 19 — World equality of commercial treatment for all nations was urged today by Secretary Hull as the most effective means of restoring international trade.

Addressing the International Chamber of Commerce on the occasion of Foreign Trade Week, the Secretary of State called for an end to discriminatory trade practices in favor of the reciprocal most-favored-nation treatment principle which he is seeking to promote.

Recalling the collapse of international trade during the past six years and the "protracted inability of governments to recreate the conditions in which it can recover," Hull declared:

"The shrinkage of foreign trade has deprived of their means of livelihood millions of workers who, despite efforts of their governments to create domestic prosperity in the midst of international stagnation, are still for the most part the objects of public assistance.

* * *

Summarizing this government's efforts to regain foreign markets through its reciprocal trade program, the secretary continued:

"The establishment of an effective regime of equality of treatment requires not only that nations refuse to grant preferences in their own markets but also that they refrain from seeking a preferred position in the markets of other countries.

"The pursuit of exclusive advantages tends to render it difficult and, in certain cases, impossible for the country which grants them to extend equality favorable, and hence non-discriminatory, treatment to the commerce of all other nations."

New Carloading Peak Seen

On basis of preliminary estimates, loadings the week ended May 16 to be reported Friday were about 660,000 cars, a new weekly peak for year to date, topping previous high of 673,123 the week ended Feb. 29, and comparing with 568,325 the corresponding week 1935.

A total of 680,000 cars would represent a gain of about 19.7 per cent over 583,000 the comparable 1935 week, or about the same rate of gain over last year as in preceding weeks.

It also would represent a slightly better than average seasonal improvement. It would raise the Dow-Jones loadings index fractionally above the 76.2 level the week of May 8.

FOOD EARNINGS

Where Steel Output Goes

DISTRIBUTION OF STEEL OUTPUT

In 1929 the demand for steel output was about evenly divided between the light and heavy industries.

The chart shows that in '29 heavy industries consumed 47 per cent of the 46,600,000 tons of finished steel produced that year.

Railroads were the largest buyers, taking 17.5 per cent, closely followed by construction with 16.5 per cent.

In 1935 output of finished steel dropped to slightly over 25,000,000 tons. Of this amount the heavy industries took only 38 per cent. The light industries consumed 72 per cent or a total of 18,000,000 tons, about 3,000,000 tons short of their 1929 consumption.

However, this remarkable showing could not offset the collapse of the heavy industries. Railroads dropped to 6.5 per cent and construction to 11.7 per cent. Heavy machinery showed an improvement from 9 per cent in 1929 to 4.2 per cent in 1935.

Outstanding in the light industries were the gains registered in automobiles and metal containers. The popularity of the beer can was mainly responsible for the strong comeback in metal containers.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, May 19—Belief exists in certain investment circles that the restrictions placed by the Comptroller of the Currency earlier this year on the type of corporate bonds eligible for national bank purchase is partially responsible for the disappointing results of several recent offerings.

This contention, however, is refuted by a study just prepared by Southgate & Co. of the quality and market action of recent issues.

Of 24 offerings the survey shows 8 are selling from 1 to 2 points below their original offering price, the average discount being 2 points. The other 16 are selling at premiums of 1 to 19 points, the average being 5.1 points. Of those selling at a discount, the analysis indicates, only 2 are rated by most of the statistical services higher than the minimum quality rating permitted for national bank investments by the Comptroller of the Currency, whereas of the issues selling at a premium 9 are well above the minimum, and the remainder more than a step above it. This is hardly decisive evidence, the firm concludes, that the trend of new issues is toward lower quality offerings.

Foreigners Shift To Home Markets

One of the arguments given some attention by market students for the current quieter trading on American security exchanges is the possibility that the stiffer margin requirements in effect here has driven activity to London and Montreal. According to a banking authority this is probably true so far as foreign speculators are concerned. He doubts, however, if Americans residing in the United States have switched their accounts to any extent unless it is in response to foreign markets. This banker believes, however, that some Americans residing abroad have moved their business to the countries in which they at present live.

Market Record in Presidential Years

Stock prices have had an average gain of 13.8 per cent during the second half of each Presidential election year since 1880, according to a study by Commodity Research Bureau, Inc. If this precedent is followed this year, the service contends, it is probable the same or similar performance will start a month or two earlier. The reason it gives is "the fact that the motor industry now displays new models in the month of November instead of January. Hence business might establish a base in May, from which it could work higher to the end of the year." It further believes the prospective lift in stock prices and business activity "should be stimulated in the coming months by the payment of the soldier bonus. The conventions and subsequent campaign expenditures in this intense election year should also be a factor."

Atlantic Coast Line Net Up

Atlantic Coast Line Railroad earnings of $1.69 a common share for the first 1936 quarter, against $1.19 in like 1935 period, represents an improvement that came through increased passenger traffic to Florida during the Winter resort season, and better movement of citrus fruits. Traffic during the remaining nine months will tell whether this road for the full 1936 calendar year will show the first net earnings since 1931. The road last year had net losses for every month from March on. It ended 1935 with a deficit of $3.08 a common share, against a deficit of 60 cents in 1934. Despite its losses, the road has maintained a strong financial position, and began 1936 with current assets of $14,837,000, including cash and cash items of $9,322,000, while current liabilities were only $5,421,000. This compared with current assets of $13,051,000 and current liabilities of $12, 216,000.

Commodity Averages

The wholesale commodity price index compiled by the National Fertilizer Association in the week ended May 16 declined 9-10ths of 1 per cent, falling to the lowest point reached since the middle of last year. The index last week was 75.1 per cent of the 1926-28 average compared with 75.8 per cent in the preceding week.

IMPROVE Increase Over 25 Percent

New York, May 19—In contrast to their failure to expand in 1935, earnings of many food manufacturing companies have recently improved sharply.

The average increase over a year ago for companies that have reported to date is around 25 per cent, and trade developments affirm a continuance of the uptrend into the current three months, according to a current survey by the Standard Statistics Company of New York.

To some extent, the increased returns reflect the moderate rise of sales accompanying the advance in business activity and public buying ability. A more important factor, however, has been a general widening of profit margins.

Production costs have been reduced by the elimination of processing taxes and by the lower prices of basic commodities, whereas selling prices have been fairly well maintained. Price reductions have been made in certain lines, such as bread, but have not fully counteracted the operating savings.

Household Finance Offering Today

Public offering of 125,000 shares of Household Finance Corp. Class A common stock will be made today through a group headed by Clark, Dodge & Co. and including Lee Higginson Corp.; White, Weld & Co.; Kidder, Peabody & Co.; G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.; Blair, Bonner & Co., and British Financial Union of London. The shares are priced at $50.

The offering does not represent any new financing on the part of the company, as the stock is being sold by 12 present stockholders, in order to reduce the aggregate ownership by those vendors and their families to less than 50 per cent in value of the company's outstanding stock. The company is an operating company, but the definition of a personal holding company in the Revenue Act of 1934 probably includes operating companies engaged in the small loan business, thus subjecting the company to high surtaxes. The company desires that this reduction in ownership make place so as to prevent it from the definition of a personal holding company. Another purpose of the sale, it is stated, is to accomplish a distribution and listing of the Class A common stock. The company has agreed to make application, in due course, for listing on the New York Stock Exchange, where its participating preference stock is now listed.

TARIFF Resolution FUTILE

PROFITS CUT BY TAXES

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service

New York, May 19 — The playful spirit of the business baiters in Congress was again recently manifest in an amendment added to the Vandenberg resolution providing for publicity concerning all payments in excess of $10,000 to any beneficiaries under the AAA.

The amendment suggested by administration senators will seek to offset such publication by revelation of the tariff "benefits" received by certain industrial corporations.

A provision is that there be published within 60 days tariff data on the three largest companies in nine industries, the industries represented including aluminum, electrical, iron and steel, and chemical.

For such companies the report shall state the physical output of such companies and the tariff rate per unit of output, and shall assume that the rate is "fully effective," namely, that multiplying the output by the tariff rate will indicate the tariff benefit or subsidy which has been reaped as "profit" by the few corporations involved.

Obviously, such an inquiry can produce little more than campaign arguments. It does not involve a scientific study of the tariff, or an examination as to whether the tariff on balance serves the national interest.

If protection is adequate for American business in general, naturally a handful of the super efficient corporations will show profits which are substantial.

Whether they are too large is a matter of opinion, but it is needless to remind this administration that unreasonably large profits can always be recouped through taxation.

* * *

The justification for the tariff must always be the national interest, with special reference to the conditions making for a balanced internal economy. Most of the benefits of a higher scale go ultimately to the gainfully employed workers, who, with entrepreneurs, receive some 85 per cent of the national income.

Inasmuch as domestic prices are the resultant of competition within the tariff fwall, it is difficult to generalize as to how much of a particular price represents tariff.

Wall Street Hears

New York, May 19 (INS)—That first half earnings of Atlantic Refining (AFD) will be close to $1.50 a share.

That Goodrich (GG) profits in the six months ending June 30 may approximate the 45 cents earned a year ago.

AMOSKEAG

Crucial COURT TEST Nears

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

The crucial meeting of the various interests involved in the proposed reorganization of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. is expected to take place early in June.

Arguments as to the fairness and feasibility of the plan are to be heard by Arthur Black, master, and great interest in the objections of the plan's opponents is already manifest in State street.

It is probable that those fighting the refinancing proposal will concentrate their heaviest fire on the legality of the Amoskeag's bankruptcy plea. One argument might run to the effect that the manufacturing company is a declaration of trust and not a corporation and therefore is not entitled to the benefits of the Bankruptcy Act. Further, the right of the holding concern—Amoskeag Company—to vote the bonds in its treasury may be contested.

The oil shares are under a cloud. One of uncertainty brought on by record production reports. The situation in Louisiana is the focal point of complaints. One well in the Rodessa field is running under a special permit at a very high per barrel output per day. As a result other operators in the field are said to be restless and fearful of a collapse in the price structure. Some are even believed to be ready to open up their wells. Obviously this would swell the supply so fast that a price collapse could no longer be avoided. As it is gasoline prices in metropolitan areas are already shaky. Until the situation clears investors and traders should shy away from the petroleum group.

* * *

Notebook: Investment accounts are nibbling again . . . Selected food and retail trade shares are favored . . . And do not forget the dairy issues . . . Nor situations such as First National Stores . . . It has done little we know . . . But a return of 5¾ per cent in these days is something to obtain . . . General Foods is another such opportunity . . . Though the return of just under 4¾ per cent may not be quite as attractive . . . However, as we have noted before, General Foods' control of Frosted Foods conjures up a most promising picture of future expansion . . . Literally a new industry.

* * *

In so far as this writer is concerned the market proved a disappointment following the Guffey decision. Advice to lighten trading accounts given yesterday was rather hopeless since prices faded off so fast. Our hope is that comments along this line last week were remembered. If not then it is too late to take such action now, assuming, of course, that accounts have already been pared down to the 50 per cent invested position long recommended. And just to keep the record straight we will consider our hypothetical position unchanged. For, as a matter of fact, we rather lean to the thought the new decline may not prove the serious affair so many think.

* * *

This and That—Just as selling on a sharp bulge was predicated on the idea hasty buying would weaken the technical position of the list, so we must consider that too widespread acceptance of advice to lighten accounts has had the opposite effect . . . Accounts were somewhat rapidly cut down . . . Few new buying orders were executed . . . And many traders withdrew to sidelines, as is their custom in hectic markets . . . Consequently the factors calculated to produce a new slide failed to build up and the net result is an increase in potential buying power . . . It is our idea that accounts placed in good condition should not be sold.

BOSTON'S Imports Gain

Collector Maynard reports imports at Boston the week ended May 16 were $2,826,502, against $1,802,579 a year before, and duties collected $752,440, against $332,850.

Wool imports were 864,707 pounds, against 298,176 a year before, and since July 1 are 96,412,707 pounds, against 11,185,104.

STOCK Prices Move LOWER

TRADING TURNS DULL

New York, May 19—The stock market today suffered losses of fractions to 2 or more points.

The general run of news was constructive, marketwise, but the failure of the list yesterday to respond more than briefly to the Supreme Court's voidance of the Guffey act brought selling at the opening which unsettled the leaders. Trading turned dull later, and recoveries were few and feeble.

Shares of Amerada and J. I. Case, at the approach of the fourth hour, were off about 4 each. Down 2 or so were American Telephone, Western Union, Santa Fe, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Johns-Manville, American Can, Allied Chemical and Westinghouse.

Lesser recessions were shown by U. S. Steel, Consolidated Edison, N. Y. Central, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Phillips Petroleum, Chrysler, General Motors and American Smelting. Gold Mining issues were fairly steady.

Bonds followed stocks down. Commodities were mixed, and foreign gold currencies firmed in terms of the dollar.

Kennecott slipped with other stocks notwithstandin a boost in the dividend to 30 cents from 25 cents paid in the previous quarter. It was the third increase since payments were resumed in 1934.

Timely Items

The financial district, although apparently pleased with the judicial overthrow of New Deal legislation and the continuance of favorable industrial developments, was not disposed to cheer too loudly.

There was much guessing as to what the treasury will pay for silver obtained from China. Curiosity was expressed as to what quantities were specified in the Chinese agreement. Some banking quarters interpreted Secretary Morgenthau's statement yesterday as a hint that the United States may soon hold other bilateral monetary conferences with a view toward international currency stabilization.

Preliminary estimates of the freight car loadings total for the week ended May 16 placed the figure at around 680,000 cars. This would be a new top for the year and 17 per cent above the aggregate in the same period a year ago. Loadings for the week of May 9 amounted to 668,935 cars.

Steel activities were being watched closely. Several departments of the U. S. Steel Corporation were said to be operating almost at capacity, and can schedule only small tonnages of ordinary products until the end of June. The mills were understood to be booked up on finely-finished sheet and strip.

The French franc, at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions, was up .001-16 of a cent at 6.58½ cents, and sterling was ⅛ of a cent easier at $4.97⅛.

Comments of Brokers

We see nothing either in the political foreground or in business fundamentals that indicates that prices should decline to any considerable degree from present levels.—R. S. Feigus, Prentice, Blauner & Brady.

Regard Monday's performance as having temporarily weakened the market's technical position and hence look for irregularity or somewhat lower prices from trading viewpoint.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Co.

We do not think that the abandonment of a constructive attitude toward the stock market is called for.—Thomson & McKinnon.

For the present, however, yesterday's highs appear like resistance points which will have to be pierced on volume before the market can get out of its present narrow trading range.—J. S. Wilson-Josephthal & Co.

We will want to observe the action of the market a while before offering any fresh advices with regard to new trading commitments for those interested in the minor swings.—J. E. Molloy-Hornblower & Weeks.

The number of restricted trading accounts might be considered in connection with yesterday's action, and also less general professional activity—G. M.—P. Murphy & Co.

The fact that business evidently is rounding a seasonal top will tend to lighten demand so that there is no reason for abandoning at rading policy.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

Boston & Albany

Boston & Albany Railroad Co. declared the usual quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share due at this time, payable June 30 to stock of record May 29.

Bar Gold

RUSH Of Buying ORDERS

FORCES TICKER BEHIND

New York, May 19 (INS)—The market situation today is full of potential dynamite as a result of the hit-and-run performance given yesterday following the Supreme Court's invalidation of the Guffey Coal Act.

The decision hardly came as a surprise, since few informed sources had actually expected any other verdict.

Moreover, speculative quarters did succeed momentarily in whipping up sentiment for the rise on the news flash, indicated by the fact that the rush of buying orders forced the high-speed ticker four minutes behind almost immediately.

So far, so good. It was the happenings thereafter that wiped away premature hopes of bullish leaders and aroused real fears of the actual-behind-the-scenes market set-up.

For, instead of sideline traders hopping into the fray and maintaining the advance to the closing gong, large scale offerings put in an appearance in key issues and before onlookers were aware of what was taking place, most gains had been wiped out and replaced by sizable losses at the final gong.

Total Sales

While total sales fell short of the million-share mark, turnover in the final 60 minutes far outstripped dealings for the entire four preceding hours.

An indication of the wide price swings was readily visible by the highs and lows of a few of the day's most active issues. U. S. Steel, for example, ran up to a peak of 59⅝ and then sold off to its low for the day at 57¾, for a net decline of ⅛ point. Chrysler, after shooting up to 96⅛, dropped back speedily to 94 for a loss of nearly a point, and so on along the line.

Naturally if the market cannot take advantage of news so obviously bullish as the Guffey ruling, traders are fully justified in abandoning ship until the list is able to prove itself.

And as though constructive leaders did not have worries aplenty, the situation in the foreign exchange market has again taken an ominous turn with the French franc weakening to around its low of last week.

Washington Notebook

Washington, May 19 (AP)—Treasury figures show expenditures for account of the Works Progress Administration in the current fiscal year, which began July 1, have topped $1,000,000,000, leaving about $437,000,000 unexpended. Most of the money went for works projects.

A report by the Securities Commission reveals 57 stocks were removed from unlisted trading privileges on secondary exchanges last month.

Member banks of the Federal Reserve system on March 4 held only $167,114,000 in Postal Savings funds compared with about $400,000,000 a year before, and $754,000,000 two years ago, according to condition figures issued by the system. Banks have been turning the money back to the government for lack of profitable investment outlet.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has authorized continuance of unlisted trading in common stock of the Air Reduction Co. on the Boston Stock Exchange.

The Federal Reserve Board's average price of United States Government bonds for April held steady around 107. The market, as reflected in the average, rallied in March to duplicate last summer's peaks.

HOW IS LABOR

Faring UNDER NEW Dealism?

By B. C. Forbes

How has labor fared during the New Deal?

The number of men losing wages through strikes has increased 500 per cent, and the wages lost have run 25 to 30 per cent greater.

According to the American Federation of Labor, the total still idle exceeds 12,000,000, while families and individuals needing relief have reached a figure never approached during any previous administration.

One responsible reader sends the following figures, with the explanation that later statistics are not yet completed:

Year	No. Strikes	Men Involved
1929	903	230,000
1930	653	158,000
1931	894	278,000
1932	808	242,000
1933	1,562	812,000
1934	1,568	1,353,000

He also furnishes this additional information.

Year	Days Lost	Wages Lost, Est.
1929	5,975,000	$10,875,000
1930	2,730,000	13,650,000
1931	6,386,000	31,930,000
1932	6,462,000	32,310,000
1933	14,818,000	74,090,000
1934	19,307,000	96,535,000

* * *

There is a lull, outside of shipping, in widespread labor troubls at the moment, but agitators are actively at work in various directions, with rumblings of threatened attempts to bring about clashes in the far-flung steel and automotive industries.

Leaders of the American Federation of Labor presumably have been influenced to endorse presidential candidate Roosevelt because of the labor legislation he has had enacted rather than because of any notable achievement in restoring employment. Apparently the Federation's executives have not attached predominating importance to the fact that the New Deal's attitude towards business and industry has seriously retarded economic revival.

Although financial, economic and other material conditions in this country have favored more spirited and widespread revival than in Great Britain, the latter country has outdistanced the United States in re-achieving prosperity, a fact generally attributed to the co-operation extended by the British government, in contrast with the harassment inflicted here upon employment-giving enterprises.

This writer's conviction all along has been that Washington should put revival of full-blood employment above everything else.

American federation officers, apparently, do not share this view, since they have just gone in record as approving Rooseveltian policies, which have tended to handicap rather than hasten re-employment.

* * *

It may take a little time for the importance of the Supreme Court's ruling against the Guffey Coal Act to sink in.

I have received the following penetrating statement from Herbert N. Casson, who has had vast experience in business and as a business commentator in the United State, Canada and, latterly, in Britain.

"A score of countries are now learning this fact—there is no substitute for a business man.

"The United States is learning it, at a cost of thousands of millions. The Roosevelt government has been, and is still, using professors as substitutes—and what a professor knows about business could be written on a post card.

"There will never be prosperity again in the United States until the business men recover their rights to manage their own affairs.

"Russia abolished business men altogether. As a result, Russia is the most squalid and poverty-stricken country in the world.

"The most important truth that this generation is learning, at a staggering cost is this—THERE ARE NO SUBSTITUTES FOR BUSINESS MEN."

NEURITIS

Mr. Patrick Mulkerin, 371 Washington St., Dorchester, says:—"I had Neuritis in my legs for two years. Liniment and pain killers did not benefit me. A friend who had been successfully treated by Dr. Walsh advised me to have Dr. Walsh treat me. I did so and thanks to Dr. Walsh I feel all right again. I make this statement that others who suffer as I did, may know where to go for help." Signed Patrick Mulkerin.

Governor Landon's Plain Talk Make It Sharp!

Common Sense Americans, Not Extremists, Will Decide the Election

GOVERNOR LANDON of Kansas, presumably to be nominated for President by the Republican Party, discussing public affairs over the radio with Mr. Kaltenborn, interests every American citizen.

To Mr. Kaltenborn's question, "Just who and what will decide the coming election?" Governor Landon replied:

"The common sense of the average man and woman, not the extremists on either side, will decide the election in a way genuinely beneficial to America."

"Many citizens," says Governor Landon, "Republicans, Democrats, independents, know that certain things need to be done; they want them done, but without wasting their substance or endangering their future."

Governor Landon believes that the common sense American man and woman "would like to believe that a public man can be liberal without squandering their money," and adds: "This great group of modern thinking people, when they make up their minds, will decide the election."

Governor Landon, energetic, successful, modern American, believes that common sense and ability to think for themselves still exist among people of the United States. He believes as you probably do, that the country will continue to be managed by "the average man and woman rather than by extremists on either side."

These "modern Americans of common sense, not extremists," make up at least three quarters of the people of this country, and as Governor Landon says, they AND YOU, WILL DECIDE THE ELECTION.

The Workingman's Defense

THE Free Trade policies of the Roosevelt Administration are a direct blow between the eyes of the working population of the United States.

Foreign goods—usually inferior and always manufactured with slave, servile or coolie labor—flood our ports, clutter our markets.

And, as though this were not enough, persistent Administration efforts to artificially boost prices, to limit production, to penalize enterprise, play right into the hands of Germany, Russia, Japan and other nations whose avowed plan is TO UNDERSELL THE UNITED STATES.

While ten million Americans are jobless, dependent on relief jobs or public welfare, their country, democratic United States, with its highest wages and standards, becomes a world dumping ground.

Happily, citizens who want to hear the wheels of industry hum again, enjoy the satisfaction of a full pay envelope, live once more as free-born Americans, have a DEFENSE—at least a partial defense.

This is their own patriotic determination invariably to give preference to products made at home—TO BUY AMERICAN, to create employment for American workingmen.

In this country's present condition, it is FOLLY, IF NOT ACTUAL DISLOYALTY, to buy competitive foreign products.

At War With 3,000,000

The United States at this moment is at war with a ruthless army of three million CONVICTED criminals.

Marching 20 abreast, it would take this army a day and a night, and a day and a night again to pass a given point.

This army will MURDER 300,000 in the period of years known as "our lifetime." That means 300,000 of the citizens walking the streets today will be slain.

Who says so?

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation, said so in addressing the Daughters of the American Revolution. The facts come from his files in the Department of Justice.

He blames politicians who tie the hands of policemen, and he says:

"Remember this: The only thing which concerns the crooked politician is the fact that every time you catch a criminal he loses a vote."

AND HE DEPLORES THE SOFT-HEARTEDNESS WHICH PERMITS PAROLE ABUSES AND SYSTEMS WHICH ARE, DIRECTLY, RESPONSIBLE FOR SUCH CRIMES AS THE MURDER OF NANCY TITTERTON.

He adds that kidnaping has fallen off, but warns that once there is a laxity in law enforcement kidnaping will come back.

New York Legislature Probes School Reds

By Nelson Harding

With his sleeves rolled up the prober
Lays the probe upon the grindstone,
Making ready for a needed
And complete investigation.

Let the probe be sharply pointed,
Penetrating to the bottom,
To the source of deadly poison
Seeping into school and college.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, May 19—The amazingly young and equally brash Milton Berle continues to put Broadway in stitches. Received at first with jeers as a smart aleck gag lifter, he has become the favorite comedian of that salty strip between the Herald Square and Columbus Circle.

In his early 20's, Bronx born, he has been appearing publicly only a few years. So juvenile was he in his beginning his mother escorted him to and from the theater and everywhere. And she continues his constant companion on stage and off.

Chic Sale used to do an impersonation of a small town slicker who knows all the answers. And that was Berle. He has the ingratiating grin of the cat that just ate the canary and has mastered that popular art of turning the most devastating jokes on himself.

What seems to be irritating freshness now will likely mellow with years and experience. Many crack comedians expressed it in formative days. George M. Cohan with his nasal twang and humped over lope called himself the "Yankee Doodle Boy." Today his art is tinged with shyness.

Lignon Johnson is a one-man title guaranty company and the sole proprietor of one of those odd business ventures that makes a good living. By a complete index system, he can tell in a jiffy the origin, ownership and other facts about titles for motion pictures, plays and books and thus veer building authors and producers away from legal entanglements. And that, as so many have found, is something.

I have wondered about the anonymous genius who perpetrates the ads. for a clothing house in the New York theatre programs. His job is a play on play titles. For instance, if the opus is called "Summer Wives" he puns: "Some are wives of tall men, others are wives of short men, etc." A job such as that must wear one down after a few seasons. Indeed I'd toss in the sponge after one.

The big musical revue along with intimate little versions as sponsored by Sam Harris and Irving Berlin are believed on their way out. Even Ziegfeld could not compete with the luxury of the film glorifying his name. George White dropped $60,000 on his last venture and Earl Carroll is devoting his talents to floor shows in Miami restaurants and the Dallas exposition.

Finley Peter Dunne preferred the martyrdom of complete isolation in his slow death from a malignant throat malady. When doctors pronounced his doom, he left the devotion of his family for a hotel apartment rather than become what he thought would be a burden. Dunne was one of the richest writers through inheritance of a friend and companion.

"Mr. Dooley's" philosophy so delighted Payne Whitney he bestowed gifts and a bequest totaling more than $2,000,000. It was the same sort of comradeship that now exists between young Jock Whitney and Robert Benchley.

Dexter Fellows, of the circus, has joined the autobiographers with "This Way to the Circus." Aside from being the best known press agent in the world, he is far and away the most popular. So popular indeed he does not have to try to make news.

When he comes to town—a hundred towns and more yearly—he merely sits in his headquarters smoking a cigar and the reporters flock to him. And never go away without a bang-up yarn.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

I can imagine no tougher fate for a sweet young girl than to marry before she has ever held a job or faced the competition of this modern world—unless it be the fate of the unfortunate young man whom she happens to wed.

The last place where a girl will learn the truth about life and how to adapt herself to that truth is in her own home. And the more devoted the home the slimmer are her chances. No human is as much of a peril to herself or a pain-in-the-neck to her associates and future mate as such a female.

Bring up your girl, if you must, to be a hash slinger, a taxi driver or even a boiler riveter. But never, NEVER bring her up to be a "shielded flower"!

These statements will be instantly and furiously contradicted by most modern misses and their mamas. They will scornfully remind me that this is no longer the Victorian Era and that there are no shielded flowers in 1936.

"Look at the way girls run around nowadays!" they will say. "Look at the fun and freedom they have and how wised up they are to life, even as babies."

All right, I'm looking. And I freely admit that girls run around and have fun and freedom—plenty.

But I protest that this is no proof that they are thereby wised up to life. To the contrary, they are merely wised up to the depth of Papa's pocket book and the width of Mama's coddling.

LIKE 100 YEARS AGO

But as to the real meaning of life or what it takes to tackle it, they remain as ignorant as any pantalletted darling of a hundred years ago!

There is only one way for a girl to learn what life is all about, and that is by the same method whereby a boy learns what life is all about—namely, by getting out into it and taking it on the chin.

But isn't this a cruel and hardening experience?

It is, indeed. But if you desire to stay married in 1936—which most sweet girls do — you need cruel and hardening experiences. For of all risky professions, modern marriage ranks "tops."

Does that mean that modern males are more faithless than their grandpas — and modern vamps more vicious?

It does not. It simply means that the dear little woman must do more than embroider lunch cloths and make angel food cake, or even cut a dash at the country club, if she wants to hold her man today.

And any smart, swift, prompt, efficient little working girl can make the prettiest home girl, country club belle, or amateur sports queen look like a stuffed rag doll in 36 seconds.

And it ISN'T because she's out to steal husbands—or expisiting her Appeal. It's simply because she is a well-trained human being with most of the foolishness and futile flutter knocked out of her by healthy competition and criticism.

HOPELESS AS MATE

Yet with all our modern progress and educational advantages, competition and criticism are the two things which "domestic dwellings" still lack. Mama won't tell her little girl where to head in—and Papa doesn't dare.

So what?

So ecstatic lovers become bored husbands in no time at all. And wonder sudibly why the Missis can't act as regular as a $60 per month filing clerk. W. BREUPON THE INDIGNANT BRIDE RUNS SOBBING HOME TO MOTHER—AND ANOTHER HAPPY HOME HAS GONE ON THE ROCKS.

'Dear Govt.'

By Winston Norman

DAM EXPERT
U. S. Govt.
Dear Mr. Ickes!

I always been a lover of animals. I love them baked with mash potatos and gravy so I was very happy when I seen that Mr. Roosevelt has a new Animal Projeck to help his dumb friends.

The Projeck I mean is Goules Dam and Bonneyville Dam, up in the State of Wash. A friend of mine says the Govt is spending $100 Million Dollars on them 2 dams, so as to help our U. S. Fish lay more eggs.

That kind of pussled me. I says to him, "But, My Goodness, I thought them dams was going to spread the Columbia River out on the dessert, so as Farmers could move in & raise more crops."

"Do not be silly," says my friend, "our Farmers is already busted from raizeing too much crops, so Mr. Roosevelt would not want them to raize even more crops, would he?"

"No, he would not," I says, "But what about Alectric Power?"

"The folks of Wash has too much Alectrisity already," says my friend, "so the only thing them Govt Dams will do is help our Forgotten Fish."

He begun to tell me about the married life of Fish, Mr. Ickes. He says that millions of Salmon swims up the Columbia River on their honeymoon every spring, they got Love in their eye & they are looking for a Lady Salmon.

"But these Govt Dams is too high for a fish to jump up over," says my friend, "so Mr. Roosevelt is bidg. them some Modern Fish Elevaters, they will get a free ride up the side of the Dam."

Well, Mr. Ickes, I never seen a fish in a Elevator, except when I was a little stewed, so I think Mr. Roosevelt is doing wonderful. I think everybody needs help when they fall in love, even if they are only a fish, because when the honey-moon is over you got to face the Sad Facks of life.

Yours truly,
W. NORMAN.

A Thrilling Life Story

Human Side of the News

I have an idea that if O. Henry were a young man now, just starting to write, he would find his "Bagdad-On-the-Subway" much more exciting than it was 30 years ago. O. Henry knowingly pegged the big-town sophisticate as a one-time traveling salesman from What Cheer, Ia.: and he found dreams enough in the flux and transformation of an era when we just were beginning to feel our oats as a big-league city and country.

But there is a world drift through this Bagdad of today which wasn't there when O. Henry was around. The life-stories of Russian emigres, for instance, would make some of the wildest inventions of George Barr McCutcheon—taking a romancer of O. Henry's day—seem pretty tame. Lots of these tales have grown a lot with the telling, but many of them are straight, factual yarns.

I happened to know that General Theodore A. Lodijensky was a sure-enough Czarist Russian general and hence, was observant and interested in seeing him conduct his "Russian Eagle" show at a New York hotel. The general, a handsome and distinguished host to the after-theater patrons, has a touch of authentic Continental swank about him, unchanged by the grand tossing around he got in the revolution and the post-war years.

A SOPHISTICATE

He is, in fact, a veteran of two great wars, having been a young officer in the Russo-Japanese emboglio. But there is nothing of the barracks about him. His urbanity suggests one who has lived long in genteel glitter. One can fancy his giving an order for a fougere of champagne to be sent to the 'cellist, along with a handful of 20 ruble pieces rather than a military command.

He is tall, erect, moustachioed, fastidiously groomed, with no redundancy of person, and the limber waist of the pre-revolutionary Muscovite courtier. He was a riveter in a shipyard for nearly a year after the war, he was head hostler in the stable of an express company, he opened a hat shop and then established the first "Russian Eagle", which, with the first advent of the Moscow Art Players and later the "Chauve Souris", vastly enriched New York with sophisticated entertainment.

The general has brasted all the waves of adversity, and now, with Madame Lodijensky, who has shared his fortunes, good and bad, finds his shattered world of elegance and decorum miraculously reassembled, even if it's all chewing make-believe, and that's all you could say for pre-war Europe at its best.

Sitting at another table, I recognized a darling Wall Street plunger, ordering champagne and making quite the most sizable splash of the evening. He used to be a bell hop, in Scranton, I happened to know that this gentleman was on the rocks, that his Long Island estate would be foreclosed in a few days. Rising and descending arcs like these offset the careers of Dreiser's "Sister Carrie." Ships that pass in the night club.

I got to talking to the general. He was military attache to the Russian Embassy in Paris in 1908. In the World War, he took part in General Brusiloff's offensive against the Austro-Hungarian forces. After service on several sectors of the Russian front, he was aide to Prince Oldenburg, in charge of the Red Cross sanitation and auxiliary services in the southwest. He was wounded and in a hospital in St. Petersburg when the revolution started.

In Moscow, still sufferi.; from his wounds, he joined the defensive forces of General Dorofeaf. In weeks of savage street fighting their force of 9000 was wiped out. General Lodijensky hid in his residence in the outskirts of Moscow, near the race track, where his thoroughbreds formerly had run. Just before Christmas he was arrested and jailed.

A THRILLING CAREER

"They kept me in a dungeon," said the general. "I was a marked man. Every dog in town knew me. My captors planned to shoot me, but first they wanted to find out what I knew, including t.e hiding places of my friends. My friend, a major in the British secret service, bribed a jailer with 3000 rubles to give me a loaf of black bread in which a saw was concealed. I sawed the bars of my cell and slid down an iron drain pipe.

"The major was waiting in a big car. He dropped me in the country and bade me shift for myself. He had risked his life to save me. For those three months I slept in cathedrals, churches, cemeteries and holes in the ground. In rags, with my hair and beard matted, I crept back to my old home at night. My wife was still there.

"She had a plan. She told the police it was necessary for her to take to an asylum an insane private soldier named Kosloff. She demanded a strait-jacket and a car.

"Raging violently, I was put on the train t. Petrograd. There, an old friend, a French military attache, provided me a wardrobe, and with diligent grooming I was transformed into Dr. Pinchon, a French surgeon doing Red Cross work in Russia. In the sole of one of my boots was a letter to Admiral Kemp, commander of the British squadron in Murmansk Bay, where the revolting Russian fleet was assembled.

"That same French military attache who helped us to escape later went to my house in Moscow and found the hiding place of my wife's collection of jewelled Easter eggs, to which I had added from childhood, and several thousand roubles I had stored away. He took them to Paris in his diplomatic pouch for me."

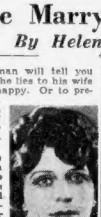
The music eased into "When I Grow Too Old to Dream" as the gray-haired general rose to greet ar old friend with a courtly bow.

As I left, I pondered over what Chaucer, re-incarnated, might do with a typical 1936 night club—"The General's Tale," "The Broker's Tale," "The Gold Digger's Tale," "The Torch Singer's Tale."

But Chaucer knew more of his own wayside than we do. Too long and too often do we "look before and after."

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland



Helen Rowland

Almost any man will tell you that the reason he lies to his wife is to keep her happy. Or to preserve the peace.

Or because he loves her. YOU know all their altruistic reasons.

Besides, a lie isn't a lie when a man tells it to a woman. It's just "good policy" or "self-protection." Or "being kind."

As a matter of fact, there are lots of times when a man simply cannot tell a woman the truth, because she wouldn't BELIEVE it; and a good lie sounds so much more convincing.

Before marriage, he can't possibly tell her that the reason why he was late for his date was because he had to go out and pawn his watch in order to pay for the tickets and the gasoline. So he tells her that his car broke down or that he got tied up by a three-alarm fire. ANYTHING else!

After a marriage, he simply can't tell her that he kept her waiting half an hour at the station because he could not pull out of a poker game "while he was winning all the money." That would seem silly to a woman. So he tells her that there was a jam in the subway, or that he had to go back for his brief case or forgot his overcoat.

He can't tell her that he didn't WANT the drinks which she detects on his kisses and that he only took them to please one of his best customers. So he chews peppermints or coffee beans and indignantly denies that he has HAD a drink. And that gets him a lovely reputation with her as the World's Prize Liar!

He can't tell her that "that woman" he was seen driving with was just a little file-clerk from the office who had sprained her ankle—even when it's the TRUTH. So he goes into the silence and won't tell her anything; and that's worse policy than the flimsiest lie he could have invented.

He is not always out dining with a dizzy blonde when h- says that he's been "working at the office." Sometimes he IS working at the office. But can he make her BELIEVE it?

The trouble is that a woman is always so interested upon having a good explanation and half the time the truth isn't GOOD enough. Hence, all the fictioning.

A man finds it awfully hard to lie to the woman he loves—the first time. But after a little practice he finds it hard not to lie to her. And nothing makes him so sore as to spend an hour inventing a good alibi on the way home—and then have her fail to ask for it!

But, cheer up! No woman need think that a man has ceased to love her when he begins lying to her; let her wait until he begins telling her the brutal truth.

Any man who loves a woman well enough to lie to her, does it well—and doesn't care what she thinks about it because he loves her with his whole heart!
